William Rose Family

Otsego County, New York; LaSalle County, Illinois

Compiled by
Christine Rose, CG, CGL, FASG

Note: This is subject to corrections, additions, omissions etc. and is only for the purpose of further search. It is prepared from personal research at the courthouses of Otsego County, New York; LaSalle and DuPage Counties, Illinois; Illinois State Archives; also from census, war files, family records, etc. Further research is needed. It is not a commissioned report, but is a collection of what has been found. See last page for acknowledgements. Any item without a citation should be researched further.

William^1 Rose was birth unknown. He is said to have lived in Otsego County, New York for his son George Washington Rose was born there in 1821 (History of LaSalle County, Illinois, Vol. II, 1886, p. 63). Undocumented information says that he died 2 July 1865. He may be buried in the Fly Creek Village Cemetery, as is a Ruth Rose Potter and a Nelson Rose [data of James Rose from the Town Historian of Otsego.]

William Rose married, Ruth Comstock (Ibid.). After his death, she married Russell Potter. She and her second husband are buried in Fly Creek Valley Cemetery, Otsego. Her date of deaeth is not given. She is shown on the record as "Mrs. Potter Rose" According to James Rose, from information sent to him by the town historian, "the record indicat4es she was born in Exeter, died in Otsego Twp. of heart disease at age of 73." She is buried a few plots away from Nelson Rose (her son), and Russell Potter (her second husband) who is buried next to Nelson. Russell Potter died in 1872 of old age.

A DNA test from a descendant of William Rose, taken as part of the Rose Family DNA project, at first was thought to have no matches. However, upon consulting an expert in the field, it became clear that in spite of the number of matching markers, the interpretation of the markers matching put this family in the project's Group K. This group all of Long Island, Suffolk Co., New York early Roses. Though it's not possible to determine exactly who is most closely related to William Rose from this group, the expert states that because of a common mutation on two tests, it would appear that William Rose is most closely conneected to Charles Rose of Hunterdon County, New Jersey who married Rebeckah Mulliner.

In the foregoing biography it is said that George Washington Rose, their son, was on his own at the age of twelve, and that at the age of sixteen he was able to provide a "modest home" for his parents, who had before been obliged to rent. If this account is correct, it would seem that his parents were living in 1847. In 1849 the son George Washington Rose removed to Illinois. There is a Ruth Potter with Russell Potter in the 1855 state census (see below) who appears to possibly be Ruth (Comstock) Rose. Further, the Town Historian of Otsego gave information to James Rose that there are buried in the Fly Creek Village Cemetery a Ruth Rose Potter, William Rose, and Nelson Rose.

There is a lease recorded in Otsego County Deed Book 96 p 420. According to James T. Rose, who transcribed it, the deed is very difficult to read.

4 Nov. 1845, Washington Rose of the town of Exeter, county of Otsego, New York to Ruth Rose of the town of Otsego, sd county, leases to Ruth Rose the land on which William Rose now lives, 7 acres, being in the town of Otsego, bounded on the south by the highway leading from Oaksville, line of Nathaniel Hecox, line of Esek Jakobs etc. [One of the witnesses states that he knew Washington Rose and that he acknowledged tis transaction. March -? 1853.]

We find in the 1850 census of Otsego County:

742/785 p. 250 Otsego 17 October

ROSE, Widow	--	f	NY
Nelson	16	m	NY
Maria	--	f	NY
Marion	--	m	NY
Adeline	7	f	NY
Ruth	--	f	NY

It is unfortunate that it would appear that someone gave the information to the census taker who was not familiar with the family well enough to give full details. Is it possible that widow Rose is the Ruth, and the widow of William Rose? It is believed that she is the Ruth who married Russell Potter, see below.

In the earlier census of Otsego County:

1830 Census Otsego County, New York
WILLIAM ROSE, p. 31, Exeter: 1 m 5/10; 2 m 10/15;
1 m 15/20; 1 m 70/80

WILLIAM ROSE, p. 36, Exeter: 1 m und 5; 1 m 5/10; 1 m 40/50
1 f und 5; 1 f 5/10; 1 f 20/30

1840 Census Otsego County, New York
√ WILLIAM ROSE, p. 34, Exeter: 1 m 5/10; 1 m 10/15;

2 f und 5; 1 f 5/10; 1 f 10/15; 1 f 15/20; 1 f 30/40

We believe that the older William is William 5 Rose who married 1st Desire Dodge, was divorced and then married 2nd, Rebecca, believed to be a descendant of Tormut 1 Rose of Block Island, Rhode Island. The younger William above appears to be his son, though we have not proved this. There is a William Rose

It is to be recollected that the only item we have that gives Otsego County as a location of this family is the aforementioned biography in History of LaSalle County. Further evidence should be sought on the New York location of this family for it may be that the biography is in error.

Illinois, burial unknown. She was daughter of Henry and Catherine ( ) Balch (Ibid.)

According to the aforementioned biography, in 1849 he left for Illinois, first to Chicago, "thence to the end of the railroad, Wheaton, where he was engaged in chopping chordwood through the winter." The following spring he went to LaSalle County where he rented what was known as the old Rugg farm. His first land purchased was eighty acres on Section 31 of Brookfield twp. He later bought eighty acres of school land and "improved his property quite rapidly." After residing there three years, he bought 160 acres in Section 17 and made his home there.

Orange County, New York etc.

Compiled by

Note: This is subject to corrections, additions, omissions etc. and is only for the purpose of further search. It is based on personal research at the courthouse of Orange County; also on census, tombstones, war files, cemetery records, family data, etc. It id not a commissioned report. It is a correlation of various items that have been collected on the family. Any item without a citation should be further researched.

William^1 Rose was born 1747 (tbs.), and died between 19 January 1802 (date of will) and 31 July 1802 (will proved), Orange County, New York. He is buried in the Plains Cemetery, Town of New Hope (tbs.: Capt. William Rose 1747-1802). (See also Ruttenberg and Clark, History of Orange Co.).

DNA testing in the Rose Family Association DNA project (2004-2005) discloses that there is a connection to a group of Roses whose ancestry all appear to be connected with Long Island, Suffolk County, New York. However, the exact connection to these Roses is not known.

He married 17 May 1774, New Windsor Presbyterian Church, Orange Co., New York (church record), and at that time was of Little Brittain, Orange County. He married Mary (Maria) DeWitt (Newburgh Bay Historical Society, pul. 1896, p. 11). She was baptized at Rochester Dutch Reformed Church, Ulster County, New York, 29 April 1756 (Olde Ulster Magazine, vol. X, p. 119). Sponsors for her baptism were Elias Depui and Rachel Robberse. She was the daughter of Jacob Rutsen DeWitt and his wife Janneke Depuy.

Mary, wife of William Rose, is buried in the Oakwood Cemetery in Syracuse, where her tombstone shows died 9 July 1839 aged 81y 2m 12. The cemetery records indicate she ws relocated from Lodi Cemetery. She is evidently buried under the name of Rose, and not Booth, though she married 2nd, --- Booth.

Mary and her husband William Rose were named in her father's will dated 14 December 1776; Jacob Rutsen DeWitt (I have abstract only and do not know if his full name appeared in the will), William Rose was one of the two executors and one of two to take inventory January 1792 (Anjour, Probate Records of Ulster County, New York, vol. 2, p. 82).

It is possible that William Rose was in the Revolutionary War. I have been sent an abstract of a record in Tioga Co., New York:

Deed Book 21, p. 185, 28 Feb. 1792, the State of New York conveyed to William Rose and John Wallis, as Revolutionary War bounty lands, 1,600 acres of land in lot 153 of the Military lots, Town of Chemung, Tioga County, New York. All gold and silver mines and 5 acres out of each 100 acres for highways were excepted and reserved by the State of New York. The deed of conveyance was signed by George Clinton as Governor of the State of New York. Recorded Jan. 1829.

There are some unanswered questions here, and the record should be examined in its entirety. We need to be sure that William Rose was the revolutionary soldier, and not just the assignee of another. Further, we need to be sure that the lands in Tioga County that is later in the possession of heirs of William Rose is indeed part of this original land bounty in lot 153. I find no mention of that lot number in the abstracts I have been sent, but it could be that there was a later subdivision and the lots re-numbered. It seems likely that this is the same William Rose, but we need more evidence than the abstract above.

From Russell Headley, History of Orange County, 1907, p. 71, amont those who signed the Pledge of Loyalty to the Revolutionary cause in 1774 included William Rose. It is assumptive that this is the same William Rose, for he married that year declaring himself of Orange County.

I am told that Ruttenberg and Clark's History of Orange Co., pp. 512, 713, 714, has some data, including mention that William Rose was elected a Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church at Mount Hope in 1785, was one of its first two Elders in 1792, and served as a School Commissioner in 1798.

The lengthy will of William Rose is dated 19 January 1802, proved 31 July 1802, gives to wife Mary personal property of various description. He orders sale of rest; two shares to son Jacob D. Rose; two shares to son William Rose; two shares to son Moses D. Rose; two shares to son Egbert D. Rose; two shares to son Jesse Rose; one share to son Nathan Rose; one share to daughter Mary Booth; one share to daughter Jane Rose; one share to daughter Dinah Rose; one share to daughter Sarah Rose; one share to daughter Phebe Rose. In addition to a previous bequest to son Thomas gives him land lying in the Town of Deerpart (he is under age). Gives a piece of land in Town of Solon, County of Onondaga, containing 640 acres to some of his sons; to son Jacob D. Rose (150 acres); to son William Rose (140 acres); to son Nathan Rose (50 acres); to son Moses D. Rose (100 acres); to son Egbert D. Rose (100 acres); to son Jesse Rose (100 acres). Executors, wife Mary Rose, son Jacob D. Rose, and good friend and son-in-law Benjamin Booth. He signed his name as William Rose, and it was witnessed by William Cuddeback, Cornelius Van Inwegen? Junr., and Thos. White (Orange County Will Book B, pp. 338, fol.).

After the death of William Rose, his widow married 2nd, --- Booth, evidenced by:

> Tioga County, New York
> Deed Book 9, p. 166, 4 June 1810, Mary Booth, formerly Mary Rose, the widow of William Rose, James and Hannah Ennis, Abraham A. and Jane Cuddebeck, Moses and Mary Cuddebeck, Esther Cuddebeck, and Peter and Clarissa Cuddebeck conveyed to James Williamson, for $800, two parcels containing total of 300 acres in lot 145, Town of Cheumung, Tioga Co., NY. Rec. Sept. 1810. (I have this abstract only; have been told that this was later Newtown and still later Elmira, Cheumung Co.).
> Deed Book 10, p. 474, 26 June 1813, Mary Booth, formerly Mary Rose, the widow of William Rose, conveyed to Samuel Ellis, for $170, 42 acres and 3 rods of land in the Towns of Chemung and Owego, Tioga County, New York, being part of the land formerly owned by Moses DeWitt, deceased, which Mary Rose received as one of the heirs of the said Moses DeWitt. The deed was signed in the presence of DeWitt Rose and N. N. Rose. Rec. Jan. 1814.

On the above abstracts of Tioga County, I have the abstracts only and have not personally examined the deeds of that county as I have of Orange, Onondaga, Ulster, Steuben and Chemung Counties. The abstracts of Tioga Co., New York were provided to this compiler in the early 1970s by Dr. John W. Harrold.

The 1810 census of the widow Mary is not doubt with that of her new husband. I have thought, with no confirmation at all, that he may be the Abner Booth whose name appears in some of the deeds in connection with Roses.

In the 1820 census there is:

1820 Census Onondaga County, New York
MARY ROSE, p. 106: 1 m 26/45
1 f 10/16; 1 f 45+

I do not think that this is the widow Mary Rose, widow of William, for she had re-married to a Booth. It is possible that she was widowed again and resumed her maiden name, but I don't think so for I find that in 1838 a Mary Booth is one of the committee in the matter of the estate of DeWitt Rose (see section (6), and I think it likely that this was his mother Mary Booth. Yet, it is possible that the 1838 Mary Booth was his sister Mary who had married Benjamin Booth, and that the mother did resume the name of Mary Rose. Further research is needed on this point.)

If there is a burial of a Mary Rose who died July 1839 in Oakwood Cemetery in Syracuse, it may be that it was inferred that it was the widow Mary Rose, when instead, she had re-married and should be buried under the name of Booth.

Rec. Aug. 1810. (This was later the Town of New Town, and still later the town of Elmira, Chemung Co., I am told.) Also, prior to the dte of the above deed, Rachel Burnett and her husband Robert R. William² Rose (William¹), may be the William bp. 27 Nov. 1871 (sic?, 1771 or 1781?) Charles C. Coleman, Early Records 1st Presyterian Church at Goshen, New York 1767-1885, 1934.

I have been told that William Rose married a wife named Eliza. She evidently is the same Eliza who married 2nd, 16 July 1817, Noah Whitney.

He might be the William Rose whose estate was administered in Onondaga County. From Letters of Administration Book 4 p 37, estate of William Rose, petition of Thomas Rose and Moses D. Rose of county of Onondaga; whereas William Rose of Town of Salina died intestate, petition for administration 15 December 1838. Strangely, compiler took this information personally and took the date as 15 December 1838, but upon reviewing my notes later I find that from the index I took this as 1813. The 1813 date seems more likely because an item from Book 5 was dated 1819. This needs to be re-checked.

He might be the William of the following record:

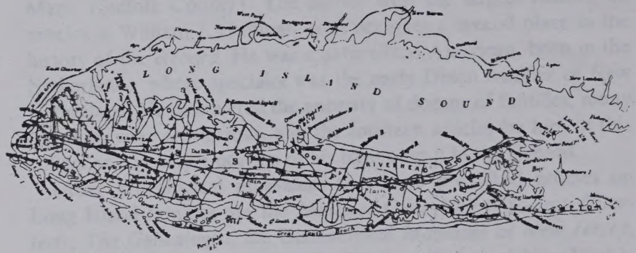
Introduction

To the east of New York City lies Long Island, stretching 120 miles out into the Atlantic Ocean. Starting in the 1630s Dutch settlers crossed the East River to farm the western end of the island. A few years later colonists began sailing down from New England to found towns on Long Island, halting only when they met Dutch settlements.

The result was that the eastern two-thirds of Long Island (present-day Suffolk County) had a New England identity, based on geographical proximity and on ancestry, while Kings County had a Dutch identity, and Queens County had both Dutch and New England characteristics. These three counties were created in 1683 from the three "ridings" established by the British in 1665. Prior to the British takeover of New York from the Dutch in 1664, some of the eastern Long Island towns had been part of the Connecticut or New Haven colonies.

Long Island is shaped like a fish with its jaws (or its tail fins) open around Shelter Island and Gardiner's Island. In 1725 the towns and counties looked roughly like this:



The boundary changes over the centuries have not been substantial, the main one being that in 1898 half of Queens County (Flushing, Jamaica and Newtown) was absorbed into New York City, while the remainder became Nassau County. (The "Island of Nassau" had been an old name for Long Island.)

In 1725 Long Island comprised about 38% of the total population of New York. This means that if a line can be traced back that far in New York, there is a good chance of finding Long Island ancestry. And Long Island was an important source in the spread of population in the eighteenth century, especially in the Hudson River Valley and New Jersey.

When I was asked to choose the articles for this compilation, I accepted without hesitation as I knew there was little published on Long Island families. And what is available is frequently second-rate and based on tradition, for conventional Long Island genealogical research can be most difficult. Although many Long Island settlers came from New England, the good record-keeping practices of New England apparently did not come with them. Long Island towns did not keep vital records on a regular basis, and some early church records have not survived. (For information on Long Island sources and genealogical research, see Herbert F. Seversmith and Kenn Stryker-Rodda, Long Island Genealogical Source Material (A Bibliography) (Washington, D.C.: National Genealogical Society Special Publication No. 24, 1962); Kenn Stryker-Rodda, "Long Island," in Genealogical Research: Methods and Sources, Vol. I, rev. ed. (Washington, D.C.: The American Society of Genealogists, 1980), 177-188; and Henry B. Hoff, "Genealogical Research on Long Island," Tree Talks, 24 (1984): 67-79.)

However, the fact that Long Island settlers came from New England is helpful in itself. Many are mentioned in James Savage's *Genealogical Dictionary of the First Settlers of New England (4 vols., 1860-62), Clarence Almon Torrey's New England Marriages Prior to 1700 (1985) (available on microfilm from The New England Historic Genealogical Society and in book form from the Genealogical Publishing Company), John O. Austin's *Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island (1887), and Donald L. Jacobus's *History and Genealogy of the Families of Old Fairfield (2 vols., 1930-32) and his *Families of Ancient New Haven (8 vols., 1922-32). Articles in The New England Historical and Genealogical Register have included Long Island branches of New England families, and a few articles have dealt exclusively with Long Island families.

*Reprinted by the Genealogical Publishing Company.

The genealogical magazine that has had the greatest number of articles on Long Island families, however, is The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. Some of its earliest contributors were interested in Long Island and showed good genealogical abilities (see, for example, the Latting and Lawrence articles). Since 1870 there have been a sufficient number of articles on Long Island families in the Record to allow me some discretion in making selections for this compilation, permitting me, specifically, to exclude certain types of articles for one or more of the following reasons: (1) most descendants identified in the article left Long Island; (2) the article is inadequate or unduly wordy; (3) the article has been superseded by a later work; or (4) the family arrived on Long Island after 1750. Articles that were chosen have been printed in full along with any additions or corrections published in subsequent volumes of the Record.

This collection contains articles by some famous American genealogists, such as Donald Lines Jacobus and Arthur Adams (who are better known for their New England work), and Rosalie Bailey, George McCracken and Herbert F. Seversmith, each of whose work on Long Island families is well known. In addition, there are articles by genealogists who concentrated on parts of Long Island, such as Lucy Akerly (Southold), Teunis Bergen (Kings County), George W. Cocks (Oyster Bay), and Conklin Mann (Suffolk County). The author with the largest number of articles is William J. Hoffman, who occupies a special place in the history of the Record. He was a naturalized American, born in the Netherlands, whose specialty was the early Dutch families of New Netherland. He discovered the ancestry of dozens of families, many of whom were armigerous, and the fourteen articles by him in this collection are only a portion of his total output in the Record.

Other genealogical magazines that have published articles on Long Island families are the National Genealogical Society Quarterly, The Genealogist, the Genealogical Magazine of New Jersey, De Halve Maen (published by The Holland Society of New York), and The American Genealogist, which, after the Record, has published the largest number of articles. Some of the articles supplement those in this work, and they should be consulted (see, for example, articles on Ludlam, Martense, Monfort and Raynor). Most articles can be located by using Meredith B. Colket, Jr.'s

Founders of Early American Families, rev. ed. (1985), or Donald L. Jacobus's Index to Genealogical Periodicals (repr. 3 vols. in 1, 1981), though neither cites De Halve Maen. If the migration to or from Long Island was in the second or third generation, it may be difficult to find the relevant article. Sometimes the family name sought is "buried" because the title of the article lists only one family. Subject and name indexes for all these magazines should be used, including Jean D. Worden's New York Genealogical and Biographical Record 113 Years Master Index 1870-1982 (1983).

And there is always the possibility that the most important information has not yet been published. For example, articles should appear in the next few years on the Latting, Lawrence and Whitehead families which will add substantially to those in this compilation by showing unknown English origins or new information about the immigrant.

Founders of Early American Families, rev. ed. (1985), or Donald L. Jacobus's Index to Genealogical Periodicals (repr. 3 vols. in 1, 1981), though neither cites De Halve Maen. If the migration to or from Long Island was in the second or third generation, it may be difficult to find the relevant article. Sometimes the family name sought is "buried" because the title of the article lists only one family. Surname and name indexes for all these magazines should be used, including Jean D. Worden's New York Genealogical and Biographical Record 113 Years Master Index 1870-1982 (1983).

And there is always the possibility that the most important information has not yet been published. For example, articles should appear in the next few years on the Laning, Lawrence and Whitehead families which will add substantially to those in this compilation by showing unknown English origins or new information about the immigrants.

PETITION OF MESSRS FFLOYD AND SMITH.

To the Honble Peter Schuyler Esqr President of his Majestys Councill and Comander in Cheife of the Province of New York and Territories thereon depending in America &c.

The Humble Petition of Richard ffloyd and William Smith Esqr on behalfe of themselves and other the ffreeholders and Inhabitants of the town of Brookehaven in the County of Suffolk.

Sheweth

That Yo Petrs having lands within the townshipp as alsoe lands within the manor of St. George Exempted from the [said Towshipp and]   the said Town under pretence [and Colour of an Act of Assembly enabeling the respective [Townes to] raise moneye to defray their necessary [charges assessed yor] petrs estates in the mannor of St. George and [Townshipp of Brookhaven] and sent distreses in the night time for the and great oppression of yor petrs in pticular But [had they] extended their power to the generall oppression of all the ffreeholders of the said Town yor petitionrs would have rested under their own grievance till a due Course of law would have relieved them without giving this Honrble Board the trouble of a Complaint But as oppressions and wrongs done to the publick are matters properly to be represented here yor petitioners beg leave humbly to represent to yor Honr on behalfe of themselves and the other the ffreeholders and Inhabitants of the Townshipp that the Trustees of the said Town by pretence of the [said act] of Generall Assembly and contrary to the same ends and intent thereof (which your petitioners humbly conceives was for defraying public charges only) have rated petitiors and other the ffreeholders and raised moneyes upon [them for their] private uses and discharging particular agreements with and paying of the Dissenting Minister and other private uses

That altho the several assessments made beares proper title according to the direction of the said act yet the moneyes thereby raised and levyed have altogether been applyed to the private uses aboue and haue accordingly been paid out by the Treasurer of the said town as yor petrs doubts not to prove And which matter has been soe notorious that the said rates have been levyed [by them without of] fence the ffreeholders not refusing but being ready and willing to pay.

Your petrs therefore Humbly pray yor Honr and this Honrble Board to take the matter into serious Consideration and not suffer those laws that are made for the protection and good of all his Maties subjects to be perverted to the Injury and oppression of them And that yor petrs and other the ffreeholders of the said town may be relieved from those grievious burthens laid on them by the said Trustees and the Assessors and other officers of the said town contrary to Law

And yor petrs shall ever pray &c.

COUNTER PETITION.

To the Hon^{ble} Peter Schuyler Esq^{r} President of his Maj^{ts} Councill & Commander in Chief of the Prouince of New York, & Territories thereon depending in America, and all the members of his said Maj^{ts} Honourable Councill, Conuened in Councill

The Humble Petition of the principall Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Town of Brookhauen in the County of Suffolke.

Sheweth

That your Petitioners being extreamly surprized, to Vnderstand by a Petition Exhibbitted your Hon^{rs} the 15th of this instant by Richard Floyd & William Smith Esq^{rs}, wherein the Trustees Assessors & Collector of this Town, are peremptorily charged wth many illegall & indirect practices in their Late Publick administrations. Your Petitioners hauing duly weighed & considered the contents thereof, & finding it to containe many False & scandalous reflections, Esteem it our indispensible Duty, Humbly to represent to your Hon^{rs} That what moneys p^{r} said Trustees haue Lately been raised to defray the Publick & necessary charge of this Town, was grounded on a very Just & unexceptionable bassis, and also been Judiciously appropriated to such pious & advantagious uses as are absolutely essentiall to the promoting Relligion, the adauncement of Learning, & securing the Publick Peace & Tranquillity of this Town: And that tho' represented to yo^{r} Hon^{rs} as a greuious imposition; yet from Time to time, wee haue freely and volentarily paid our respective assesments of all those Publick charges.

Your Peticoners therefore Humbly prays, that in regard yo^{r} Hon^{rs} haue unworthily been imposed uppon, and that these Complaints are groundless, as well as extreamely mallicious, That yo^{r} Hon^{rs} in yo^{r} abundant Wisdom & Justice, will take such prudent & effectuall measures, as that innocency may be protected, The deuices of our aduersaries exploded, & the vniuersall Peace & fellicity of this Town, County & Gouernment most happely promoted & Established to the Hon^{r} of Almighty God, & the vnexpressible Joy & satisfaction of all his Maj^{ts} most Dutifull & Loyall subjects:

And yo^{r} Petitioners (as in duty bound) shall euer pray.

Jachonias Rose Family

Bedford,Huntington,WestmorelandandIndianaCounties, Pennsylvania, etc.

Compiled by
Christine Rose, CG, CGL, FASG

Note: This is subject to corrections, additions, omissions etc. and is only for the purpose of further search. It is not a commissioned report, but is a report of what is known to date on this family taken from personal research in some of the counties, from research of others, from Bibles, census, tombstones, etc. Any item that does not show a citation should be further documented.

Jachonias1 Rose was born ante 1755 (calculated from census), death is unknown; our last clear record of him is 1806 in Pennsylvania. It is possible he removed to Ohio as did other members of this family.

There were published in D.A.R. records a Bible record ("Miscellaneous Data by Nebraska D.A.R. Chapters, 1948-1949), and we infer from it that it is a list of brothers and sisters. The names and dates follow:

2. i. Aaron b. 21 January 1774
ii. Elizabeth b. 2 May 1776
iii. Anne b. 6 Feb. 1778, (Diane Stober shows she
m. Elijah Mott)
iv. Philip b. 7 June 1780, Ruth (Talkington)
[See extensive separate report on this family for descendants]
3. v. Jachanias b. 22 Apr. 1783
vi. John b. 4 July 1785, probably the John Rose of Greene Co., Ill.
[See extensive separate report]
vii. Ruth b. 14 Mar. 1794, is she the Ruth Rose who m. 29 Nov. 1812, Franklin Co., Ohio VR,
m. by Jacob Tharp, to Thomas Andrews? Is she "Phoebe" who according to the 1880 Union
Co., Ohio History was a sister of "Ebenezer" [sic, Eleazer?] Rose and m. Thomas Andrews?
The coincidence of the husband's name would seem to indicate the possibility viii. Gemina b. 8 Mar. 1796

4. ix. Joseph b. 22 Sept. 1797, prob. m. Margaret Welch
x. Catherine b. 22 Feb. 1799 ✓ ? Ira Bennett
5. xi. Elijah b. 21 Jan. 1801, prob. m. Mary Welch
6. xii. Eleazer [Eliezar in the published record;
b. 14 June 1803, prob. m. Mary Shisler
7. xiii. Jachonias b. 10 Feb. 1805, m. 1st, Mary Rhodes,
m. 2nd, Ann Rhodes

The spellings above are as they appeared in the published record. As it can be seen, relationship is not given of these Roses, but the inference would be that they are siblings.

He is a beneficiary in the will of George Charms in ~~Cumberland County~~ CHESTER (?) FRANKLIN (?), Pennsylvania (Will Bk B p. 127), which is the earliest known record of him:

George Charms, of Amberson's Valey, Fanet twp., Cumberland Co., to Jemial? Syers for kindness to me, cow I bought of Barnabas Clark and heifer, etc.; to Jeconias Rose my horse and a new Jacket which I left in Robert Wilson's house and also 7 yds woolen cloath which I have in this house; to my daughter Ruth my plantation in Amberson's Valey and benefit from them; to every brother and sister "my Dather hath" to each 5 shillings and no more for I deny them to be my children and as for my wife I leave nothing because she left me "and played the whore," care of estate to Barnabus Clark and George Buchanan, they to administer. I allow them to make diligent inquiry for my daughter Ruth Charms and if she cannot be got I allow then to send "word to my relatives in England" that they may enjoy my estate. Signed: by x mark. Wit.: Jeconias (his o mark) Rose, Joseph (his x mark) Adram. Proved: 27 Aug. 1772.

The next record is in 1780 when he is listed in records of Cumberland County, Supply Rate, Fannet twp., no acreage shown, supply rate: 1 horse, 1 cow, no tax (Penn. Archives 3rd Series, Vol. XX p. 296).

He next appears in records of Bedford County, Pennsylvania:

Taxables 1773-1784, Pa. Archives 3rd Series, Vol. XXII, 1897
p. 247: 1783, Sherley twp., Rose, Jechoniah Rose, 2 horses, 2 cattle, -- sheep, 50 acres, 13.6
p. 301, 1784 (Census), Rose, Jeremiah, 1 house, 7 white, no blacks or acreage shown

Bedford County, Septennial Census, 1786
Sherley twp.: Jeconiah Rose
Colerain twp: Edward Rose
Frankstown: Joseph Rose

From 1788 Tax List of Huntington County, Pennsylvania (Pa. Archives 3rd Series, Vol. XXII, 1897):

Huntington twp
p. 332: 1788, Rose, William, single, freeman
p. 332: 1788, Ross, Robert, single, freeman

Tyrone twp
p. 341: 1788, Rose, Joseph, 2 horses, 2 cattle, 242 acres
p. 349: 1788, Rose, Jaconias, 1 horse, 1 cattle, 150 acres, tax 2.9
[on this same list, John Talketon, 50 acres, value 9,
p. 350]

From later lists (reference?) in Huntington County:

1789: Joseph Rose, Tyrone twp.

1791:Joseph Rose Sr., 242 acres, 2 horses, 1 cow, Shirley twp.

By pursuance of a warrant granted to Jeconias Rose and Benjamin Briggs dated 4 January 1790, 300 acres and 50 perches was surveyed in Dublin twp., Huntington County. About 80 acres on the south end was caveated by William Halers who said "it was once survey'd on his warrant." It was also noted at the time of survey that "there is an Old improvement & a family residing thereon." (D-30-24, Land Office, Harrisburg, Pa.]

We find him next in records of Westmoreland County:

Westmoreland Co., Pa. 1800 Septennial Census
Wheatfield twp:
Aaron Rose
Jeraneas Rose

We were told that he is in Indiana County, Pennsylvania tax lists of 1804 as follows:

Indiana County, Pennsylvania
Wheatfield twp., 1804 tax list
Rose, Aron, 2 cows
Rose, Jaconias, 200 impr ac., 4 cows
Rose, Phillip, no property

Yet, we are also told that he is in Westmoreland County tax list in 1806 (Special Publ. of National Gene. Soc. No. 33 by Wm. H. Dumont):

Wheatfield twp. 1806
Rose, Jaconias
Rose, Philip
Rose, Aarm [sic, Aaron?]
Rose, Jaconias (Jr.)

We have not seen the above tax lists personally for verification.

He is listed in the census:

1790 Census Huntington County, Pennsylvania

4 females

1800 Census Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania:

1 m 45+
3 f und 10; 1 f 10/16; 1 f 26/45

[On the same page, Aron Rose, who we believe to be Aaron Rose later of Franklin County, Ohio.]

We are told that Jechoniah Rose is listed for militia duty in Bedford County in 1786 and 1788. Further, that in April 1794 to December that year he was listed as serving in the Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania Ranger, Militia. Also, that in 1794 he was paid 54 dollars 59 cents for Ranger duly April to December. The following year, 20 Feb. 1795, there was recorded evidently a payment of one dollar for rifle for service. [We have no confirmation of any of these items as we have no references.]

From court records of Westmoreland County:

Vol. – p. 105, court of Common Pleas 2nd Mon. of March 1798, Lessee of Hugh Gallaher vs Jaconias Rose, Aaron Rose and Philip Rose, Tenants in possession. ==================

This has always been a rather confusing family. But we had no reason before this to consider a connection to LI! And, no reason to consider a connection to Andrew Rose of Bucks and Mercer Cos. I am VERY anxious to see ther esult of the test started recently on a descendant of Andrew Rose.

Ananias Concklyne of Kings Swinford, Co. Stafford, glassmaker, and Mary Lauder or Launder, spinster, of St. Peter's Parish, Nottingham were married at St. Peters 2-23-1630-1.
Ananias Concklyne reached Salem, Mass. by 1639, removed to Southold L.I. about 1650-1 and died at East Hampton Oct. 1657.

Children on record:
1. Jeremiah, b1631-2. m. Mary Gardner.
2. A daughter, perhaps named Mary, b. 1633-4, who m. by 1654 George Miller of Southold and East Hampton.
3. Cornelius, b. 1635-6. Remained at Salem. Died without issue.
4. Benjamin, b. say 1637-8. m. Hannah, dau. Justice John Mulford of East Hampton.
5. Lewis, bap. at Salem Apr. 30, 1643. Perhaps the child of a second wife named Susan. He evidently d.y.
6. Hester, b. about 1654, evidently the child of a third wife who was Dorothy, widow of Robert Rose of East Hampton. Hester married Samuel Mulford, eldest son of Justice John Mulford, one of the most important L.I. men of his day.

The American Genealogist, Vol. 2, p. 142.

Ananias Concklyne could hardly have taken over the Rose acreage and become responsible for the portions of the minor Rose children, except by marriage to the widow Dorothy Rose.
The eldest Rose child was a girl, who by Oct. 1654 was married to Anthony Waters. She doubtless received her portion at marriage, and she may have been born about 1634.
The next child was Thomas Rose, b. perhaps 1636.
The second son, John Rose, was b. about 1638, for on 2 Oct. 1655 he testified that he was 17 years old.
The other Rose children were younger. (Jonathan, Samuel & Hannah.)
References to the Conklin, Miller & Rose families, cited above may be found in E.T.R. p.p. 14. 25. 66. 116. 121. 239. 458.

In reference to the care of Hester Conkline. Nov. 27, 1657.
Jeremiah Conklin asks for a part of Hester's portion for her care for a period of a year and a half, "she being so young".

ROBERT ROSE OF WETHERSFIELD AND BRANFORD, CONN.

History of Ancient Wethersfield

ROBERT ROSE came from Ipswich, County Suffolk, England in "The Francis" John Cutting, Master, in April 1634
With him were his wife Marjorie and his eight children.
It is thought that he was first in Watertown, Mass.
He was in Pyquag (Wethersfield) by 1639 - perhaps earlier.
In March 1640-41 his property was on the S. E. side of Broad Street, between John Robbins and Matt. Mitchell.
He was one of the largest owners of"Adventure Lands"there.
He was Constable in 1639.
He was Juror in 1641.
He was Deputy to Gen. Ct. 1641-43, and had frequent manifestations of the confidence placed in his capacity and integrity by the town and General Court by the repeated offices bestowed upon him by both.
In 1644 Robert Rose removed to Totoket (Branford) as one of its pioneers.
Shortly after June 7, 1664 Robert Rose married (2) Elizabeth of New Haven, widow of Edward Parker and who had previously been the widow of John Potter. (See New Haven Potters 4, in New Eng. Gen. Reg.) She died at N. H. 28 July 1677.
Mr. Rose died shortly after his marriage in 1664, his will being dated 25 August 1664, proven at Branford 4 April 1665 and prob. at New Haven 14 November 1666.

It devised to his widow and eight children of whom only John, Jonathan, Elizabeth and Mary are mentioned by name and gave £6.13s. to the Branford church.
Inventory of the estate amounted to 836-09-07. (Branford Town Rec. & New Haven Co. Prob. 1, Part 2, p. 7).

ROBERT ROSE was 40 years old when he departed from England. His wife Marjorie was the same age. The ages of his first eight children are those found in the register of the Crown Officers who licensed the departure of all emigrants to America from England, They are as follows:

ANANIAS CONCKLYNE (CONKLIN)

Ananias Concklyne of Kings Swinford, Co. Stafford, glassmaker and Mary Lauder or Launder, spinster, of St. Peter's Parish, Nottingham were married at St. Peters 2-23-1630-31.

The American Genealogist, Vol. 2, p. 142

Ananias Concklyne could hardly have taken over the Rose acreage and become responsible for the portions of the minor Rose children, except by marriage to the widow Dorothy Rose.

The eldest Rose child was a girl, who by Oct. 1654 was married to Anthony Waters. She doubtless received her portion at marriage, and she may have been born about 1634. (Rashel)

The next child was Thomas Rose, b. perhaps 1636.

The second son, John Rose, was b. about 1638, for on 2 Oct. 1635 he testified that he was 17 years old. Mary

The other Rose children were younger. (Jonathan, Samuel & Hannah).

In reference to the care of Hester Conkline. Nov. 27, 1657. Jeremiah Conklin asks for a part of Hester's portion for her care for a period of a year and a half, "she being so young".

Comment - The above would indicate that Hester's mother Dorothy(Rose) Conklin was no longer living.

Tombstone Inscriptions - South End, East Hampton. Sec. B, No. 6

Here lyes ye Body of Mrs. (H)ester Mulford, wife to Capt. Samuel M. Mulford, who Dec'd November ye 24th, 1717, in ye 64th year of her age.

"Robert Rose - probably the first of this name in this Country, was a man of ability and a member of the Colonial Assembly".

"He settled in Connecticut" afterward "Settled in Southampton" then later removed "and settled in East Hampton. He died sometime before 1665". "His three sons Jonathan, Thomas and John moved to Brookhaven". (From Ross' History of Long Island in three volumes).

Howell's "History of Southampton" states:

"Robert Rose of Wethersfield in 1639 came in the Francis from Ipswick. County of Suffolk in 1634, with wife Margery, age 40, son John 15 yrs., Robert 15 yrs., Elizabeth 13 yrs., Mary 11 yrs., Samuel 9 yrs., Sarah 7 yrs., Daniel 3 yrs., Dorcas 1 yrs. He went to Stratford and thence probably to Southampton in 1644 where he had a grant of land 6 March 1644-5. His name is on the whaling list of that year but no John mentioned until 1657, when he lived at "North Sea". Robert I moved to East Hampton about the time of its settlement 1649 and then to Westchester, N. Y. His son Robert 2 moved to Branford at the time Mr. Pierson and the families in his following. Samuel 2 went to Newark, N. J. When he died, he left two daughters - believed no sons. The youngest son Thomas 2 inherited the Homestead at East Hampton, sold it amd moved away.

Mrs. Baird who lived in Southampton and who has done a lot of genealogical work, thinks that Robert 2 might have returned and went to Southold, thence to Brookhaven Town. Mrs. Baird is evidently right for in Book I of the Brookhaven Town Records, printed copy, page 159, it states:

"17 december (69)"

"Robart Roes is at the same tyme taken in as a townsman by voete he paying all costs and charges as others of the towne doe".

If it be true that Robert I died before 1665, then this Robert who was admitted to Brookhaven in 1669 must have been his son Robert 2. I have no East Hampton or Southampton records to consult, but I believe it possible that Mrs. Edward P. White of Southampton might be able to give you some help along that line. Again in Brookhaven Town Records Book 2 printed copy page 56 it speaks of "Iohn [illegible] Roese of north sea" (a few miles north of Southampton village) "near southampton, but the original page is so badly torn that much of the context is lost. He was evidently recorded as buying land here in Brookhaven Town for the words "acomodation of land and medow---- a whome lott of tenn akers-------house barn or barns out housses bac-------". The date is June 14, 1678. Whether he came here to live I am not certain, but I think he did. One "John Rose sold land in Orange County N. Y." Where he, like many other Long Island people went at an early date. He sold this land to Simon Rumsey.

That "Johnathan or Jonathan and Thomas, sons of Robert 2 lived here in Brookhaven there is no doubt. Jonathan acquired land piece by piece from 1681 to 1705 practically all of what is now Bellport, then known by its Indian name Occombonock or Acambomack. He married Jane, widow of William Williams. Testimony concerning this marriage is recorded in Brookhaven Records, Book B page D. They were married 28 June 1682. Whether this was his Book B, Brookhaven Records:

"26 feb. 1680-81"
"John Thomas haue sould to John Beswick a whoele acomadations of comenag? that did belong to Thomas helmes lott fore and in concideration that the saide John Besweck doth forthwith deliver a cow and calue that Jonathan Roese brought from Southampton". This seems to confirm the statement in vol. 2 of Ross' History of Long Island that Jonathan, John and Thomas Rose were the sons of Robert-2 Rose and moved from Southampton to Brookhaven Town. Further proof is found in deeds recorded in the Suffolk County Clerk's Office in Riverhead in Liber A of deeds as follows:
12 Oct. 1681 Johnathan Rose of said Towne of Brookhaven.
Johnathan Rose "cooper" - 4 April 1696
Johnathan Rose of Occombomack (Bellport) 12 May 1696.
Johnathan Rose also a witness to a deed in Occombomack 4 July 1690 with Jane Rose his wife.

Thomas Rose made so many purchases in Fireplace, (Brookhaven village) that it would be too much to list them here. In some of these purchases we learn that he was a weaver and that he was a resident of Brookhaven Town as well as Brookhaven village.

Book C, Brookhaven Records: 8 Nov. 1738 "Voted and agreed that Daniel Rose shall have a Sarting piece of Swempey Ground containing (word gone) two acres adjoyning to his land bounded northerly to highway and easterly by the fifteen acre lots Southerly by the (words gone) and westerly by the Beauer (meaning "Beaver") Dam Crick". As this creek is in Brookhaven village it shows that Daniel Rose who I think was either a son of Robert-2 or Thomas-3 probably lived in that village as well as Thomas-3.

only marriage, I cannot say. The Robert Rose who bought and sold property here in Bellport 1720 and whose "bound tree" (?) is again mentioned in Rock C in 1733, was probably the son of this Jonathan as were probably Ephrim, Samuel, Timothy and Ezekiel also mentioned in a deed recorded in 1720 in Book B.

Thomas^3, the brother of Jonathan^3 and John^3 (most probably sons of Robert^2) settled in Fireplace, since 1871 called Brookhaven Village. Various deeds and entries in the Town and County records prove this. His wife's name was Rebecka. He was elected tax collector in 1785. He was evidently your ancestor and his name appears a number of times in the records. From information I got from the late Miss Harriet Rose of Brookhaven Village several years before her death when her mind was clear (she died last October aged 90 years) Thomas had at least three sons vis:

1. Nathan^4 - b. 1731 d. 1793. A Captain in the Revolution. Buried on the original Rose property, known later as the Ireland place, now Tiger's Nursery. He m. Sarah, da. of Simon Rumsey of Orange County. Her mother was probably Phebe, da. of John Rose whose marriage to Simon Rumsey occured in 1723. Nathan was therefore first cousin of his wife.

2. Thomas^4- b. 1736 d. 1780. A lieutenant in the Revolution. He is buried in the private cemetery. He m. Deborah (possibly) da. of Isaac Overton of Coram(?) about 8 miles north of Bellport.

Add 1800 Census + 1810

3. Jesse^4 - b. Dec. 30, 1738 d. Oct. 2, 1821. Signed the "association" papers as a patriot. He married Mary Green probably of Southampton, She was b. Apr. 8, 1747 d. July 25, 1819.

* (Chris - an insertion here indicates that the 4's may be 5's)

I have the names of the children of Thomas ^{4}, Nathan^4 and Jesse^4, but as you are a descendent of Jesse^4, I will give you only his. All three of these brothers are buried in the tiny, overgrown graveyard on the land spoken of as Thomas^3 Apr. 24, 1738. This confirms my belief that they three were brothers and grandsons of Thomas. They were the sons of Nathan and grandsons of Thomas and Rebecca.

Dear Elbert,

You may recall that several years ago you sent to me some manuscript material, evidently from OSBORN SHAW ms material. Can you tell me where this is deposited?

One of the pages you sent (enclosed) has the information on the left side of the page cut off. I would like very much to get another copy of that page of I knew where the material was deposited. Also, I am back to work on the Long Island Roses and plan to be on L.I. later this year. Would like to go to the library that houses that collection while there!

Thanks so much for yomr help with this. The data you sent was very helpful.

Sincerely,

Christine Rose, CG, FASG

Robert Rose, probably the first of that name in this country, was a man of ability and a Member of the Colonial Assembly. He died some time before 1665. His three sons, Jonathan, Thomas and John, moved to Fireplace.

Howell's History of Southampton states that Robert Rose of Wethersfield in 1639 came on the "Francis" from Ipswich, Suffolk, Eng. In 1634 with wife Margery age 40, sons John and Robert age 15, Elisabeth 13, Mary 11, Samuel 9, Sarah 7 Daniel 7, Dorcas one year. Robert Rose moved to Branford and returned to settle in Brookhaven Town. On the 17th of Dec 1669 Robert Rose is taken in as a Townsman by vote, he paying all costs and charges "as others of the towne doe".

Dear Harold,

Your latest letter and notes extremely interesting - always particularly glad to see more on Dorothy. I think you are laying a good ground-work, and that as these things are checked out, a great deal is going to be added to our knowledge of the Long Island Roses. It's turning out that there seems to be a lot more available than at first thought.

Between now and the Conference there is so much to do, but...I will not be holding a Conference next year for I want to spend more time on actual research than I've been able to do. When I get back, I want to spend a lot of time on the Long Island Roses too - that will probably dovetail nicely since you are planning to go there this summer. Someday I want to get there - I don't know why it's always intrigued me!

The other items you sent are much appreciated too.

The only thing I can figure on the mis-information, is that someone made an error, and it just got re-copied and re-copied. I've seen this happen in other families too. But...I don't discount the possibility that there could be some sort of connection between Robert of Long Island and Robert of Wethersfield. There is a large 3-volume set of immigrants due to be released in May - I am anxiously awaiting its publication in the hope we're going to find more Roses. I don't know if anyone has ever discovered the ship's passenger list of Robert of Long Island - would certainly be interesting to know when and from where he came, and how close his arrival was to Robert of Wethersfield.

You're doing some vital work on these people, and I for one am immensely appreciative!

Best wishes,

Chris

PS I managed to find some old 10¢ Christmas stamps a few days ago, but you beat me....6¢! I can't imagine how many years those go back - you'd better keep the cancelled ones for stamp collectors! Ha!

Dear Chris:

It certainly seems with all of the evidence on hand that there was a Robert Rose of Conn. and one of L. I. , both having sons John and living approximately the same time. It still puzzles me how the past L. I. historians could have so overlooked their own Robert and accepted the Conn. Robert as their own. Harlan Can't understand it either. There must be some records on him somewhere.

Recently I was at the Princeton Univ. Library where I found the five volumes of the East Hampton Town Records and this is what I discovered:

Vol. I p. 24-25 (book 2 p. 179 of Records)

"John Mulford ffower (four) ackers (acres) vpon the litell plaine be it more or lese bounded with the litell pond east, and Thomas Tomson south and the hie way west and Dorothy Rose on the north".

Dorothy Rose ffower ackers vpon the litell plaine be it more or less bounded with the litell pond east and John Mulford south: and the hie way west and the comon north".

Vol. V p. 495 - Aug. 18, 1752 - baptized Mrs. Roses D.
p. 544 - Oct. 19, 1864 - Thomas D. Rose of East Lynn, Conn. married to Mary T. Cleaves, Wainscott - by Stephen L. Mershon
p. 620 - died June 25, 1832 - Edwin Rose, boarder in town
p. 642 - died Jan. 1870 - Mrs. Hannah Rose, age 85

I was disappointed and surprised in not finding more in these volumes. I'll have to recheck.

Other records at Princeton:

"History of East Hampton, N. Y." - H. P. Hedges - 1897

p. 13 - John Rose. In 1658, Wyandanch, Sachem of Montaukett - plaintiff prosecuted Jeremy Daily, defendent for an injury to his "great cannow" (canoe)

p. 200 - Wyandanch entered action of damage - John Rose testified that when the cannow was brought into the South Harbor it was repaired. Award to plaintiff 10 sh. damage and court charges. (now we are involved with the Indians)

p. 5 - Among the first settlers of East Hampton were Robert Rose.

p. 7 - It is said of the first settlers: Robert Rose, who was the father of Thomas Rose of Southampton, must have died previous to 1665 as appears by the record of conveyance of his lands by his son to George Miller, dated Dec. 19, 1665. (Chris - a copy of this conveyance is enclosed).

Well if not much information at present I am building up sources for the future. More material was sent to my from the East Hampton Library. Same sources as before only in more detail - location in the library of the L. I. Collection material. I have to definitely spend a couple of days there this summer. I have the location of five different L. I. Collections. I think East Hampton will be the largest; also what towns have libraries. Perhaps you have heard of Harriet and Kenn Stryker-Rodda. They are outstanding genealogists in the East and the authors ofmany publications and research projects. Fortunately, they are in a way, godparents of our Genealogy Club. Harriet is president. They know so much it is unbelievable and travel about often. I consulted with them last Saturday and I was told that in the beginning eastern L. I. was practically considered a part of Conn. as settlers would cross the L. I. Sound very easily to the north shore. Eventually they spread westward toward New York City. If you have a map showing L. I. you can see how much closer to Conn. the eastern end is. Herbert Seversmith (deceased) was a noted genealogist and he sometimes collabrated with Kenn Stryker-Rodda; for example "L. I. Genealogical Source Material (a bibliography) both noted as authors. Published by the National Genealogical Society, 1962. I learned also that the correct name of the author of the East Hampton and Southampton profiles, at the East Hampton Library, is Purcell Robertson of Brooklyn. I have written to him for his opinion on the two Roberts and Johns. Hope he answers. K. Stryker-Rodda said he learned all he (P.R.) knows from Seversmith. E. H. Library also sent me a guide to the genealogical material in their L. I. Collection and there is a great deal to check out. I am rechecking the N. Y. Historical Society Collections - Abstracts of Wills. I think I overlooked four volumes last time; I'll check next time. I am also checking for Townsends and there were many, many of them. Guesss that is all for now.

NEWSPAPERS

Bernice Weir sent an index which appears to be from published newspaper but she does not show the title of the book. The index is on p. 62. She also sent copies of various pages from the indexed items. One shows "The Long Islander" Huntington Fri. Nov. 19, 1841 but I do not see what page that is or whether there is a Rose on it. I don't know if she meant that all the items were from that newspaper.

"The Rose family is descended from John Rose who may have been a son of Robert Rose, who was in the town as early as 1644. John is first mentioned in 1660, and purchased a house and lot of john Scott. He died in 1697, and left children John, David, James, Thomas and Martyn. the families of that name now living here are descended from John, who had a son David, whose grandson David (born in 1753 and died in 1836) was a justice and supervisor for many years and few men have been more noted...he was a large landholder, and his estates are still in the family of his son Colonel David Rogers Rose." THE AMERICAN GENEALOGIST Vol. 11

TWO DAUGHTERS OF ANANIAS CONCKLYNE

By CONKLIN MANN, ESQ., of New York City.

Ananias Concklyne of Kings Swinford, County Stafford, glass-maker, and Mary Lander or Launder, spinster, of St. Peter's Parish, Nottingham, were married at St. Peter's 23 Feb., 1630/31. Ananias Concklyne reached Salem, Mass., by 1639, removed to Southold, L. I., about 1650/51 and died at Easthampton between 7 Apr., and 5 Oct. 1657, an itemized inventory of his estate being recorded on the latter date. He had these children of record, the first four probably by his first wife:

- i. Jeremiah, b. cir. 1631/32, g. s. Easthampton, m. Mary Gardner and left issue.
- ii. A daughter, perhaps named Mary, b. say 1633/34, who married by 1654 George Miller of Southold and Easthampton.
- iii. Cornelius, b. say 1635/36, m. and remained at Salem where he d. s. p.
- iv. Benjamin, b. say 1637/38, m. Hannah daughter of Justice John Mulford of Easthampton and left issue.
- v. Lewis, bap. at Salem 30 Apr. 1643, perhaps the child of a second wife named Susan (Susan Concklyne was a member of Salem Church before 1659). He evidently d. y.
- vi. Hester, b. about 1654, evidently the child of a third wife, who was Dorothy, widow of Robert Rose of Easthampton. She m. Capt. Samuel Mulford, eldest son of Justice John Mulford and one of the most important Long Island men of his day.

The order of evidence relating to the daughters of Ananias Concklyne brings up Hester first. In "An agreement made 27 Nov. 1657 between Thomas Baker, Mr. John Mulford and John Hand with the consent of the church, the one party, and Jeremyar Conklin the admr of Ananias Concklin, deceased, the other party, in the behalf of Hester Concklin, the daughter of the said Ananias, deceased, as followeth: That is to say that he the sd Jeremyar Concklin should have £10 out of her portion beinge £30, she beinge young for bringing up the said Hester one yeare and an halfe: and the rest of her portion to be in four cows and beinge put out to ye halfes, he to have the increase in case they did stand and if they did not, then to alow that wch is reasonabell out of the principall for her bringing up till she were eight yeares old."

It should be noted here that, if this statement is accepted exactly as written, it refers to a girl of tender years, say three or four. If however, as several writers have attempted, it is assumed that "eight years" is an error and should be eighteen years, the entire arrangement becomes muddy and ridiculous. The expression "she being young" and the two definite specifications for payments to Jeremiah, i.e. ten pounds for bringing Hester up "one yeare and an halfe" followed immediately by a second stipulation regarding her calves which would carry her keep until her eighth birthday or, in case her cows failed to calve, Jeremiah was to have a further compensation from her portion, would seem to set her age rather definitely.

The only argument for assuming that eight years should have been written eighteen years is based on the theory that Hester soon became the wife of George Miller. Once it is established that she was not Miller's wife, the record noted may be accepted as written.

Easthampton records show that while Jeremiah Concklyne was administrator of his father's estate he received two oxen and 18 pounds for himself and for Hester's portion articles which totalled 20 pounds in value, as agreed.

Easthampton records also contain this entry as of 29 Jan. 1657/58: "Know all men by these presents yt I George Miller of Easthampton being Deputed by the authority of the towne instead of Jeremyah Conklin to be administrator of the estate of my father in law Annanias Conklin, Deceased doe by these prsence bind myselfe etc. in the penall sume of sixty pounds well and truly to pay and discharge all ye Debts and legacies of my deceased father in law in convenient tyme and at such tymes as followeth and as are here prescribed, viz.: all the Debts forth wth to be satisfied and paid: and for ye legacies my brother Jeremiah having his part already paid him, I doe firmly bind as above sd to pay to Cornelius Conklin the full sum of five pounds eighteen shillings and sixe pence upon the first Day of ffebr: in the year 1658 at or in my now dwelling house and to Benjamine Conklin £5-18-6 upon the first of ffebr. 1659: both these beinge the sonnes of Ananias Deceased. And further I bind myselfe to pay to John Rose five shillings forthwith, and to Thomas Rose twenty and fower shillings and 24 shillings a peece to Samuel Rose, Mary Rose and Jonathan Rose, but I George Miller doe firmly promise and ingage yt if I have soe many lambs that I will the pay each of the fower last menconed a good ewe lamb upon the 29th of September wch shall be in the yeare of our Lord Christ 1660: further to pay to my wife beinge the Daughter of Ananias Deceased five shillings upon the true and well performance of all and every of the prmises this obligacon to be voyd and of none effect els to stand and remain in full power force and virtue witnesse my hand this 29 January 1657[58]. The above sd George Miller doth pmise that if there shall att any tyme hereafter appere any more debts to be paid yt then the administrator shall deduct it of from the sevrall legacies to Jonathan Rose beside what is above menconed as also the charge of the authority about this case witnesse my hand." articles mentioned in Ananias Concklyne's inventory except those already distributed to Jeremiah and Hester. In view of the distribution on record to Hester, Miller's mention of five shillings to his wife would seem to establish the fact that she was a daughter other than Hester.

The will of John Mulford signed at Easthampton 9 Dec., 1683, probated Southold 19 Oct., 1686, contains as its second stipulation his bequests to his eldest son Samuel. These bequests take up an entire paragraph which ends with this sentence: "also I give to hester ten shillings and to the three children five shillings apeice."* In later paragraphs the will gives bequests of ten shillings to "my daughter Hanah wife of Benjamin Conckline" and to "youngest daughter Mary wife of Jeremy Miller." The five children of Hannah receive 4 shillings each and the two children of Mary receive five shillings each.

Jeremy Miller was a son of George Miller and by his marriage to Mary Mulford became a brother-in-law as well as a nephew of Benjamin Concklyne and Hester Mulford (born Concklyne). He was slightly younger than his aunt Hester. One would expect to find Capt. Samuel Mulford closely associated in Easthampton records with his brothers-in-law Benjamin Concklyne and Jeremiah Miller, but it is important to note that his closest association was with Jeremiah Concklyne. Most important evidence also is the position of graves at Easthampton. As one faces the gravestone of Jeremiah Concklyne, the stone of "Mrs. Esther Mulford Wife of Capt. Samuel Mulford Who Decd. Novembr. ye 24 1717 in ye 64th Year of Her age" stands directly at the right. The stone of Mary Gardiner, wife of Jeremiah Concklyne, stands at his left. The stone of Capt. Samuel Mulford now stands back to back with that of his wife Esther and it is assumed it was so placed at a comparatively recent date to make room for a monument to the clan Mulford directly in line and next to Esther's stone. Sarah, the second wife of Capt. Samuel Mulford, is buried some yards away next to Fithians and beside Elizabeth the wife of Lewis Conkling, grandson of Jeremiah Conkling.

Samuel Mulford's children of record were: Samuel, b. abt. 1678; Timothy, b. abt. 1681; Elias, b. abt. 1685; and Matthew, b. abt. 1689.

It is obvious that in addition to the four known sons, listed above, Capt. Samuel and Hester (Concklyne) Mulford had another child, born before Nov. 1683, to meet the statement in their grandfather's will. The identity of this child is revealed in the records of New London, Conn., which set forth the marriage on 28 July 1696 of John Christophers to Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Mullford of Long Island. This description identifies her as daughter of Samuel, since he was the only Long Island Mulford then known as Captain. Additional evidence is furnished by the names Samuel and Hester, which Elizabeth (Mulford) Christophers bestowed on two of her children. Lieut. John Christophers died in Barbados, 3 Feb. 1702/3, and in his will appointed four men to administer the Barbados part of his estate; the fourth of these was "Mr. Timothy Mulford." Timothy was son of Capt. Samuel, hence brother-in-law of John Christophers. Capt. Samuel survived his daughter Elizabeth, who probably received her full portion at marriage, and his will names only his sons.*

* The printed abstract of this will in N. Y. Wills, vol. II. fails to show that the small bequests to Hester and the children are part of the paragraph concerned with Samuel.

The legacies which George Miller undertook to pay to the Rose children on behalf of his deceased father-in-law suggest that Ananias Conklin had married their mother and thus become responsible for the portions of the minor Rose children. Robert Rose reached Easthampton by 1648. He was living on 13 May 1651, but by 10 June 1652 his wife Dorothy was a widow. She quickly disappears from the records. The name of Widow Rose appears as assessed on 13 acres in a list of some twenty names made probably between 2 Jan. and 5 Jan. 1654, under the heading, "Charge [Tax] of the meeting house." In an undated entry of the lands of George Miller, there is mention of a 13 acre lot "which lot was first in the hands of Robert Rose and afterward in the possession of Annanyas Conkling, and so derived from him unto George Myller son in law to the aforesaid Ananias." Finally, there is a confirmation deed, dated 19 Dec. 1665, from Thomas Rose of Southampton, son and heir of Robert Rose deceased of Easthampton, conveying to George Miller of Easthampton lands and housing at Easthampton that "doath did or may belong unto mee by vertue of my said father."

Ananias Conkling could hardly have taken over the Rose acreage and become responsible for the portions of the minor Rose children, except by marriage to the widow Dorothy Rose. The eldest Rose child was a girl, who by Oct. 1654 was married to Anthony Waters. She doubtless received her portion at marriage, and she may have been born about 1634. The next child was Thomas Rose, born perhaps 1636. The second son, John Rose, was born about 1638, for on 2 Oct. 1655 he testified that he was 17 years old. The other Rose children were younger.

* Elizabeth (Mulford) Christophers married secondly, 21 Oct. 1706, John Picket, and died 13 Aug. 1720. The printed version of Hempstead's Diary reads: "Mrs. Elizabeth Picket died last night. Seventy, in about 6 hours." This has misled some previous writers. Acceptance of her age as 70 would make her born 1650, with the impossible corollary that she was 46 at marriage to Christophers and 64 when her youngest Picket child was born. Actually, she was born probably about 1676, eldest child of Samuel and Hester Mulford. Hempstead never wrote out his figures, and the word "Seventy" is clumsily placed. It has been suggested that the word was misread and that Hempstead really wrote, "Sudenly, in about 6 hours," meaning that her death was sudden, after an illness of only six hours' duration. Hempstead did use the word suddenly elsewhere in recording deaths.

If Dorothy, therefore, was about 20 when her eldest Rose child was born about 1634, she need not have been over 40 when Hester Concklyne was born. It is difficult to account for the large portion to Hester unless part of Ananias's property came to him by marriage to Hester's mother; and the decease of his last wife around the time of his own death might account for the unusual settlement.

Now as to George Miller. He may have been a brother of John Miller and other Millers in Easthampton. We know that he took over the home lot of Ananias Concklyne when the latter removed from Southold to Easthampton before July 1653. He followed to Easthampton by Feb. 1656/7, for on that date "being late of Southold" he conveyed Southold property to John Tuthill. His name appears many times in Easthampton records. He was killed by a horse early in Dec. 1668. His widow did not remarry, at least for several years, for there are many references to her in the town records.

An undated record of the lands of Benjamin Concklyne includes this item: "A second home lot of six acres being now his home lot did belong unto William Mulford formerly and being by him made over unto the widow Myller, wife of George Miller deceased . . . . and which home lot was freely given and granted by the widow Myller unto Benjamin Conkling her brother but since this gift was as aforesaid the aforesaid Benjamin for some considerations moving him thereunto have promised the widow his sister, that he will hereafter give unto one or other of her sons three acres of land elsewhere." George Miller had three sons of record: i. John, b. cir. 1654 g. s.; ii. Jeremiah, b. cir. 1656 g. s.; and iii. George, b. say 1658.

References to the Conklin, Miller and Rose families, cited above, may be seen in the poorly indexed first volume of printed East Hampton Town Records, pages 14, 25, 66, 116, 121, 239, 458.

Rowley" and "Stella," which he built at Setauket in 1874. The Captain was married, in 1870, to Miss Ellen Miller, a native of Suffolk County, and the daughter of Edwin N. Miller. Five children were born to this union, three of whom are living, Clara M., Mabel E. and Harrold E. While not members of any church, Mr. and Mrs. Davis and children are regular attendants at the Presbyterian Church in Port Jefferson and liberal contributors to all worthy movements. In politics Mr. Davis is a Democrat, but has never aspired to political preferment.

Our subject has been a citizen of Port Jefferson and Miller Place all his life, and takes a more than ordinary interest in their progress and development. He was the instigator of the building of the steamer "Nonowantuc," which plies between Port Jefferson and Bridgeport, Conn., and for six or seven years was its agent. In 1889 Mr. Davis set a movement on foot for the establishment of the bank at Port Jefferson, and this resulted in the organization of the Bank of Port Jefferson. He was made its Cashier, and still holds that responsible position.

CAPT. JETUR R. ROSE. This is the name borne by one of the most distinguished and successful of the many sailors who have been born and bred on the island, and trained to the seas in the hard school of practical experience. Captain Rose was born at North Sea, March 7, 1823, and died exactly seventy years later, full of the honor and respect of men. He was the son of the late Col. David R. Rose, who reached the advanced age of ninety-two. His mother, who bore the maiden name of Mary A. White, bore her husband five children, of whom three grew to maturity. Of these, Emma is a resident of Brooklyn, and is the widow of John Rickard; David H. is a farmer; and our subject has gone to his last resting-place. The husband and father was a noted man in his day, and bore the title of Colonel in the militia service.

Captain Rose was born at North Sea, where he was reared under the instruction of church and school, and was well prepared to go to work when the time came. June 5, 1845, he was married to Miss Caroline, daughter of John and Eunice (Morris) Benedict. She has borne only one child, Emma, whose birthplace is the city of Honolulu, where her mother was with her husband while on one of three whaling voyages. She was brought up on shipboard, under her mother's most careful supervision. When she had become quite a girl she was on the ship at this same city of Honolulu with her parents, who were solicited by a missionary to leave her on shore that she might have the advantage of the mission schools. The mother declined, preferring to have her child enjoy her own care and teaching. The missionary asked the little one what she knew, and received the reply that she knew the multiplication table and the Ten Commandments. Surely a good foundation for a useful life! The daughter received a better education under her mother's constant care during the many voyages that she made on her father's ship than she would have received in many a fashionable boarding-school. In time she became the comfort and joy of her parents, her father's pride, and a model of womanly excellence.

The Captain was educated at Clinton Academy in East Hampton, which in its palmy days ranked among the first academies of the state. Very soon after leaving school, when he was about twenty years of age, he went to sea for the first time, shipping before the mast on the ship "Caroline," of Greenport, of which his uncle, John Rose, was master. The voyage, which was to the south seas, proved very successful, and he returned in 1845, having been promoted to the position of boat-steerer. His next voyage was on the ship "Illinois," Capt. Daniel Jagger, with whom he also served as boat-steerer. In 1847 he sailed on this same ship as first mate. This voyage lasted three years, and was very successful, even in the height of the whaling season, for the ship brought home over thirty-six hundred barrels of oil. In 1850 he made his fourth voyage, as master of the ship "Washington," of Sag Harbor, being gone over two years. After this he commanded the good ship “Zenas Coffin,” of Nantucket, and made a voyage of three and a-half years, bringing home over three thousand barrels of oil. Subsequently he retired from the sea for several years, but went out again in 1862 for two years as master of the ship “Pacific,” of New Bedford. His last ocean voyage was made in 1865, as master of the ship “Trident,” of New Bedford. This voyage lasted nearly four years, and was highly successful.

Captain Rose then retired from ocean life, and made his home at North Sea, where he had a beautiful home, and led a quiet and useful life. His beloved wife accompanied him on all his later trips, and was his faithful companion on shipboard and shared all his dangers. Perhaps her presence made the sailor husband more careful, but his nature, while bold, was at the same time cautious and careful, and he never lost a ship, though he had often been exposed to very great danger. At one time while in a boat making an examination of the stern of his ship, he was frightfully injured about the head, and was taken on board utterly unconscious. Every one but his true-hearted wife thought him dead, but she had faith that the spark of life was still in him, and she faithfully cared for him, presently restoring him to health. Some of the effects of that injury remained with him as long as he lived.

The Captain had sailed over many seas and the wide oceans, and had visited strange and barbarous lands, but he never yielded to the pernicious habits to which many sailors are prone. Without ostentation and in all humility and modesty, he kept his manhood clean and pure, and walked in the path of Christian life and character. Many a man less exposed to temptation might have rejoiced to have lead as clean and wholesome a life as did this hero of the seas. He had the distinction of having discovered a tract of land in the Arctic Ocean, north of Herald Island, that now bears the name of Wrangell Land.

Captain Leek, of Amagansett, and D. Y. Philips, of Southampton, are the only surviving members of the ship's company of eight officers that sailed with Captain Rose on the occasion of his first voyage on board the “Illinois,” and of all the men with whom he mingled in those adventurous days few there are who are left to tell the story of daring that belonged to that vanished period of our naval and commercial history. Captain Rose was a Trustee of the Sag Harbor Savings Bank, to which position he was elected in 1889, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of his father, Colonel Rose. He died from pneumonia after a seven-days illness, March 7, 1892, and his remains are interred in the North Sea Cemetery. His grave is hallowed by the loving reverence of a great company of friends, who knew him as a generous and open-handed friend and neighbor. He was always ready to do a kind deed, and his name will long abide as that of a true-hearted man, faithful in every walk of life, and always obedient to the highest motives and desires. His widow still resides at the old homestead, in the enjoyment of excellent health, and the evening of her life is made more happy by the society of her only child, who is still at home. In politics Captain Rose was a Republican.

SAMUEL B. GIBSON inherits the energy and perseverance of his Scotch ancestors, and the practical value of shrewdness and discrimination, combined with strict probity, is exemplified in his present prosperous condition. For about five years he has been engaged in the livery and boarding stable business at Bay Shore, and during that time he has made many steady friends and patrons. The establishment is located on Main Street, and the main building is 110x48 feet in dimensions, besides which there are also ample carriage sheds. There is no question but that many who suffer from headache, indigestion and other common troubles would get more good out of healthful outdoor diversions than they can out of drug stores, and of these none is more generally beneficial than driving. A good horse and a comfortable carriage are capable of affording a great deal of enjoyment and doing wonders toward increasing one's appetite and general well-appointed Notary Public, which office he now holds. He is one of the Directors of the Southold Savings Bank, is President of the Pequash Recreation Club of Cutchogue, and for about twelve years was purchasing agent and Treasurer of the Cutchogue Farmers' Club. A man of more than usual ability, he has succeeded far beyond his expectations, and is justly numbered among the leading citizens of the county.

JARVIS C. BAYLIS, manager and bookkeeper at the Ireland Mills, at Amityville, is one of the efficient and capable men who have done their work in making this end of the island the home of a vast and varied population occupied with many cares and labors, but getting on in the world, becoming thrifty and prosperous beyond almost any other region along the coast. Mr. Baylis was born at Melville, September 4, 1836, and was the son of Smith and Jane (Carman) Baylis. The father, who was a native of this island, was a farmer, and died when our subject was only ten months old, leaving, besides him, three older children, all of whom are still living. When our subject was ten years old his mother became the wife of Samuel Ireland. John Ireland, whose sketch appears in this work, is a son of this gentleman.

When our subject had become a little older, he went to New York, and secured a place as clerk in a grocery store, and there he remained until he was twenty years old. He was a capable and efficient worker in that line, and soon after he had reached his twentieth year he struck out for himself as a grocer in Brooklyn. March 4, 1857, he married Miss Martha J. Coutant, who was born in New York, where her marriage occurred. She died in 1867, leaving two children. Henry W., who is a florist in New York, has one son. Mary Caroline married Joshua Heartt, and died in May, 1895, leaving three children.

When our subject lost his wife in 1867 he could not endure the quiet of the store, and in less than a year he sold it out, and began to handle railroad supplies, but retained his home in Brooklyn until 1874. In that city he was married to Miss Lizzie N. Blankley, who was a native of England, coming to this country when she was one year old. She is the mother of three children. John is cashier for the Tenney Company, of New York. Lizzie is the wife of S. P. Hildreth, a lawyer of Amityville, while the youngest child, Frances J., is still at home.

Our subject first began to live in Amityville in 1874, building a residence here, but carried on business in New York for twenty-one years. Desiring, however, to be closer at home, he took his present position. He is a Republican in politics and voted for Lincoln at his first election in 1860. For sixteen years he has been a member of the school board, and taking an active part in building up of good schools and in the erection of ample school accommodations. In the Methodist Episcopal Church he is both Trustee and Steward.

FREDERICK H. ROSE, a well known and influential citizen of the town of Southampton, was born on the farm which his father was engaged in tilling, January 20, 1844, and was the oldest son of Herby S. and Hannah T. Rose. Besides himself there were an elder sister, Sarah; a younger sister, Nannie, and a brother, Charles, who was the youngest of the family. As a boy our subject aided in the work on the farm. He was a strong and sturdy young man when the war broke out, and responding to his country's call in its hour of peril, he enlisted in the One Hundred and Twenty-seventh New York Volunteers, being mustered in as a private in Company K of that regiment, August 25, 1861, at Mozart Hall on Broadway. The company went into camp on Staten Island, and he participated in his first active engagement as a soldier at Wood's Island. Later, ordered into Virginia, he did guard and picket duty, and had the usual experiences of a military life.

The regiment was at White House Landing, and was presently united with the Eleventh Army Corps under command of General Howard, but after the battle of Gettysburg, was transferred to the Department of the South, under command of General Gilmore, and was located at Morris Island (where it had considerable work in the siege of the city of Charleston) from August, 1862, to the same month of the following year. For four months at Morris Island the troops were under fire day and night, and grew quite indifferent to the presence of continual danger. Our subject was then sent on detached duty, away from his regiment, and was on special service at Beaufort, S. C., until March 1, 1865, when he was sent to rejoin his regiment at Charleston. He was then on garrison duty until the last day of June of that year, when the regiment was mustered out of service, and he returned home a corporal, having made a very good and honorable record as a soldier of the Union.

With the return of Mr. Rose to peaceful life, he came back to the farm, which he left when the war began, and resumed the work he had then abandoned. He now has a very neat and attractive place of fourteen acres in the town of Southampton, where he carries on a general and very profitable system of farming. In politics, he is a Republican, and has held several local and responsible public positions at the call of his townspeople. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the Presbyterian Church, and is considered a very honorable and reliable man and citizen of the community. In 1871 he married Miss Sarah A. White, and they have two children, Frederick H. and Emma L.

JOHN E. APPLEBY. Among the public-spirited citizens and well-to-do farmers of Suffolk County we make mention of Mr. Appleby, by far one of the most prominent residents of this section and who is descended from one of the old and honored families of the island. He has always been engaged in the occupation which now claims his attention, and is meeting with success in his ventures in this direction. He was born in the town of Southold April 11, 1865, his parents being John A. and Deborah A. (Jennings) Appleby, also natives of Suffolk County, where they were content to pass their entire lives. They, too, were farmers, and attained a high position among the most prosperous people in their community. The family is of long standing on the island, and its various members have contributed very materially toward the advancement and upbuilding of their respective communities.

From boyhood up to the year 1887 the father of our subject made his home on the estate where John E. is now living. He then took up his abode on a farm located on the main road, where his death occurred September 20, 1891, when advanced in years. Of the parental family four survive, Elizabeth, the wife of Charles G. Corey; Bethia, Mrs. Jesse W. Tuthill; Diligence, Mrs. George H. Smith, and John E., of this history. The father of this household was a firm believer in Republican principles and was an influential worker in his party. In educational affairs he also took a great interest, and represented his district on the board for many years. He was mainly self-made and was widely known and respected throughout the town of Southold. His wife survived until June, 1892, when she, too, passed to the world beyond. She was a devoted member of the Presbyterian Church.

John E. has passed his entire life in the town of Southold, within whose bounds he received a good education in the public schools. This he has later added to by extensive reading and private study. When a boy he was trained by his industrious father in the work of the farm, and it was not strange when he reached his maturity that he concluded to adopt the business for his life occupation.

When ready to establish a home of his own, or December 8, 1886, Mr. Appleby was married to Miss Flora Overton, the daughter of Albert Overton, of the town of Southold, by whose residents he is well known and highly regarded. To our subject and his wife there has been born a daughter, Arlien. Following in the footsteps of his land as Captain Penny. In politics he voted the Republican ticket after the organization of the party. Our subject is likewise a supporter of that party's principles and occupies an honorable and influential position in the community where he was carefully trained to become a useful and upright citizen.

CHARLES E. ROSE, who is one of the prominent business men of Patchogue, was born on property near where his home is now located, on Christmas Day, 1834. As a retail grocer he conducts a good business and is well and favorably known to the people of the village and surrounding country.

The Rose family is an old and honored one of the island and its members are able to trace their ancestry back to one of three brothers who came here many years ago, one locating at Southampton, John making his home in Brook Haven, and the third returning to Connecticut. The late Capt. Austin Rose, of Southampton, was a member of this family. John, above mentioned, located on what is now the site of the village of Brook Haven, where his children and grandchildren were born. Phineas Rose, the grandfather of our subject, came here when a young man and was afterward married to Miss Rusie Smith. He made his home on the property which has descended to our subject and which he now occupies. With his son, Lester Rose, he erected the old house. They became seafaring men and owned the sloop "Lenity," which was used in conveying coal and wood from New York City. On one of the return trips, while off Fire Island Bar, the boat was capsized and the entire crew were drowned. Two of the sailors were seen clinging to the sloop, which was upside down, but the weather was so severe assistance could not be rendered them. On that voyage Captain Phineas and his son were lost. Rumsey Rose, the father of our subject, was the only male survivor of the Captain. He was also known as Captain Rose and was interested in the oyster and fishing business, receiving his supplies from Great South Bay. He lived to be eighty-one years of age, while his good wife, whose maiden name was Temperance Osborne, of Bellport, was in her fifty-sixth year at the time of her death.

Capt. Rumsey Rose was a very public-spirited man and a valuable official. He was very decided in his views, and on one occasion, during an argument with the Sheriff, he held his ground and even went so far as to assault the Sheriff, for which he was arrested and tried. Capt. E. T. Moore says of him that he was one of the most original men he ever knew. Dr. Preston, still living, at the age of eighty-six years, came here at the solicitation of Mr. Rose, as did other prominent citizens. Although the greater part of his early life was spent on the ocean, he became greatly interested in the affairs of his community when settling down to a business career, and as an insurance man he represented many of the best companies in the country.

Charles E. Rose is a well educated gentleman, having attended the schools which convened near his home. When starting out to do for himself he engaged in freighting, transporting goods from Patchogue to the Middle Railroad at Medford Station. This was before the building of the Long Island Road, which did away with this business. During the years in which he was thus employed he never lost a dollar, either in money or goods, although he handled large sums of money turned over to him by George F. Carman, Internal Revenue Collector. After the building of the railroad Mr. Rose continued the stage business for some time, running between the two railroads. He was then made agent for the Long Island Road, holding the position for a period of four years, resigning this in order to enter upon the duties of Postmaster, to which he had been appointed by President Cleveland. When he took charge of affairs they were in a very unsatisfactory condition, but before long Mr. Rose had things running in clock-like order and his services in this direction were greatly appreciated by the people. As we have already inferred, he is a stanch Democrat in politics and on this ticket was elected Town Collector, making many warm friends by the efficient manner in which he managed affairs. It was during a period of hard times when he began his work, and although he accommodated many people who were unable to pay because of no work, and for other good reasons, yet he succeeded in collecting every dollar owing the town, with the exception of a small amount due from two non-residents.

Mr. Rose held the office of Trustee of his town for two years and while in this position was called upon by the baymen of Great South Bay to assist them in stocking the waters with oysters, which had all been caught. With characteristic energy he set to work to do for them what he could, and by borrowing $300 in money he purchased enough seed from the north side to plant in this portion of the bay. This proved of great advantage to the poorer class of people who made their living by catching oysters.

After the expiration of his term as Postmaster, our subject formed a partnership with his son, C. Gunther Rose, and purchased the stock of groceries owned by George D. Girard, and have given this business their undivided attention ever since. They keep on hand every variety of canned fruit and vegetables, besides all kinds of staple and fancy groceries. They are courteous in their treatment of customers, prompt in delivering goods and in this way command a large trade.

Mr. Rose is one of the influential members of his party in this county. He was sent as a delegate to the convention which nominated Samuel J. Tilden for Governor. The latter was a very warm friend of his and on various occasions he visited at his home in Albany. Mr. Rose was also delegate to the convention which nominated Seymour, to whom he gave his support. Through his influence many competent and deserving young men have been enabled to secure good positions. He often takes the stump in support of some prominent public man, among whom he has a very extensive acquaintance, and so convincing are the arguments which he uses that they seldom ever fail of receiving the desired nomination.

Mr. Rose was married in November, 1856, when twenty-one years of age, to Miss Madeline, daughter of Ebenezer Roe, of Patchogue. Their family consisted of five children, two daughters and three sons. The eldest daughter, Henrietta, who was a woman of rare accomplishments and a thorough Christian, died at her home in this village about two years ago; she was the wife of F. T. Powell, a railroad man; C. Gunther Rose, the eldest son, is in business with his father. Phineas Lester is a member of the firm of Rose Brothers, also grocers in this village. Theodosia Bell married Francis Wood, a druggist of Port Jervis, N. Y. Walter Scott is in business with his brother, Phineas L. The sons are all efficient and shrewd business men and are rapidly building up for themselves a name in the business world.

Mr. Rose has been agent of the Merritt Wrecking Company and the Board of Underwriters a great many years and can narrate a great many thrilling and heartrending accounts of disasters. He is a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow and has been Noble Grand of Brook Haven Lodge, No. 80, for two successive terms. Like most of the residents of villages bordering on the water, Mr. Rose is very fond of yachting and fishing. He has a strong desire to cross this continent to the Pacific slope and hopes to realize this in the near future.

CAPT. CHARLES W. RACKETT. When we come to write of this name, we touch three generations, and probably more, of brave seafaring men. They have sailed the seas, faced the stormy winds with untrembling nerves, and held themselves superior to danger and even death. As they sped on their outward voyage they inhaled the odors of spicy lands and fragrant forests far away, and their eyes dilated and their hearts swelled as they sailed the blue seas, and penetrated into strange lands.

Captain Rackett was born in East Marion, March 24, 1833, the son of Charles M. and Betsy Rackett, and is one of two children. His brother, Grant B., is now living in Colorado Springs, to which distant point he removed in 1893, after family consists of five children, two daughters and three sons. He is a prominent member, Trustee and Elder of the Presbyterian Church, to which his wife also belongs.

Mr. Baylis began life with but little education and no financial backing, but has made his own way to a position of social standing and business influence uncommon for any one to hold with so unpromising a start. In December, 1869, he was united in marriage with Miss Cornelia J., daughter of Thomas P. Brush, of West Neck, and a cousin of James M. Brush, of Huntington. They became the parents of five children, of whom the oldest, Lillian M., is at home; Ashton F. died at the age of ten years; Alva M., Sarah C. and Hattie A. are being educated in the schools of this village. In politics Mr. Baylis has always been a Democrat.

HON. ABRAHAM T. ROSE. The annals of Bridgehampton would not be complete without the biographical sketch of Judge Rose, for of the men connected with the local history of this portion of the State he has been among the most prominent. This village was his birthplace, and November 17, 1792, his natal day. He was one of the three sons of Dr. Samuel H. Rose, a native of Bridgehampton and a surgeon in the Revolutionary War.

The boyhood years of Judge Rose were passed at Bridgehampton, and on the completion of his elementary education he entered Yale College in 1810, graduating from that institution four years later. Soon afterward he went to New York City, where he began the study of law under the District Attorney, Mr. Sanford. For three years he devoted himself to his studies and at the expiration of that time returned to Bridgehampton, where he opened an office and commenced the practice of the legal profession. His first official honor was received in 1849, when he was elected County Judge and Surrogate, and in this capacity he served for a term of four years, then was reelected to the same position. Other honors were tendered him as the years went by, but many of these he was obliged to decline owing to ill health. In his political sentiments he was a Republican, firm in his allegiance to that party.

Personally Judge Rose was the possessor of a most refined and cultured taste. He was a discriminating musician, both critically and in execution. He also greatly delighted in open air sports and his guns and dogs were counted among his most prized treasures. Each year he devoted a few weeks to hunting and fishing, and took great delight in these recreations. He also had considerable military experience, having trained under Gov. DeWitt Clinton, and was appointed an officer in the militia. In religious convictions he was a Presbyterian. He was a successful man in his chosen profession, and the honors conferred upon him were but the meed of his ability and integrity. He ended his useful career at an advanced age and peacefully passed away April 4, 1857, at his home in Bridgehampton.

December 31, 1823, Judge Rose was united in marriage with Miss Eliza Van Gelder, daughter of Abraham Van Gelder, who at one time served as Mayor of New York City. She was born there, and died in Bridgehampton the same year as that in which her husband's death occurred. Of their children the following attained maturity: Matilda; Mary, who married George Downing; Samuel, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City; Adelaide, wife of Charles A. Trowbridge; Caroline, who married Richard Wright; Eveline, deceased, and Antoinette, widow of Richard Esterbrook, who was the founder of the Esterbrook Steel Pen Company.

Richard Esterbrook was by birth an Englishman, born in 1836, and came to America when fourteen years of age. For a few years he engaged in business at Camden, N. J., but in 1880 he established himself at Bridgehampton and successfully conducted a large business until the time of his death, which occurred in 1892. Through his energy and sagacious judgment he not only accumulated large means, but also gained a wide reputation throughout the country. He and his wife were the parents of two children, namely: Rose, who is the wife of Dr. C. S. Carter, of New York City, and Frank, who at this writing is on a voyage to Japan.

EDWARD WHITE. The best known "boniface" of Cold Spring Harbor is he whose name introduces this sketch. Besides being the proprietor of "The Village House," he is the owner of extensive bottling works in this town. Mr. White was born January 20, 1851, and is a son of Seldon and Phoebe Ann (Horton) White. He is one of a family of seven children, all of whom still survive. They are by name Daniel, William, Edward, Mary Ann, Susan, Elizabeth and Ella. The first named is married and has one child; the second is the father of two children; Mary is now Mrs. George W. Raynor and the mother of one child; Susan married Samuel Blauvelt and is the mother of one child; Elizabeth is Mrs. George Green and has two children; Ella married George Heathley and has four children.

Seldon White was a native of Cold Spring Harbor, born in 1819, his parents being Carroll and Susan (Rogers) White. He grew to manhood in the place of his nativity and learned the carpenter's trade, which he has followed for a livelihood ever since. Although now (1895) seventy-six years of age, he is hale and hearty, and looks many years younger than the records prove him. Grandfather Carroll White was a native of West Hills and was born in the eighteenth century, being a son of Israel and Rhoda (Blatsley) White. Israel was a farmer by occupation, but the records show little else regarding his life.

Edward White attained manhood under his father's roof. He attended the common schools of his native place and received a good education. On leaving years of adolescence, he apprenticed himself to learn the carpenter's trade, and devoted eight years to that employment. In 1878 he gave up that work and became interested in the bottling business. Some three years later he opened an hotel known as "The Village House," which he has since run in connection with his bottling business. During the fourteen years of his proprietorship his hotel has become a popular hostelry.

July 4, 1875, Mr. White married Miss Eliza J., daughter of Benjamin and Phoebe (Wall) Archer. They have been the parents of four children, three of whom are living. They are: Franklin E., who was born March 2, 1877; Thomas Seld[illegible] arch 27, 1879; and Gracie Winifred, [illegible] born January 27, 1882. Mr. White finds congenial affiliations in the Democratic party, both as to men and to principles, and he now holds the office of Deputy Sheriff.

J. HENRY PERKINS, of the village of Riverhead, is one of the foremost and most popular men of Suffolk County, of which he has been Sheriff and Treasurer. He was born one mile west of the village of Riverhead April 8, 1839, and was the younger of two sons born to John Perkins. The latter was of English birth, and a more complete study of his life and character will be found in connection with the sketch of John R. Perkins, a brother of the subject of this article, which appears elsewhere in this work.

Our subject was educated in the common schools of the county and started in life as a clerk in the store conducted by his brother. In 1860 he was taken in as a partner in this commercial establishment, which has become of great importance under their continued care. They do a large clothing business and supply about all the life-saving stations on Long Island with clothes. Aside from this business he is interested with his brother and his brother-in-law, T. M. Griffing, in many of the leading enterprises of the place, among them the water works and the elec-

ROSE FAMILY.

Deacon Stephen Rose of Bridgehampton was of opinion that the families of this name on the east end of Long Island are descended from a John Rose who he thought was old enough to be a brother of Robert Rose, to be soon mentioned. He thought he had seen a paper in the records of the town whereby land was assigned to such a John. I believe he was mistaken. Robert Rose of Wethersfield in 1639 came in the Francis from Ipswich, co. of Suffolk in 1634, aged 40, with w. Margery 40 and ch. John 15, Robert 15, Elizabeth 13, Mary 11, Samuel 9, Sarah 7, Daniel 3 and Dorcas 1. He removed soon to Stratford and thence probably to Southampton in 1644, where he had a grant of land Mch. 6, 1644–5. His name is on the list of whaling squadrons in Mch. 1644–5, but no John is mentioned so far as I can ascertain until 1657, when he is an inhabitant of North Sea. Robert removed to East Hampton probably about the time of its settlement in 1648, and subsequently to Westchester Co., N. Y. His son Robert removed to Branford with a few others about the same time when Rev. Mr. Pierson went there, and his third son Samuel went to Newark, New Jersey and left two daughters. The youngest son Thomas born on Long Island inherited his father's homestead in East Hampton and finally sold it and removed. This leaves only John and Daniel to be accounted for. Of the latter I find no trace whatever. John, if I am correct, was the John of North Sea in 1656, and from whom are descended all of the name in Southampton.

Seventeen coats of arms of different families of this name are described in Burke's General Armory.

Following my theory of the American origin of this family.

A True List &c.

ISAAC PLATT
PLATT CONCKLIN
ALEXR BRYANT.

I rechecked the 1749 item; he was not a witness as I was thinking, but was named in the will of Thomas Brush:

The will of Thomas Brush of Amwell, Hunterdon County, New Jersey, yeoman, dated 13 April 1749, gives to wife Martha 1/3; also L-80 due Ezekiel Rose; he also gives to son Phillip, mentions son Eliphalet, son Abner, daughters Elizabeth Scidmore, Abigail Killsey, Sarah, Martha and Mary Brush. [Cal. of Wills 1730-1750, N. J. Col. Docs., Vol. -?. pp. 70-71 [poss. Vol. II].

I wonder if there is any particular significance attached to this Brush; the name Eliphalet is a L.I. name.

Petticoat WHALERS

BY JOAN DRUETT

Snow was falling on Christmas Day, 1826, as a young man strode along Fulton Street to the South Street docks of lower Manhattan. His name was Will Latimer, he was a carpenter by trade, and he was off to sea for adventure. The ship Will had signed up for was the Dawn, one of New York City's tiny ten-fold whaling fleet, bound on a voyage to the Indian Ocean and Pacific. Her master was a Capt. Gardner, a seasoned Nantucketer who had piloted the Dawn beyond the Cape of Good Hope at least twice before. Nonetheless, a Pacific whaling voyage was a formidable proposition.

Whaleships were rough and ready, and whaling crews—the hard-drinking complement that made up the crew of the whaleship Dawn being no exception—even tougher. Uncharted reefs and unknown shoals lay in wait in the Indian and Pacific Oceans, along with warlike natives and savage typhoons. And yet, when Will Latimer arrived on board, he found that Captain Gardner's wife was embarking on this adventure, too.

In that year of 1826 it was highly unusual to find a respectable woman on board a whaling vessel. A few commanders of men-of-war had carried their wives to sea, along with a few merchant captains, but very few of these so-called "hen frigates" had been whalers. The girls of Nantucket, New Bedford, and Long Island married their whalemen and then resigned themselves to extended periods of separation while their menfolk roamed the vasty seas on voyages that could easily last for two or more years.

For women of that era, there were very good reasons for staying at home. Houses, businesses, children, and elderly parents all needed to be cared for; farms had to be managed; bills paid and tradesmen hired. According to popular belief, women were ordained by heaven to look after the house and family, while men forayed outside for the wherewithal to keep the home fires burning. And the Pacific Ocean, being about as far as any human male could foray, was most definitely masculine territory.

And yet Mrs. Gardner sailed — one of a number of nineteenth-century women who chose to leave the safety of home for the perils of the sea. Mrs. Gardner's voyage, like those of other "petticoat whalers," proved to be a formidable experience. In the South China Sea the crew was laid so low with scurvy that it was impossible to tack the ship. When landing on some exotic shore to stock up on life-saving fresh fruit and vegetables, the ship's boat hit a reef and "the old woman came near drowning," according to Will Latimer's journal. "I took her up and haul [sic] her up the cliff," he wrote with casual gallantry.

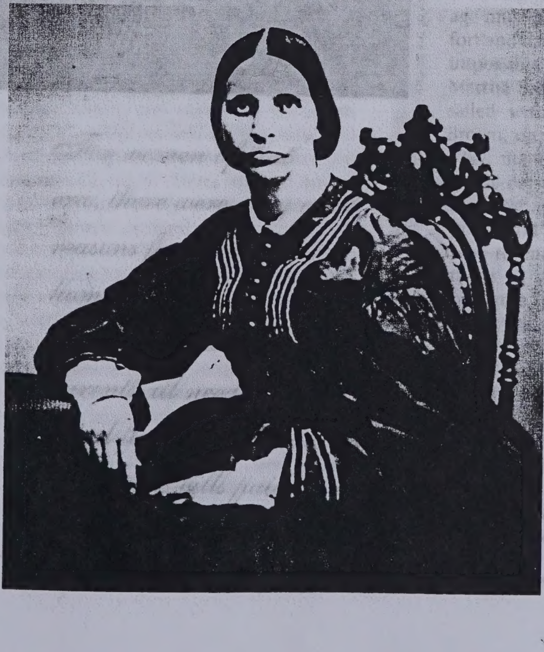
Given such hazards and discomforts, it would not be surprising, therefore, if very few women could be found who were willing to follow Mrs. Gardner's example. Yet, as the nineteenth century drew on, increasing numbers of masters' wives embarked on whaling voyages, and at least twenty of those intrepid ladies hailed from the State of New York, most from Long Island.

Most — such as Maria Brown Green, who embarked on a thirty-two–month Pacific cruise with her husband, Barney, and their small daughter, Justina, on the Ontario in August 1845 — voyaged on Sag Harbor ships. This was only natural, for Sag Harbor was the fourth largest whaling port in the world at that time, with a fleet of more than sixty ships. At least nine wives hailed from Cold Spring Harbor, however. A few more sailed on Greenport vessels; and there were even some who cruised on "New Bedforders." The legendary Caroline Rose of Southampton



Martha Brown, who sailed in 1847 aboard the Lucy Ann with her husband Edwin Peter, opposite, made a note in her husband's personal log, above, declaring her disinclination to ever go to sea again. One reason may have been a mid-voyage pregnancy which required her to spend several months on Hawaii awaiting the birth of a son while her husband continued the journey.

voyaged on a Nantucket whaler, becoming one of a very select sorority.

Whatever the port of origin, the decision to sail was a hard one. All kinds of grave responsibilities, often including small children, had to be left behind. Many a wife must have felt her heart quail when she first took up residence in the after quarters of the ship, for whalers were cramped and spartan, being less than one hundred feet long and yet having to accommodate a large crew of about thirty men.

The only private space that belonged to the captain's wife was the narrow stateroom she shared with her husband and any children they might take on the voyage, along with a tiny (six feet by eight feet) after cabin, or sitting room, set across the transom, which held a great sofa and a chart table and chair. Meals were eaten in a mess room called the forward cabin at a big table shared with the three or four mates, who were often not very cultivated men. And it must be remembered that Pacific whalers did not steer for home until each and every barrel in the capacious hold was full. Carolyn Lowen, who sailed from Sag Harbor with her second husband, Captain James Madison Tabor, for a "honeymoon cruise" on the whaleship Augusta on July 24, 1857, did not arrive home until January 19, 1861.

Every wife who agreed to go on a voyage must have been aware of the discomfort and dangers that lay ahead, but it was impossible to predict every last challenge. Martha Brown of Orient, New York, who sailed with her husband, Edwin Peter Brown, on the Lucy Ann of Greenport in 1847, managed to be reasonably content at sea, bolstered by her faith in God and her love for her husband. "If quince groves and moon light nights are incentives to make love, surely moon light nights on ship bord [sic] are doubly so," she wrote in her journal on October 18, 1847. Alas, the "moon light nights" had their natural effect. In April 1848, Martha found herself on shore in Honolulu, left amongst strangers, to cope with an inconvenient pregnancy. Her husband did not get back until November when he found her with a two-month-old son.

Another to find herself in this uncomfortable situation was Emmeline Hallock Winters of Sag Harbor. On July 23, 1848 at the age of twenty-nine, she sailed with her husband Captain Jonas Winters on the Elizabeth Frith. The whaleship was quite a family venture, for two of Emmeline's brothers-in-law, Charles and Silas Winters, were among the crew, and so the departure from Long Wharf was an emotional occasion. According to an account in the Sag Harbor Express, the pilot boat that accompanied the ship out of the harbor was crowded with a large party of friends, who sang songs of farewell and offered prayers for the success of the voyage, while a Bible was presented to the captain's wife.

Despite this bright and hopeful start, the voyage did not go well. The Elizabeth Frith arrived at Honolulu on February 20, 1849, shorthanded, four of the men having stolen one of the boats and deserted. Emmeline Winters was put on shore there, being "in circumstances," and — like Martha Brown in the same place the year before — waited as comfortably as she could for the birth of a son, Clarence Madison, her second child.

Meanwhile, Captain Jonas Winters proceeded to the icy Arctic Ocean, meeting up with another brother, Philander, who was in command of the Richmond of Cold Spring Harbor. In August the Richmond went aground in a dense fog and was lost. The officers and crew managed to escape to land, and were kindly treated by the Indians. Eventually, Philander arrived on board his brother's ship, but died on the passage from the Straits to the Sandwich Islands. Emmeline did not hear of the calamity until October, when the Elizabeth Frith arrived back in port.

Other wives were even more directly involved in similar tragedies. After two years of voyage on the whaling bark Courser of New Bedford, Captain Eli White of Cold Spring Harbor and his wife (given name unknown) found themselves stranded on the west coast of South America after their ship had been run down by the steamship Ytata and wrecked. According to the New Bedford Whalemen's Shipping List for March 10, 1874, Eli stopped behind to press for damages from the steamship company while his wife journeyed home on a guano ship.

On June 27, 1855, the Nantucket whaling wife Eliza Brock noted in her journal on the Lexington that the Edgar of Cold Spring Harbor had been wrecked and that Mrs. Samuel Pierson had fallen overboard while being rescued and "was taken on board ship Montazuma [sic] insensible; is now very sick, had not spoken for three days." The previous day, Mrs. Brock had noted the loss of another ship from a New York port, the Jefferson of Sag Harbor. The ship, she noted, had been lost in the fog, "all saved, Mrs. Hunting [sic], Captain's wife, was with him. So much bad news makes me feel sad," Eliza added.

As it happens, this last report was wrong, for it was the Jefferson of New London that was wrecked, and another wife, Mrs. James Williams, who survived that particular ordeal. One feels confident that had it been her husband's ship that had run ashore, Mrs. Huntting would have been in good hands, for Captain James Huntting of Sag Harbor was famous for his resourcefulness. One story involved a medical emergency. American whalers did not routinely carry a surgeon on board, so the master was the man in charge of the medicine chest. Accidents were common and treatment was primitive, often involving amputations. Captain James Huntting once treated a man who had lost the major portion of one hand and all of one foot in a whaleline. The captain cleaned up the wounds with a carving knife, a carpenter's saw, and a fish hook. The crew had to take turns assisting him, for they kept fainting on the job.

In a less onerous, but no less risky, procedure, when Roxanna Stewart Fordham Green of Sag Harbor gave birth to a baby girl on the Cold Spring Harbor ship Sheffield during the Arctic whaling season of 1858, her husband, Captain Henry Green, had to act as midwife. It must have been nervewracking indeed, especially considering that Roxanna was fifty-two years old.

Caroline Rose, wife of Captain Jetur Rose of Southampton managed better timing. When she sailed on the Zenas Coffin, Caroline arrived in Honolulu just in time to give birth to a daughter on January 23, 1856. Then, when Captain Rose had finished reprovisioning, she and baby Emma arrived back on board. Known as the "Belle of Southampton" before her marriage, Caroline Rose had been celebrated for her perfect manners as well as her brilliance and good looks. Life on board a whaler must have presented quite a contrast to life back home, particularly in the area of social niceties. Jetur Rose was certainly a forthright old customer. Emma, the daughter born in Honolulu, would reminisce later in life about the time the crew came aft to register a complaint about the quality of the food. Arguments concerning the "grub" were commonplace on the old whalers, but one of the men, "a great burly fellow," went one step further than most on this occasion, by hefting a cask of butter and throwing it overboard. Captain Rose meted out his brand of rough justice on the spot: He stepped forward, picked up the complainant, and tossed him overboard after the butter. This wasn't quite enough to quell the uprising, so Captain Rose clapped fifteen of the crew into irons. Then off they sailed, while "the mutineers, below, prayed and cried to be let loose." Finally, the rebels were released, and gave no more trouble for the rest of the voyage.

The only private space that belonged to the captain's wife was the narrow stateroom she shared with her husband and any children they might take on the voyage, along with a tiny "after cabin," or sitting room, set across the transom, which held a great sofa and a chart table and chair.

Captain Jetur Rose's brand of discipline came in handy another time, when he rescued Captain Robert Jones and his wife (given name unknown) of the bark Concordia from a particularly bloody mutiny in the 1868 Arctic whaling season. Because the masters and wives of both ships hailed from Long Island, they were sailing in company. According to Emma Rose's later account, her father was shaving early one morning when he heard a cry for help from over the water. Running on deck with his face half-covered with lather, he instantly discerned the situation, and called for a boat and crew.

Arriving on board the Concordia, Rose was greeted with a hail of bricks and the nasty sight of the first officer lying in a pool of blood. The mutineers were in control of the whole ship, save for the quarter deck, which was being defended by the second mate with an axe, the cabin boy with a walrus gun, and Captain Jones, armed only with his bare fists. Mrs. Jones and her child were out of sight, hiding below in the cabin.

The mutineers attacked, one grabbing Captain Jones, who pulled away, leaving his coat sleeve behind. The walrus gun flashed, and Captain Jones's attacker dropped dead. Instantly, before the mutineers could make another rush, Captain Rose grabbed up the corpse and tossed it overboard with such dramatic effect that the crew abandoned their weapons.

Caroline Rose was proof that the wives of Long Island could be as resourceful as their spouses. Despite such horrible experiences, she accompanied her husband on all his voyages, and never betrayed any hesitation about taking Emma along, too. The lady missionaries they met along the way were not so certain of the propriety of the situation and on one occasion in Honolulu, one of their band approached Caroline with the suggestion that it would be far better for the child to be left on shore at the local mission school, "as nobody on a whaler ever knew anything."

Caroline's response to that assertion was to look the woman up and down without comment and then call Emma inside. "Child," she said to her little daughter, "tell this lady what you know."

"Well," Emma told interviewer Jeannette Rattray in an interview later in her life, "I ran up and made a little curtsy and said, I know the Ten Commandments and the multiplication table." This display of composure was obviously "enough for any little girl." The mission woman, confounded, made her excuses and left.

Marie Cartwright of Shelter Island, who married Captain Smith Baldwin in 1845 when she was twenty-three years old and then sailed with him on the Roanoke as a bride, coped with sea life in surprisingly modern fashion, learning to handle the ship so well that she took over the helm when tacking. She bore her first child at St. Helena, delaying the voyage only ten days. The child was christened Eleanor Carroll (after the American consul's wife) in the Episcopal church, and then Maria and her baby returned on board, collecting up a goat and a few hens for nursery use on the way. Little Eleanor learned to walk on board ship, and then had to learn to walk all over again when she finally arrived on land.

Equally resourceful was Carolyn Lowen Tabor of Sag Harbor. According to a journal kept by seaman Joseph T. Sampson on the Congress on January 18, 1858, the Congress spoke to the Augusta of Sag Harbor and found the captain's wife in charge. Captain James Madison Tabor, along with most of his crew, was off in the boats a-whaling, and had been out of sight of the ship for a rather long time. When Captain John Hamblin hailed the Augusta, he was answered by Mrs. Tabor who invited him aboard. Captain Hamblin carried his wife, Maria, and so quite a little social scene ensued, which must have seemed surprisingly homelike, particularly in view of the fact that they were in the middle of the ocean.

The conversation, however, was unusual. Had Captain Hamblin seen anything of the Augusta boats? Yes, indeed he had, a day or so before. And so, Captain Hamblin was asked very politely if he would be kind enough to navigate the Augusta to her whaleboats ... and thus, Captain James Madison Tabor and his wife were reunited.

The voyage of the Augusta marked the twilight of New York whaling. In 1859, while Carolyn was still roaming the wide

The woman being rowed out to a waiting vessel, above, doubtless had mixed feelings about leaving terra firma. Mid-voyage shore visits might be accomplished with the aid of a gamming chair, depicted, left, in a film re-creation. Agile women did not need the chair, but when it was used, it conveyed the passenger into a boat still hanging from its davits; not into a boat bobbing in the water as shown here.

Pacific, a new source of lamp oil was being mined commercially for the first time from beneath the earth in Titusville, Pennsylvania. In a very short time, petroleum would eliminate the demand for whale oil — and the need for whaling.

Along with the end of whaling came the end of that brief period during which whaling wives joined their husbands on shipboard. In those few years, however, they exhibited enough tenacity, courage, resourcefulness, and originality, to provide tales for the telling for years to come.

Dear Christine:

Here is the story on Jetur and ~~Caroline~~ Caroline Rose, and you need not return it - there is nothing in it relevant to the Frisbie family.

There are pictures of Jetur and Caroline on p.37 of ~~#~~ "THE SAILING CIRCLE", a pamphlet by JOAN DRUETT, PO Box 2007, ORIENT, N.Y. 11057-2007. She is doing a book on whaling wives and might even have some information as to JETUR's origin.

And now I have a question on my own - were the names NANCY and ANNIE once used interchangeably?

We ~~have~~ have just discovered a family of three sisters who are not in the Genealogy.

#1 is SARAH A. FRISBIE, b. 1819. She m. whaling captain SLUMAN GRAY, and it is in researching her history that I came across the ROSE story.

#2 is MAHALA FRISBIE, b. 1823, who m. ASHER ATKINSON, and on whom we have some information.

#3 is ANNIE E. FRISBIE, on whom we have very little data. We have no dates. We know that she taught in a prestigious school in New York, and married JOHN R. HUNT in 1867.

However, in the 1850 census I find a NANCY FRISBIE, age 14, living in the household of MAHALA ATKINSON, and in the 1860, NANCY E. FRISBIE, age 23, occ. C. S. teacher, still living with MAHALA.

I am inclined to think that NANCY E. is identical with ANNIE E. Weight is added by the fact that in the 1840 census for their father, there is a female child in the under-5 age category. This child, b. 1835-1840, could be the Nancy age 14 in the 1850 census.

I realize that similarity of names is not enough for proof, but it looks like a strong possibility.

Congratulations on your new book. You certainly have accomplished a lot

Best love
Nora

39 MAJOR STEPHEN BURROWES, son of Stephen Burrowes, 12, succeeded to the homestead. He married Hannah, sister of John Carpenter, the Ruling Elder.

58 Harriet Burrowes; married Ralph H. Smith.

46 RACHEL BURROWES, daughter of John Burrowes, 18, of Middletown Point, N. J., was born September, 1751, and died Aug. 22, 1840. She married Dr. Thomas Henderson, in January, 1778, who was born, at Freehold, in 1743. He died, Dec. 15, 1824, aged 81 years. Both he and his wife, Rachel, are buried in Tennent Churchyard.

Dr. Henderson had previously been married to Mary Hendricks, grand-daughter of William Wikoff, who died shortly after her marriage. Dr. Henderson was a noted physician of Monmouth County, and a most eminent patriot, in the Revolutionary period, and afterward constantly employed in the public service, as Surrogate, Member of the Legislature, Judge, etc., etc.

"Dr. Henderson was the single horseman who notified Washington of Lee's retreat. Dr. Henderson was a good man and would have been much shocked had Washington swore, and doubtless would have told it to his family. He merely said Washington was much excited. Dr. Henderson took Mr. Bruen, his son-in-law, and showed him the spot. Gov. Parker described it wrongly. It was near the gate of Halsey Sutphen, nearly opposite the residence of the late Rev. Mr. Cobb. Dr. Henderson was present when Lee came up."

From Mrs. Judge Conover, of Marlboro, N. J.

Rachel Burrowes was a bright, little child, much bored by being taken too frequently to church. On one occasion her mother rebuked her for her restlessness in the church, and told her if she did not do better she could not come again. Nothing more was said till they were out of Old Tennent, when turning about and facing the old church, she courtesied deeply several times, and said, "Good bye Mr. Tennent church, good bye," hoping no doubt to convey to her mother the idea that what was thus engendered might be realized.*

CONKLIN OR CONKLING FAMILY

THE FIRST Conklin or Conkling (the name is spelled both ways) to settle in East Hampton was Ananias, born in Nottinghamshire, England about 1600. He came to Salem, Mass. in the 1630's with his brother John, perhaps there were other brothers, but certainly John was there. Ananias Conkling is recorded as a member of the First Church in Salem in 1639. The brothers were glass-makers by trade. They were first to manufacture window glass and bottles in New England. They were granted house lots in Salem. Ananias was granted, 1638, a ten-acre plot for a glass factory; this was still known, long afterward, as "Glass House Field." Ananias was made a freeman of Salem on May 18, 1642.

They left New England for Long Island probably late in 1649, John founding a family in Southold, later moving to Huntington about 1660. Ananias obtained an allotment of land in East Hampton, settling here about 1650. Jeremiah, oldest son of Ananias, was one of the first four settlers of Amagansett shortly after 1690. The house he built there is still standing, and was sold 1950 to Mrs. Donald Lamb. Amagansett has been called, facetiously, "Conklinville."

Historians will differ on some points, after 300 years. Chauncey L. Ditmars, Babylon Town Historian, wrote in 1936 about the Huntington Conklins, calling the first settler of that name there "Robert." Frank J. Conkling, writing in 1894, called the first Conklin in Huntington "John." Still another genealogist, Joseph I. Conklin, Jr., stated that there was a third brother named Cornelius who remained in Salem, died there 1667 leaving a widow who later married Robert Starr.

ANANIAS CONKLING 1* b. abt. 1600 in England, d. 1657 in E.H.; he m. Mary Lavender Feb. 26, 1630/31 in St. Peter's Parish, Nottingham, England; ch. Jeremiah 2 b. 1634 d. March 14, 1712; Cornelius 2 b. 1636, Benjamin 2 b. 1638 d. 1709, Lewis 2 bapt. April 30, 1643, Jacob 2 bapt. May 18, 1649, Elizabeth 2 bapt. May 18, 1649, Hester 2 (who m. George Miller) and perhaps Joan 2.

*Ananias Conkling is thought to have owned property later C. P. B. Jefferys' and now divided by Jefferys Lane. The book "Lineal Ancestors of Susan (Mulford) Cory," Vol. 3, Part 1, p. 49, states that Esther, first wife of Capt. Samuel Mulford, was probably daughter of Ananias Conkling by his third wife, whom he married when she was the widow of Robert Rose; and that the daughter was about 4 years old. Since he had a daughter Hester, only about six years old when he died, who is thought to have married George Miller, that seems unlikely. The writer has no proof of any marriage but the first; but there may have been others.

JEREMIAH 2* (s. of Ananias 1) b. 1634 d. March 14, 1712, m. Mary, eldest dau. of Lion Gardiner, 1658; she b. at Saybrook, Conn. Aug. 30, 1638, d. E.H.

Dear Christine, 9 Oct. 1984

This is from East Hampton History, by J. Rattray, sent to me by the librarian of the East Hampton Free Library in Long Island. It concerns the ancestors on my mother's side. I thought perhaps this Robert Rose is one that might interest you.

I hope the Colorado conference was successful and all you hoped for.

Henrietta told me something new on Rebecca, wife of Henry: her birth date in Cadiz, O and her parents' names, also from Cadiz. Nothing new on Robert and Sophie or Sarah Beabout or Gardner, however.

Regards to you & Seymour from Josine and

Harold

Some years ago - in 1975, I believe, - Kate W. Strong handed me a number of items pertaining to the Udall family. Kate is related by a blood line, as Dr. Richard Udall of Islip (meaning Islip town - he actually lived in West Islip) was a great grandfather. The doctor's daughter, Cornelia, was the wife of Kate's grandfather, Selah Brewster Strong.

EAR-MARKS BROOKHAVEN TOWN - 1790

In the vault at Suffolk County Historical Society is a small leather book, about 4" by 6½" in rather bad repair. Within the pages of this old book is a wealth of information concerning families and their valuable possessions. With this information a devoted genealogist can glean a great deal of information about relatives from the past. All of this information is on file and genuine.

A short note accompanies this little book from Selah B. Strong to the Rev. William B. Holcombe, and it is as forrows:

Selah B. Strong
The Cedars
Setauket, L.I. N.Y.

Oct. 30, 1925

Rev. William B. Holcombe,

My dear Mr. Holcombe.

Your letter would have reached me sooner, had it not been directed to the "Hon." My nephew, the Judge, claims all letters so directed.

I am enclosing the book of Marks. The Benjamin Strong who sent the book to my grand-father was a merchant in New York, President of the New York Sugar Refining Co., 1833-37, President of the Seaman's Savings Bank, 1834-51. He was also Great-grandfather to the present President of the National Reserve Bank.

Yours very cordially,

Selah B. Strong

Although this may imply the middle given name was something of a modern development, it must be pointed out that children of the nobility were given multiple names in the Middle Ages. But this privilege was reserved to them only by royal decrees, and the common man had to get along with only one name for many centuries. Even earlier, certain men in the Roman Empire were entitled to use three or more names as might be bestowed on them by marriage, political favor or feats of valor. Certain ethnic groups such as the Dutch and Germans in colonial America followed some unique customs in the use of middle names.

In early England, middle names were rare and those found are mostly either whimsical or served a special purpose such as that of Edward Posthumus Hobby indicating his birth after the death of his father Edward. Any other use, however, seems to have engendered disdain as Anthony Ashley Cooper the first Earl of Shaftsbury, born 1621, was contemptuously referred to by his detractors as "that two-named man".

Strange as it may seem today when a middle name is considered essential, only four of the 49 generals in the Continental Army of the Revolution had middle names. Even they were an exclusive group, for only three of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence had middle names. John Quincy Adams was the first president to have a middle name, and of the 37 presidents, only 20 had a middle name. Perhaps it's just as well, for some of the patriotic flavor might be dimmed if we had to celebrate the birthdays of George Theophelius Washington and Abraham Ichabod Lincoln.

[FINIS]

The penmanship of the Rev. Mr. Fanning is not the best although it is quite neat in appearance. The distinction between similar letters was very difficult. The capital letters in particular were very hard to read. We would appreciate hearing from anyone who can substantiate or correct entries, in particular we are interested in the years 1901-1903 or 1891-1893 on the previous page. Thank-you.

Rose

IN 1639 Robert Rose came in the ship "Francis" from Ipswich, county of Suffolk, England, aged forty years, with his wife Marjory, aged forty years, and children—John, aged fifteen; Robert, fifteen (apparently twins); Elizabeth, thirteen; Mary, eleven; Samuel, nine; Sarah, seven; Daniel, three, and Dorcas, one. He settled in Wethersfield, Connecticut, but removed to Stratford. In 1644 he appears in Southampton, Long Island, and a grant of land was made to him March 6, 1644-5, and his name appears in the list of "Whaling Squadrons" in March, 1644. He removed to East Hampton at the time of its settlement in 1648. He died there before 1652, as in that year five acres of land were granted to Dorothy Rose (evidently his second wife and widow), "in the Little Plain, bounded east by Little Pond, south by John Mulford, west by highway and north by Commons."

On January 29, 1657, George Miller, "son-in-law of Annanias Conkling," agrees "to pay all debts and legacies of Annanias Conkling," among them to John Rose five shillings, to Thomas Rose twenty-four shillings, and twenty-four shillings each to Samuel Rose, Mary Rose and Jonathan Rose. From this we conclude that those were the surviving children of Robert Rose, Jonathan, having been born since his arrival in this country. On December 19, 1665, "Thomas Rose of Southampton, in New England, planter, being lawful son and heyre to Robert Rose, late of East Hampton," makes over to George Miller all claim to house and lands of Robert Rose.

sic

John Rose, who was probably the second son, married Abigail, who was a sister of Anthony Waters, one of the earliest settlers of North Sea, in the town of Southampton, and this accounts for the fact that John Rose removed to North Sea, where his descendants are yet to be found.

Thomas Rose, the eldest son, settled at Watermill, in Southampton. His homestead was on the south side of the main country road.

Of Samuel Rose we have no further knowledge. Jonathan Rose, the youngest son, removed to the town of Brookhaven and was the ancestor of the families of the name in that town. The will of Daniel Rose (who was probably his grandson), September 9, 1760, mentions wife Mary, and children Daniel, James, Caleb, and daughters not named.

He gave to his son, John Rose Jr. three acres of the south part of his house lot, and other lands April 5, 1686. The name of William Rose appears on a tax list of 1694, but not later. V. COLONEL EDWIN ROSE, son of Dr. Rufus Rose, was for long years one of the most distinguished men of the town of Southampton. He was born at his father's home near Bridge Hampton, January 14, 1807. After the usual preliminary education he was appointed a cadet to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, entering in June, 1828, and graduated in the class of 1830. He was at once commissioned and assigned to duty in the Third Artillery, U. S. A. His first duty was at Fort Trumbull, New London, Connecticut. During seven years of service in the regular army he was stationed at Charleston Harbor, under General Winfield Scott, at the time of the nullification troubles. He was also at Fort Dearborn, the site of the present city of Chicago, and was with the army during the Black Hawk war, and was present at the capture of the Indian chieftain. With a battalion of his regiment he was actively engaged in the Seminole war. He was later detailed as topographical engineer and surveyed the shores of Lakes Huron and Michigan. He resigned his commission in 1838 and entered the service of the territory of Michigan and made the preliminary survey of the present Michigan Central railroad, located the capitol at Lansing, and performed other work for the territory. In 1840 he returned to his native place, Bridge Hampton, and for twenty years was a prominent factor in the affairs of the town and county, holding the positions of school commissioner, justice of the peace and supervisor, and in 1848-49-57 represented Suffolk county in the legislature. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the state senate in 1854. At the outbreak of the rebellion he immediately offered his services to the government and was appointed colonel of the Eighty-first Regiment, New York Volunteers. He participated in the Peninsular campaign with General McClellan, and at one time commanded the brigade of which his regiment was a part. His health being sadly broken, he was forced to resign his command. When the provost marshal general's office was established in March, 1863, President Lincoln appointed Colonel Rose provost marshal of the Long Island district, with headquarters at Jamaica. He performed the duties of this office with signal ability until his untimely and sudden death, January 12, 1864. His mortal remains were borne to his native place and interred in the Hay Ground cemetery, by the graves of his ancestors and under the shadow of evergreen trees of his own planting, while the whole community mourned him as a man of trust, ability and patriotism. Edwin Rose Grand Army of the Republic Post was established in his honor.

Dear Chris:

How early were Roses blooming in Orange County? According to some deeds in Goshen as early as 1716. (copies enclosed). The one on p. 333-34 lists the grantor as from Queens Cty. , but it is not clear if Johathan and Samuel Rose were also from L. I. The 2nd gives the grantor as from N. Y. C. and Jonathan Rose (Roose) from Haverstraw. The 3rd is a sale by Samuel Clowes of L. I. to John Rose of Goshen. I don't know how much this helps us except that we know now that there were Roses in Orange Cty. at an early date. Unfortunately there weren't any deeds between Simon Rumsey and a Rose. There is one by Israel and Hannah Rose of Cornwall to John Rumsey, but at a later date, 1839. Thus, this is not the original Israel, but could be his son Israel. It appears from another deed that the wife of Reuben Rose, son of David Rose, was named Clara.

I did get get some more Enoch Rose deeds while he was in Warwick and I think if I had some of those chains and links they used that I could just about pinpoint his property. The land on one deed is noted as an "estate of Inheritance" and I wish I knew from whom it was inherited.

The Goshen Public Library has some nice old books. One genealogy on the Rumsey family states the following: "Simon Rumsey, born 1690 m. Phebe Rose 1723. His parents were Symon Rumsey and Mary. He was born 1675 d. Mar. 21, 1723; she died Feb. 15, 1708. He came to Southold, L. I. from the Isle of Guersney about 1695. Phebe Rose who m. Simon Rumsey on June 12, 1723 was the da. of John Rose of Bridgehampton. He and his wife and 8 children came to Goshen between 1734-1739. John Rose was a large landowner in Orange Cty. and L. I.

ame as above?

John Rose, son of Martyn, (1675-1730) m. Sarah Howell. Their son John Rose, b. 1704 and according to L. I. records went to Orange Cty. He may have acquired land and sold it to Simon Rumsey in 1734-1739 as as stated in Mrs. Sanford's records (notes of Lillias Rumsey Sanford of Cornwall, Conn.). No Rose or Rumsey received a grant in Orange Cty. from the colony." The above appears to have been written by a V. E. Shelford in 1949. Maybe we can make some connections with some of this info. The Roses and Rumseys seem to have rather close. Some of these dates seem a little dubious

I haven't seen the Rose Bible yet, but I'll wait until school closes; just don't have the time presently.. My typing is horrible tonight.

As ever,

Harold

Dear Chris:

I have just received the following from the Town Historian of Brookhaven, David A. Overton. My copies are very light and will not reproduce legibly. Therefore I retyped them so they can be read easily. Although we have much of this already gleaned from various sources during the past few years there are a number of new facts. I think the nice thing is that these sheets consolidate and catagorize information on different Rose families and branches. Also we see someone in L. I. recognizing that Robert of Conn. and of L. I. were not the same. Of course we still find contradictions to this premise in some of the sheets, I think this is much clearer than what we had before. You will note that sheet no. 6 is only a first page and leaves us hanging in the air. I have requested Mr. Overton to let me know who the author or authors were and if he can send me the next page or pages to this. Unfortunately the name of Thomas Rose's wife is not given. I have a feeling that Howell was the initiator of the one Robert Rose theory which has been perpetuated by later authors. Again on sheet no. 6 we have mention of Roses being in Orange County as an early date, going there from L. I. The names of two women in Southampton are also noted on this sheet and I have asked Mr. Overton to send me their addresses is possible.

Today I went snooping around the Town of Warwick, but disappointingly found very little. The town library has only the standard works and no historical information. I could not locate the President of the Orange County Historical Society, but I did get the names of a few old timers supposedly steeped in the area history. I will contact them and maybe get lucky. The town of Edenville, where Enoch Rose owned property, is scarcely on the map. One old Methodist cemetery with stones of just a few families, but no Roses. The large cemetery in Warwick had quite a few Roses, but mostly latter day ones. In fact the best part of the trip mwas the very fine restaurant we found in Warwick.

Let me know what you think about this and if I get more information from Mr. Overton I'll pass it on to you. Perhaps we are beginning to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

Sincerely
Harold

Dear Harold,

That is some good data that you found! I'll be very interested if you are able to get more on that.

One thing is disturbing me. Jacobus' says that "Goodman" Rose of Branford is Robert Rose later of Long Island. However, it would appear that Robert Rose died between May 13, 1651 and June 10, 1652 (however, we have no proof of this). Now, in an account sent to me by Miss NOra Frisbie of the Frisbie Association, it would seem that "Goodman" Rose was living AFTER 1652 in Branford. Nora compiled a very amusing account from the Branford Town records which I had intended using the the Robert Rose book. This is an account where evidently the town hired out the town bull, and the people carelessly allowed the bull to become mired in mud, and the bull subsequently died. This went on for ages, in the records. Now, I haven't actually seen the entries in the town records, but in looking after Nora's account it would seem that this went on AFTER 1652 Now, it is possible that even though the court matter went on after 1652, that Robert had died in the meantime...however, I infer from a couple of her items that Robert seems to be living after 1652. It is a bit unclear, but she evidently has the town records on which this is based. So, I have written to her and presented the problem. I know from past experience that I won't hear for quite sometime from her, but I think she willannswer. This would be vastly important to you and I. In any event, the Long Island records are clear that the husband at least was dead by June 2, 1654 (assuming of course that Widow Rose is Dorothy Rose, wife of Robert). So, if NOra even has a record after that date, we know it can't be the same Robert. Jacobus could have erred, though he was perhaps one of the most painstaking and accurate genealogists there was, and his errors are certainly minimal.

Little by little we are getting some good source records on the family - deeds, etc. are going to be absolutely invaluable in putting together the account of this family.

I have part of my computer! I can hardly wait for my son to write the program. I'm really beginning to realize just how much I can use it - not only for the master index, but the addresses, etc. and even to index each issue of the Bulletin. Eventually I'll even put the office books on it. This is an Apple II coupled with a hard disk drive (otherwise it would not have had enough storage for myppurposes) and though very expensive, I know that once we get the data on the computer so many more people are going to be helped. I have so much "buried" data right now that I can't access - especially by location. For instance, it would be great just to be able to call for everything I have on Long Island Roses before about 1700, regardless of their name! I greatly appreciate your keeping me informed of the findings...I must start correlating all that you

Dear Chris:

The last newsletter was great; wish I could have been at the conference. By coincidence I was in Des Moines just a few weeks ago on our way to a visit with our son in Missouri. I have not received any contact from anyone from the conference interested in the N. Y. Roses. I wish there were more. Just to prove that I haven't been asleep all summer enclosed are a number of records. Some interesting things have shown up as follows:

1. Records: Town of Easthampton, Vol. 1, p. 239-40. Land record of Thomas Rose. Princeton U. Library. (copies)

2. Genealogical Society of New Jersey - Alexander Library, Rutgers University. Rose family file. I think we already have most of this. (copies)

3. "Genealogies and Histories of Southern New York and the Hudson Valley". p. 623-24. For what it is worth. N. J. H. S. Library. (copies)

4. "Bellport and Brookhaven" - Bellport-Brookhaven Historical Society - 1968, edited by Stephanie Bigelow. Princeton U. Library. (copies). I have contacted Mrs. Bigelow; she is curator of the society. A copy of her letter enclosed. I will now have to search for the book "History of Southaven Church". Her David Rose is not mine although I think my g-g-g grandfather, David Rose, came from the Boookhaven area. This is the first reference I have seen indicating a movement of the Roses from L. I. to Orange County. There seems to have been several David Roses in the Revolutionary War. Some years ago I sent to the National Archives for military records, but they said that they didn't have any.. Perhaps some of my information was not correct or incomplete. The N. Y. Dept. of Education in Albany sent me the following: (a) "New York in the Revolution as Colony and State", Vol. 1, p. 171 - a David Rose who served in the First Regiment of Suffolk County Militia - (I think this is mine). (b) "Calendar of New York Historical Manuscripts", Vol. 1, p. 57-59 - lists a David Rose as a signer of the Suffolk County Association re: election of Deputies to the Provincial Congress, town of Southampton, Brookhaven, July 19, 1775 - Aug. 1, 1775. Also p. 386, census of Suffolk County 1776 and p. 411 same source both list a David Rose. (c) "Military Minutes of the Council of Appointment of the State of New York - 1783-1821", lists a David Rose as a surgeon in the Revolution. (this must be Mrs. Bigelow's David Rose) and the same source lists two other David Roses.

5. Land Records. I have finally gotten into these which I have long neglected. At the Passaic County Court House in Paterson, N. J. I discovered grantee deeds of Enoch Rose and his wife Susannah (Green) for the purchase of property in N. J. First in 1843 in West Milford, close to the N. Y. line, and then in Paterson in 1845. Next, at the Orange County Court House in Goshen I discovered grantor deeds of Enoch and his wife for the sale of various tracts from 1827 through 1841. Also some grantee deeds from 1834-38. These old timers were really into real estate and moved frequently. I have been trying to pinpoint Enoch's location in Orange County and approximately when he moved to Paterson (my birthplace). It appears from these deeds that they lived in Edenville, town of Warwick. Susannah also had a brother in Edenville, James Green. The last Orange County grantor deed was in 1841 and the first grantee deed in Passaic County in 1843. The family is on record in the 1850 census of Paterson, Passaic County, but not that of 1840. I must check the 1840 census of Orange County; I feel certain I will find them. The will of David Rose mentions his son Enoch of Paterson as do other records. These are dated 1845. Thus it would appear they they moved to N. J. sometime between 1841 and 1843. The Orange County deeds also revealed transactions of an Israel Rose, one in 1807 or 1823 and another in 1849. Probably different Israels. Israel, the supposed father of David, died in 1790. Deeds for several different David Roses (very common name) were noted or recorded. One, a purchase of land by brothers David and Reuben, in 1824. I'm quite sure this is my David who had a brother Reuben. Also a David C. Rose who may have been a son of David. I did not make copies of all the deeds; there were so many and at .25 per page this could be a substantial amount. I am also checking Greens, Riders and Townsends. Usually I made copies of the earliest and latest. I must return to the Court House in Paterson as I did not have time to check grantor deeds and I also want to check for wills. If you want copies of any of the ones I have let me know.

6. "Passenger and Immigration Lists", Index
   (a) Robert Rose, no age. Conn. 1620-1650. Source: "Topographical Dictionary of 2,885 English Emigrants" p. 152 - Banks. Who is this?
   (b) Robert Rose, age 40. Mass. 1634. Wife Margery 40. Source: "The Original Lists of Persons of Quality" p. 278-79 - Hotten.
   (c) Robert Rose, age 40. New England 1634. Wife Margery 40. "Passengers to America. p. 44 - Tepper.
   (d) Robert Rose, age 40. New England 1634. "The Planters of the Commonwealth" - Banks p. 121
   So now we know the sources for the information used by historians on the immigration of Robert Rose.

I am becoming more convinced that there was only one Robert Rose; It just doesn't seem plausible that there would be much information on Robert of Conn. but none on a Robert of L. I., even immigration records. Could all of the historians overlooked him? I think not. Purcell Robertson's explanation makes the most sense to me. That Robert came to and stayed in L. I. only a few years returning then to Conn. where he died. First to Southampton and then to Easthampton where he is acknowledged as one of the town founders. On this journey he followed the Rev. Abraham Pierson; religious leaders were very influential in those days.

Slowly but surely I think we are beginning to piece together a Rose line for New York and I hope I will be able to connect the Orange County Roses to those of L. I. someday, especially my family. If Robert Rose did stay in L. I. for a short time then John, his son who remained there, is considered the progenitor of all the L. I. Roses. Some of the old names were really odd. I have come across a John Outhouse and a George Backhouse and now we have a "Charity Ward". That's all for now; more next time, perhaps some more wills and land records.

Very truly yours

Harold

Dear Chris:

At last the other pages from Overton, Town Historian of Brookhaven. They are poor copies and difficult to read. Also someone has added handwritten information in various places. Mr. Overton still did not tell who the author was; I'll have to ask him again. This appears to be a family history written for someone by someone else. I wonder who? I don't know how much this will help us; I leave it to you to study in detail. Still no Israels, but at least an Orange County connection through Simon Rumsey. I hope this will be of some value. As I noted on the pages someone changed the generation numbers on some families from 4 to 5 and from 5 to 6. Mr. Overton suggested that I try to contact the two women from Southanpton that he previously mentioned through the Suffolk County Historical Society. I will try this. Let me know what you think of all this when you get a chance.

Sincerely
Harold

Dear Chris:

I learned something new today; I found out what "earmarks" were. Apparently they were brand marks made on the ears of cattle to identify the owner. This is part of the random information on Roses that I obtained from the New Jersey Historical Society Library covering nearly all the material they have on Long Island records. Next time I'll do a thorough job on Orange County. Following, then, are some facts and figures for your files.

Perhaps some of this information may be of use to other members; unfortunately I couldn't make any connections formyself. The tie-in of the Long Island Roses to the Orange County Roses is not going to be easy, if indeed they are connected. Hope you have been able to raise enough funds for your trip to Washington.

As Ever

Dear Chris:

Well now we know what you look like. It appears through your efforts that the Rose Society, if not already, will soon be the largest and most active family group in the country. Keep up the good work, we all appreciate it for without you there would be no Rose Family Organization. Thanks for the recent items. And now something for you. Stupid of me not to make a copy of this; I'll get it next time.

They also suggested as a possible source the Long Island Room, Easthampton Free Library, 159 Main St., Easthampton, N. Y. 11937 ~~xxxxx~~. Enclosed copies of reply and membership application. If you can use these let me know. I don't know whether or not to follow this up. I'll certainly write to the Easthampton Library. Will's will not help me for my David and Israel Rose as they died in Orange County. I guess what I need would be birth or baptism records which may not exist. I haven't yet identified their exact town location on L. I.

By the way St. Kitt's is in the West Indies; I know this from being a stamp collector. In your last letter you said that you could identify Bathsheba Rose; do you have anymore information on her. The first name sticks in my mind, but can't remember why.

Slowly but surely we are accumulating more and more information on the L. I. Roses and some day we will probably have enough to put it all together. My desire is of course to connect David and Israel Rose to the L. I. Roses. My fingers won't seem to type tonight; getting stiff.

Dear Chris:

Last Friday I visited Mrs. Babcock, Town Historian, in Highland Mills, and like so many other sources they were a big disappointment. Very little on Roses, only a few recent ones. About the only thing I did get was that Simon Rumsey II was born in Goshen and died between Nov. 11, 1751 and April 9, 1753 in Goshen. (your notes say will dated 1754 - also are Simon Rumsey Jr. and S. R. II the same - I think so). He m. Phebe Rose June 12, 1723 (this coincides). While in Washingtonville I stopped in the Moffat Library and noted in "History of Newburgh - Ruttenber - 1859", on p. 363 - Burger Meynders of Kingston in 1716 purchased land from Peter Rose of Newburgh. p. 179 - the ship Neptune sank (in the Hudson near West Point?) John Rose of Crawford was saved.

One more note from Babcock files. Jonas Rose of Scotland settled in Florida, Orange County in 1730. His son Capt. Nathaniel had a son Lewis H. Rose who m. Sarah King. They had a son John F. Rose who m. Elizabeth Miller. They had a da. Lebbie(?) Rose who m. Edward H. Seaman, son of William and Hannah Pearsall Seaman. Unfortunately no dates. Well I still have the big one to look forward to, the Rose Family Bible. I'm waiting for better weather, probably Easter vacation, as Mrs. Stroud said she would show me some old Rose places including an old Rose cemetery.

It is now apparent that Roses were in Orange County in the early 1700's, preceding my Israel. It seems some came from L. I.; perhaps others came from Conn. Whether branches of the same family we do not know, yet. I wrote again to Mr. Overton to ask if he could determine the author and date of those three pages. As you say it appears to have been done for someone as a report. I'll check the N. J. H. S. this Sat. for Ancient Town Recordsof New Haven by Dexter. Perhaps we'll never sort out all of these Robert Roses, but we'll have fun trying.

I have just written to Barbara Decker, Town Clerk of Washingtonville who may have, "the 1764 Books of Records of the Town of Cornwall". There may yet be many more "undiscovered" records that we are not aware of and that are not in libraries. See you again with more news I hope.

Sincerly

Harold

Dear Chris,

Just a brief note to enclose with my "Index of ROSE Wills & Intestate Records" from 1794-1838, as recorded at Riverhead, Suffolk Co., New York.

Someone else from Salem had borrowed L.D.S. film #17929 from Salt Lake City, so we paid the additional money to keep it here at the Salem LDS Library indefinately. We suspect that it contains records of Abraham Rose's wife's family (Margaret Edward's family). We know that you have a lot of Suffolk Co. NY records, but we hope this index may help you and others sort their Roses & allied families.

NOTE: The underlined name indicates the person who had a Will or Intestate Administration recorded at Riverhead, NY.

We received your April '83 Newsletter, and enjoyed all of the newsy information. Thanks for the article about our Round Robins I & II. If anyone wishes to start one for Penn. or Ohio, we will be glad to offer any suggestions or "how to" tips. In fact we wouldn't mind being on each Penn. or Ohio Roster, as we are now wondering if Abraham Rose's parents could have come from Penn. (since Ulster Co. sits on the Penn. border). We noted in the Passenger & Immigration Lists Index pub. 1981 that: "Rose, Abraham n.a.; Pennsylvania, 1772 7207 pg 136".

Re: our Ohio interest, see your Rose Family Bulletin: Vol VI, June 1971, pg 596 re: Charles P. Rose of Ohio and New York. His father was George Rose b. Oneida Co NY in 1834. Charles' grandfather was Phineas T. Rose b 1792 was a native of Dutchess Co. NY. The great grandfather (no name mentioned) was in the "Revolutionary ranks". 1850 Wayne Co Census states that Harriet was Phineas' wife and Sarah was George's sister, (Abraham's daughter's names.)

Charles - 1st son of Abraham Jr.
George - grandson of " "

One last item re: 1880 Soundex for Idaho........

My records indicate that when I sent you the 1880 Washington Census Rose listings, I also enclosed 1880 Idaho Census Rose listings. Both of those lists included every Rose in the Census, not just Soundex, (See April '83 Newsletter page 4 re: 1880 Soundex project.)

Well, I've got to run to prepare for a trip down the Rogue River - we leave early tomorrow morning. We just got back a couple days ago from a trip to Seattle, where we spent two days reading Census film. I finished the 1870 Minnesota Census that Rose Houston started, so will try to get that off to you next week.

Have a Happy Holiday Memorial weekend!!

Sincerely,

Anne Rose

P.S. I talked to Ginny Heller on tuesday. She had written to say that there was not a letter from Fern Shannon, and was concerned. (" " did not send a letter this time).

RR I

Just got a card from Helen Maxwell Williams saying she was sending the Robin II on to Wayne Atkinson in Illinois. She was impressed with "so many names.

Dear Harold,

My - you ARE turning up good data! Looks as if there is a lot more available than we had thought.

How would I choose as to which of those records I'd like to say - impossible! If I had to, it would be the earliest ones - I'll bet every single one of them is vastly important. I do hope that you will be able to make that proposed trip - I'll bet you would come back with a huge amount of new information tha would finally help us in adding to the records of these people.

On Purcell's information on Southampton - I am sorry - he doesn't pursuade me that it is the same John Rose! Maybe it will become clearer why I don't think so if I send to you the first few pages of my reports- this covers Robert Rose and his children. As you can see, John 2 Rose evidently married 3 times, and he LEFT A WILL. I am now trying to obtain xerox copies of the wills mentioned - it's no easy matter from Connecticut. I also have pages and pages of Branford town records recently sent to me, and John is mentioned over and over. I'll have to carefully examine them (I've been just too busy with the Conference coming up) but some of these town records prove relationships - for instance, there were some items among these brothers relating to land. I know one of them finally proved for me that Samuel the Son indeed went to Newark, New Jersey - I was really afraid that that was not based on documentary evidence, but it IS. And, I have proof from these Branford town records that the son Robert was of Stratford, Connecticut. I'll have to re-check if there is one that proves this John is a brother, as I recall some mentioning land of Samuel that was sold to the brothers, or some such thing. In any event, I am absolutely convinced that this John 2 Rose is son of Robert 1 Rose, and not John who married Abigail. I think errors were made early in the records by someone, and simply made over and over again. This certainly has happened in some of the Virginia families, and the Andrew Rose of Pennsylvania family. I finally had tooobtain xerox copies of perhaps 50 documents to disprove all the things I had read about Andrew of Pennsylvania - some of the information so wrong that it couldn't even have physically happened timewise. Now - I'm not saying that it's not possible that one of these people went over to Long Island - maybe they had relatives there etc., but I do say that Robert of Long Island is NOT Robert of Wethersfield, and that John of Long Island is NOT John of Wethersfield. But...I promise to keep watching the records closely - I can always change my mind...if it's proven! Ha!

Let me know what you think when you have a chance to study this. Gosh...I'll be glad when the Conference is over and I can get back into some serious research...I want to really dig into this Long Island family.

Best wishes,

Mar. 10, 1981

Dear Chris:

O. K. let's see what you can make out of the enclosed. This material was sent to me by the Easthampton Free Library. I have not heard of Purcell before who wrote the papers of the Early Settlers of Easthampton and Southampton. Don't know if he is recent of old. I appears that he knew of one Robert Rose only and thought that he came from Branford to Southampton and East Hampton for a short time then returnedc to Branford where he died. I have been reviewing Harlan Torrey's letters and of course he belongs to the two Robert theory. He has different dates of death for each and different birth and death dates for their sons John. Purcell's idea is that son John stayed in L. I. and became the progenotor of all the L. I. Roses since his father Robert returned to Branford. Harlan's theory seems to be that one of the Roberts and son John stayed in Conn. and the Robert and John of L. I. were a different pair.

What I can not understand is that the only record I have seen noting Dorothy as Robert's wife is the American Genealogist. Doesn't it seem strange that none of the other records have ever mentioned a Dorothy, but state that his wife's name was Margery? Could Margery have been misconstrued to read Dorothy at one tiME? Also if Robert of L. I. was not Robert of Branford why is it that most of the L. I. records appear to ignore Robert of L. I. who died 1652 with wife Dorothy and son John (b. 1638) and concentrate on the Conn. Robert d. 1644 with wife Margery and son John b. 1619? Didn't these authors recognize their own local progenitor? Such confusion. I am also sending these papers to Harlan for his comments.

I have written to the East Hampton for more information. In the Pennypacker births and baptisms is there anyone on the list you would like me to check? I don't xxxx see my Israel or David there. Damn! Anything in the index to the East Hampton Town Records you would like to have checked out? Again I don't see my David or Israel. How about the card catalog. Perhaps it would be worth a trip to Easthampton this summer.

Awaiting your comments.

As Ever

Dear Christine,

I must apologize for not answering your letter of 2/4/91. I have been very busy at work and my correspondance has fallen way behind. It was placed in the pile of unanswered letters and I am now on vacation and am shocked at all the mail I have to answer.

Tel #- See Below

I hope you have not made your trip to Long Island as yet and that I will be able to help you with more information. The Osborne Shaw material is in the Brookhaven Town Historians office which is in the Village of Port Jefferson (or was the last time I was there and I am sure it still is. I will call in the morning before I mail this and check). Osborne Shaw was the Historian many years ago and copied all the old family cemeteries and did a lot of genealogy work on the early families. The present Historian is David Overton who I am sure you will find to be very helpful. You are welcome to mention my name if you like. (He is a cousin of mine)

The page you enclosed was copied from a very wide paper which described several of the old cemeteries including the Rose Family Cemetery in Brookhaven Village. I should probably explaine that the Township of Brookhaven covers a large area and many villages including the village of Brookhaven. Brookhaven Town is one of ten towns that make up Suffolk County which covers the eastern half of Long Island. I will recopy the two pages that make up the discription of the several cemeteries.

I no longer know exactly what I sent you or how much as I have quite a lot of Osborn Shaws notes (copies) in my files at home. I believe I sent most of the items that would be the most help but honestly do not know. If you have not been to Long Island please feel free to call me if I can help in any way. I have listed my telephone number in the heading as it is unlisted.

Another place for research is the Suffolk County Historical Society in Riverhead, L.I. They have a good library of Suffolk County referances. Good luck in your research and keep up the good work on the Rose family. Again I am sorry for taking so long to answer your letter.

With Best Regards

Nate Carter

ROSE FAMILY.

Deacon Stephen Rose of Bridgehampton was of opinion that the families of this name on the east end of Long Island are descended from a John Rose who he thought was old enough to be a brother of Robert Rose, to be soon mentioned. He thought he had seen a paper in the records of the town whereby land was assigned to such a John. I believe he was mistaken. Robert Rose of Wethersfield in 1639 came in the Francis from Ipswich, co. of Suffolk in 1634, aged 40, with w. Margery 40 and ch. John 15, Robert 15, Elizabeth 13, Mary 11, Samuel 9, Sarah 7, Daniel 3 and Dorcas 1. He removed soon to Stratford and thence probably to Southampton in 1644, where he had a grant of land Mch. 6, 1644–5. His name is on the list of whaling squadrons in Mch. 1644–5, but no John is mentioned so far as I can ascertain until 1657, when he is an inhabitant of North Sea. Robert removed to East Hampton probably about the time of its settlement in 1648, and subsequently to Westchester Co., N. Y. His son Robert removed to Branford with a few others about the same time when Rev. Mr. Pierson went there, and his third son Samuel went to Newark, New Jersey and left two daughters. The youngest son Thomas born on Long Island inherited his father's homestead in East Hampton and finally sold it and removed. This leaves only John and Daniel to be accounted for. Of the latter I find no trace whatever. John, if I am correct, was the John of North Sea in 1656, and from whom are descended all of the name in Southampton.

SANFORD FAMILY.

Long Island naturally looks to New England for its antecedents and, in some cases, for its progenitors. Searching the N. E. records for an earlier generation than Ezekiel Sandford, as the name was originally written, who, in 1678, received an appropriation of fifteen acres in Bridgehampton, we find no less than three English pioneers who each had a son Ezekiel. Thomas of Dorchester, Mass., in 1634, had a son Ezekiel, who died in Fairfield, Ct., 1683; Andrew of Hartford had son Ezekiel, who lived in Milford, Ct.; and Robert of Hartford had a son of the same name b. Mch. 13, 1648. This Robert had also a son Zacharias, which name reappears in a son of Ezekiel, and adds another reason for assuming that the Southampton family descended from Robert of Hartford. In the former edition I said that I had found mention of a Thomas church. It is, therefore, more than probable, that a church had been regularly organized before they came to the island. The precise date of their arrival at Southampton has not been ascertained; but their disappointment and detention on the western part of the island, make it evident that it was later in the season, than the settlement at Southold, which had been commenced the same year. A patent for 8 miles square, at this place, given by Farrett, is dated July 7th, 1640.

CHURCHES, &c.

The first house of worship was erected in 1640. [See "A Manual" of this church published in 1843.) It was probably a small temporary building.

In 1651 the second was built which remained more than half a century.

In 1707, the third edifice was erected, which was furnished with a bell and clock, probably the first church on the island, that could boast of both these appendages, the drum having been previously used to assemble the people for public worship.

In 1820, this building was thoroughly repaired, and the interior remodeled and modernized.

In 1843, a new church was erected, which is a handsome building, finished in the gothic style.

In the following year the old house was disposed of, removed, and finished off for a Methodist chapel.

In 1831, an Academy was erected, and a very respectable school has since been maintained.

MINISTERS.

The Rev. Abraham Pierson was the first minister. He came with the first company of "undertakers." He was a conscientious, able and excellent man. He, however, remained here only four years. A majority of the inhabitants deciding to unite with the government of Hartford in preference to Newhaven, which latter colony made church-membership a necessary qualification for exercising the rights of freemen; and Mr. P. being with the minority, they removed in 1644 to Branford, within the jurisdiction of Newhaven. Upon the consolidation of the two colonies in 1662, under the name of Connecticut, Mr. P. and his associates, true to their former principle, removed to New Jersey, and laid the foundation of Newark, where he died in 1680.

~~The Rev. Joseph Fordham, the second minister, was settled not long afterwards—in 1645 or '6, and died in 1674.~~

~~The Rev. John Herriman was the third minister of this church, from 1675 to 1680. Of him, little is known. It appears, however, that after his return, to Connecticut, he addressed a letter to Mr. Thomas Cooper, in which he dunned the congregation for some supposed arrearages of salary.~~

~~The letter having been presented, and considered in town-meeting, the following answer was voted:—~~

~~"Mr. Herriman was so long absent, and the town paid so much for him, which he himself promised to repay; also considering the manifold inconveniences that he exposed the town unto, Mr. Herriman in equity ought to make the town compensation, than that they should pay him one penny for his last half year's pains among us."~~

~~For aught that appears, this was the final settlement between them.~~

~~There seems to be some difficulty in reconciling all the statements about this gentleman. If the writer is not mistaken, Dr. Bacon mentions this same Mr. H. as a minister at Newhaven, at least during a part of the time, that he is here recognised as the pastor of Southampton. There may indeed be some mistake of dates, or his being "long absent" may have been occasioned by frequent labours at Newhaven.~~

~~The Rev. Joseph Taylor, their fourth pastor, was sent for in 1680. He came and after spending the winter with them, when about to return to his family, they made a contract with him for his permanent support.~~

~~As affording some view of the competency of ministerial support in those days, and also, the mode of payment, in the great scarcity of the precious metals, not only here, but in other settlements on the Island, the following specifications of their agreement will be interesting.~~

~~They promised him "a salary of £100, and the sole use of the house and land formerly built and laid out for the ministry, together with another end to be built to the said house, and 180 acres of commonage."~~

~~Also "100 acres of land in the woods or commons, to him and his heirs for ever," together with 4 acres that was some time part of the ox-pasture, opposite Mr. Herriman's house-lot. This conveyance in fee, is evidently founded on the New England principle of giving a minister what they called "a settlement," which might be considered a sort of equivalent~~

BELLPORT AND BROOKHAVEN

Compiled by Stephanie S. Bigelow for the Brookhaven Historical Society-1968

(Fireplace Neck lay between Fireplace Creek and the Connectiquot River)

2a) P. 4 - "It was here that Thomas Rose, a farmer and weaver, settled as the first man to live in Fireplace proper. In 1704 Rose began to buy land - Lot 25 from Richard Floyd and Lot 26 from Benjamin Smith. With his son Nathan he amassed a large tract along Beaver Dam Road. This road was opened as a result of a petition by twelve settlers in Fireplace. About 100 years later the Rose farm was part of the vast property of John Ireland.

Nathan Rose had two sons who fought as officers in the Revolutionary War. They were both killed and buried on their father's farm burying ground. Lt. Thomas Rose's son John married the daughter of the well loved (Priest) Rose (no relation) of South Haven Church. John Rose was eminent as Town trustee, Town supervisor, and New York State Senator. Their home is still standing on the east side of Beaver Dam Road, the second house south of South Country Road. It is a typical Colonial weathered-shingle house.

DAVID

Soon after the Roses, members of the Hulse family, came from Setauket. In 1706 Richard Hulse bought lots nos. 31 and 32 from Andrew Miller and Samuel Akerly."

P. 8 & 9 - copies attached

9(a) P. 10 - "Catherine, widow of William Rose, split her property selling the eastern half to Polly Woodruff and the western half to Matthew E. Woodruff and Henry Hulse Jr. It covered the central part of todays Bellport Village."

P. 30 - Re ministers of Presbyterian Church in Brookhaven
-------"then David Rose was called. He was a farmer and doctor as well as a teacher and preacher. He was ardently patriotic during the American Revolution, influencing men in his parish toward the rebel cause, and himself fighting in the ranks under Col. Josiah Smith".

P. 62-63 - attached

P. 75 -"Fireplace had quite a few settlers along South Country Road and down Beaver Dam Road. Capt. Nathan Rose and Lt. Thomas Rose have already been mentioned".

harming place for retirement or a recluse". He tells, "It was an boriginal clearing house on standard wampum, under the great Sachem f Patchogue, Chief of the Exchequer. It was known as the camping round for purposes of exchange, barter, or renewing the council fire".

Thomas R. Bayles says that fires were built on the tract of land ying west of the southern part of Carmans River, to guide the whaling oats at night through the inlet, which was directly across the Great outh Bay. On the banks of the river were landing places, where boats rought the whales to be cut up and tried for oil, and to cut out the vhalebone. Indian Landing was on the east bank, and Zack's Landing vas on Zachariah Hawkins' property near the present railroad crossing of he river. During the Revolution Zachariah Hawkins had successfully idden in his marshes many of the cattle belonging to Judge William mith from marauding British troops; the Judge with some of his family ad fled the Manor during the war. Squassux Landing is at the foot of Beaver Dam Road. Osborn Shaw knew of an Indian named Wessquas-ocks, who lived on Long Point and was a pot maker. Mr. Shaw onjectured that the Indian's kiln or firing place had been used as a eacon, starting the custom of lighting fires as guides on that spot.

The name Fireplace was not used after 1871, when Brookhaven ecame the official name. Originally Brookhaven and also Ashford were ames that applied to Setauket, the Indian name for that place. Because he Township is Brookhaven, it is confusing that the hamlet should bear he same name – especially in matters of identity. Carmans River was arlier called the Connectiquot or Connecticut; the Indian name for it vas Cumsequogue. Wegonthotok was the name for the Mastic or Forge iver. South Haven, so named in 1757, had been called Yamphank Neck. Bellport Bay was known as Fireplace Bay and Mastic Neck as eabomuck. The upper part of Dayton Brook, north of South Country Road, came to be called Mott Brook, and the lower, southern part angley's Creek.

OCCUMBOMOCK

Twice in early times the lands that now comprise Bellport were held lmost entirely by one man, or his family, as one huge farm or lantation. During the last two decades of the 17th century and the first wo of the 18th Jonathan Rose and then his son Robert owned the ajor part of what is now Bellport. Later, the second Justice Nathaniel ewster was the owner, followed by his son Charles Jeffrey and the e granddaughters. In 1829 the Bell brothers came, and Bellport as

Because the offshore whaling was profitable, Jonathan Rose, a cooper by trade, came to Occumbomock in 1680, to build casks and barrels for the shipment of oil to New York City. He was a brother of Thomas Rose, the weaver, who had settled previously in Fireplace. Jonathan Rose bought all the lots from No. 33 to No. 46 of the meadow shares along the bay front from their Setauket owners. His western boundary was the creek that runs up the golf course, and his eastern boundary was Dayton's Creek. In 1696 he began to buy the 15 acre lots, adjoining the northern boundaries of his meadow shares and continued to buy until 1702. On his immense farm he planted orchards and gardens. After a few more years this branch of the Rose family sold out and moved to Orange County in upstate New York.

The land was then divided into several parcels and sold to Jonathan Hudson, William Smith, Barnabas Rider, Jonah Rhodes and John Brewster. The section between the present golf course and the peat hole was owned in succession by Samuel Conklin, Thomas Fanning—a brother of Sir Edmund Fanning, so disliked by American patriots—and Zophar Hawkins. Howell's Point was called Hawkin's Point before the Howells' time. In 1806 Captain Josiah Howell bought the tract.

While Jonathan Rose was becoming established as a landowner, Richard Starr bought lot No. 49 from Obed Seward, who had drawn it in the beginning in 1664. This land lay west of Howell's Creek [that runs up into the golf course], and came to be called Starr's Neck or later, West Bellport. Richard Floyd also owned land on Starr's Neck. Starr, Floyd and Jonathan Rose procured a deed from the Indians in 1705, and this assured them full hunting and fishing rights. Richard Starr was a grandson-in-law of Elder William Brewster.

Later at Starr's Neck Alexander Munsell became the proprietor of the most extensive lands. He came right after the Revolution from Smithtown. Like the Fannings, the Munsells were Tories and had been under the protection of the British Army. The Munsells steadily increased their holdings, until they owned from the bay to the Head of the Neck Road, from the golf course creek to Isaac Overton's bridge across the pond and creek now called Dunton's. The present golf course was mostly on former Munsell property; as late as 1919 Munsell heirs were receiving $150 yearly rental for this land from the golf club.

The second Justice Nathaniel Brewster, whose father lived in Fireplace, established his plantation in the eastern part of Bellport. The homestead was slightly east of the present Gateway Theatre on the north side of South Country Road. By 1767 he had become President of the Town's Board of Trustees. By that time his lands reached from Dunton's Built a little later, was the Richard Corwin house, not far from the Better 'Ole. This is also a weathered shingle with white painted trim as is the William Rose house mentioned above. This house was owned for ome time by Raymond Perry and then by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olsen.

One of the handsomest old houses is that owned by Mr. Frederick E. Allardt, Jr., who is an outstanding architect. It was built in 1815 for)r. Nathaniel Miller, a practising physician, and his wife Sarah, daughter f Captain John Havens. Part of the house was used as the post office, vhen Dr. Miller was postmaster in 1818 and again in 1829 and 1849. It tands at the junction of Fireplace Road and South Country Road on the orth side of the triangle, where the Brookhaven cannon and Memorial re. The Millers maintained a complete and independent farm for three enerations. They also raised trout in the stream, which was then part of heir property; their capacious barns were on the south side of Fireplace Road.

The Senator John Rose home looks very little changed from its riginal appearance. This is unusual, because most of the old houses in he area have not only been moved from one site to another but have een added to and so re-arranged, that there is hardly any resemblance to he original appearance. The Rose home was built before 1818 for John ose, son of the Revolutionary War hero, Lieutenant Thomas Rose. The ame builder was employed to build the Miller place, and this went up oon afterwards. The smaller wing of the Rose house was once a little tore. The house stands on the north side of Beaver Dam Road, the econd house from the corner of South Country Road. It is now owned y Mrs. Elizabeth Lyons of Bellport.

On the same side of Beaver Dam Road, but down nearer the nding, is the house belonging to Captain John Tuthill, publisher of the ong Island Advance. It is distinguishable by its white picket fence and eared hemlock hedge. This was also built for a member of the Rose mily. It was the home of William Brewster Rose, son of Joseph Rose, ho in turn was the fourth son of Jesse Rose (1738-1821). It was also e home of James L. Ford and his sister Mary.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hanaway's house is interesting because at one ne it had been a tavern and a stagecoach stop. It was then owned by e Seaman family. John Seaman came to Brookhaven in 1779. The use stood sidewise to the road. The dormers were added when it came the over-night stop for the New York-Sag Harbor stage. Mr. naway had the house moved to its present location near the banks of eplace Creek, also moving back the tiny shingled cottage, that had o been on the Seaman property.

STEPHEN ROSE FAMILY

Hunterdon County, New Jersey

Christine Rose, C.G.

Stephen Rose of Hunterdon County, New Jersey is of the 4th generation, descended from the Long Island family of Robert Rose. This Robert Rose is not the immigrant Robert Rose who arrived in New England in 1634 on the Francis with his wife Margery and 8 children, as has been suggested by various historians. John, son of Robert of Branford, Connecticut died testate in Branford leaving a will dated 18 April 1683. John, son of the Long Island immigrant, died testate naming wife Abigail and his children, will dated 4 May 1696 recorded in Suffolk County, New York. early as 1765. His descendants still occupy a large portion of the estate he purchased of its original owners. This neck constitutes a school district, and a small but elegant chapel was built here in 1880. Within the last few years it has attracted the attention of persons of wealth and station in New York city, and now bids fair to become dotted with elegant and costly residences.

NOYACK.

About four miles west of Sag Harbor is a point some two miles in length projecting into Peconic Bay. Its Indian name was Noyack, meaning "a point of land," and it has given its name to the neighboring village. This peninsula, with some land adjoining, was granted by the town to John Jessup in 1679, and was given by him to his son Isaac, who settled here as early as 1712. The Jessup homestead was where the residence of David Wiggins now stands. In an old family burying ground north of the house is a slate tombstone, bearing the following inscription, which is to-day as legible as it was when it left the hands of the carver: "Here lyes ye Body of Abigail Jessup, Daughter of Mr Isaac & Mrs Sarah Jessup, who deceased in Nov'mbr 1724, aged about 11 years." The estate continued in the Jessup family till about 1800, when Silas Jessup, the last owner, sold it to the father of the late Judge John S. Osborn. After the death of Judge Osborn it was sold to its present owner. A mill on the stream near this place was built about 1690, at which time the mill stream was granted to John Parker "to set a fulling-mill on." In 1718 it was granted to Jonah Rogers. About 1748 it was owned by Charles Rugg, and was known for a long time as "Rugg's mill." It afterward passed into the hands of a family named Budd. In 1874 the ponds adjoining, some thirty in number, were purchased by G. W. Thompson, of Oakland, Cal., who proceeded to improve them as trout ponds. At an expense of more than $10,000 he has made the premises one of the most beautiful summer resorts on Long Island; the cool shade and the music of rippling waters make it seem almost a portion of fairy land.

NORTH SEA.

This is the oldest village in the town excepting Southampton. Its name is derived from the fact that in ancient times Peconic Bay was called the North Sea, in distinction from the ocean, which was called the South Sea. On the west side of North Sea Harbor a point of land projects into the creek, which has always been called "Conscience Point." Tradition says that when the first settlers came to the town they landed here, and one woman, as she stepped on shore, exclaimed, "For conscience' sake I'm on dry land once more," and hence the name. This tradition, whether true or false, is of great antiquity.

The first notice we have of a settlement here is in 1647, when the town voted that John Ogden and his company should have Cow Neck and Jeffry's Neck and plowing land to the amount of 324 acres, provided they should settle six families. They were also to have all the meadow between Hog Neck Spring and Millstone Brook (where it is mentioned that the sachem's house stood). Mr. Ogden formed the first whaling company in the State, and an agreement was made by which he and his company were to have the exclusive privilege of killing whales within the town limits.

The first settlers here were John Ogden, Jonas Wood of Oram (so called in distinction from Jonas Wood of Halifax, who lived in Southampton and afterward was the founder of Huntington), Samuel Dayton, Vincent Meggs, Mark Meggs, Samuel Clark, John Scott, Samuel Barker, Edmond Shaw, Fulk Davis, Samuel Davis and Joseph Davis. With the exception of Scott these names have entirely disappeared.

The families that have left descendants, and whose names are identified with the village, are as follows:

The Scott family is descended from John and Jechamiah, sons of Captain John Scott, whose notorious career is fully described in Thompson's History of Long Island. Jechamiah was a magistrate, and at one time lived in the village of Southampton, and is buried there. His home lot in North Sea was next south of the present residence of Austin Rose.

The first of the name of Lupton was Christopher, who was here before 1654. He had sons John and Joseph. The name has long since disappeared.

The first of the Jennings family was John, who came as early as 1670, and had sons William and Samuel. He lived on what is now the homestead of Jeremiah Reeves.

Charles Sturmy was here in 1675. He lived on the present home lot of Austin Rose.

The Rose family is descended from John Rose, who may have been a son of Robert Rose, who was in the town as early as 1644. John is first mentioned in 1660, and purchased a house and lot of John Scott. He died in 1697, and left children John, David, James, Thomas and Martyn. The families of that name now living here are descended from John, who had a son David, whose grandson David (born in 1753 and died in 1836) was a justice and supervisor for many years, and few men have been more noted for energy and activity. He was a large landholder, and his estates are still in the family of his son Colonel David Rogers Rose.

The first of the Harris family was George, who is found as early as 1675. He had sons George and Henry, whose descendants are still found.

The Haynes family, now not found here, is descended from Benjamin, who appears in 1668, when he bought a house and lot formerly belonging to Samuel Barker. This is the old Haines homestead, which is now owned by the heirs of Hewlett Reeves, who bought it of the heirs of Samuel Haines in 1877. Benjamin had sons Benjamin, James and Samuel.

The old North Sea line which separated it from Southampton commenced at Weckatuck Spring, near Hog feat of the Armada, and in 1600 Queen Elizabeth came to dinner at his house, a far from casual event (Richard Drake pp. 100-106). This close connection with affairs of state, which was continued by his son Francis, will become relevant when we compare the socioeconomic status of John Drake son of William with that of John Drake of Windsor.

And what of the famous Sir Francis Drake? Kiepura shows him as a first cousin of Richard Drake, but this is certainly not correct. Sir Francis had at some point in his career befriended both Richard Drake and his older brother Bernard, and had prevailed upon them to acknowledge kinship, but this seems to have been more a matter of political fiction than of genealogical fact. Sir Francis Drake was in fact the son of a shearman in Tavistock, a parish near the Cornish border and at the opposite end of Devonshire from the Drakes of Ashe. But because of the close friendship that developed between Richard and Sir Francis, the former named his only son after the latter, and Sir Christopher Hatton stood as godfather to the child (Lady Eliott-Drake, The Family and Heirs of Sir Francis Drake, 2 vols. [London 1911], hereafter Eliott-Drake, 1:3-22, 52-53).

Looking more closely at the family of William Drake of Wiscombe Park, we find that an additional four members of the family left wills. We note first that in his will of 1616 William had named three sons (Thomas, John and William) and two daughters (Amy and Joan). On 16 July 1647 his widow Philippa made her will (probated 5 Oct. 1655), in which she named sons Thomas and William, and daughters Joan, now wife of Robert Collyns, and Amy (PCC 399 Aylette). Then on 16 Dec. 1647 Acton Drake of Short Hampton Lodge, Oxfordshire, made his will (probated 15 May 1651) in which he named "my brother Thomas Drake of Wiscombe" and sisters Collyns and Amy Drake (PCC 83 Grey). Next, Thomas Drake on 13 May 1661 prepared a will (probated on 24 Sept. 1661) in which he made bequests to his wife and several children, and also to sisters Amye Drake and Joan Collins; in addition, he referred to "my land called Highly, lately descended to me on the death of my brother Acton Drake" (PCC 137 May). Finally, on 24 March 1678 Amy Drake of Ottery St. Mary, co. Devon, made her will (probated 16 July 1680) naming sister Collins and cousins William Drake, Alexander Drake, Dennis Drake, Philippa Safyne, Dorothy Rose, Susan Rayment and Robert Collins; these cousins can all be identified as children of her brother Thomas Drake or sister Joan Collins (Archdeaconry of Exeter, as abstracted in Moger Collection, typescript at the Fam. Hist. Lib., Salt Lake City).

COULD THIS BE OUR 'DOROTHY'?

Before proceeding to discussion of these wills, we must deal with the problem of Acton Drake. Kiepura notes that he must belong to the family of William of Wiscombe, but that he is not named in the wills of his father or mother. I would propose a different solution: William Drake, the third son of William and Philippa, at some point in his adult life changed his name to Acton. In his mother's will and earlier we see only William; in his own will and later we see only Acton. Perhaps he married an heiress of an Acton family, or perhaps there was some other impetus; further research on this man would possibly resolve the question, and add strength to our analysis of this family.

If we allow the assumption that William and Acton were one and the same, then the wills of this family are completely consistent with one another. The will of the father in 1616 names all five children. The remaining four wills, of 1647, 1647, 1661 and 1678, name all surviving siblings or children of siblings, except John. While there would be no difficulty in believing that one will of a member of the immediate family would ignore a son or brother who had removed to New England, I find it hard to accept that four members of the immediate family (mother, two brothers, sister), over a period of thirty years, would fail to provide some small legacy. The strong implication is that John Drake son of William had died between 1634 and 1647; and since John Drake of Windsor died in 1659, the two men could not then be identical.

The second objection to the lineage is based on onomastic evidence. John Drake of Windsor had five children (whose years of birth are here estimated from their dates of marriage): Job, b. ca.1621, m. 25 June 1646; John, b. ca.1623, m. 30 Nov. 1648; Jacob, b. ca.1625, m. 12 April 1649; Elizabeth, b. ca.1633, m. 9 Feb. 1653; and Mary, b. ca.1635, m. 17 Nov. 1655 (Gay pp. 5-14). Of these names, John, Elizabeth and Mary are among the most common in England, and are of little value as evidence of kinship. Job and Jacob are, however, considerably rarer.

When we look at the Drakes of Ashe, we find no correlation whatever. The John Drake named in the will of Francis Drake had father William and mother Philippa, siblings Thomas, William (or Acton), Amy and Joan, and uncles Nicholas, Humphrey, Bernard, Robert and Henry (Vivian pp. 292-93). None of these names is found in the family of John Drake of Windsor, nor among his grandchildren. And Job and Jacob do not appear anywhere in the pedigree of the Drakes of Ashe. Furthermore, since he was remembered in the wills of two more distant members of the family, one would expect the names Francis or Richard to appear, if indeed the identification is correct. The evidence of names gives no reason whatever to believe that John Drake of Windsor was the same as the man named in the will of Francis Drake.

The third problem arises when we try to find this John Drake in the New England records of the 1630s. If John Drake of Windsor is the son of William Drake of Wiscombe Park, we have certain expectations about him which should be reflected in Massachusetts records. Regardless of what his origins were, in 1630 he would have been the head of a family of five, including himself, his wife, and three sons, and he would have been about thirty-five years old. And if he

Dear Mr. Daniels:

Thank you for your kind reference to my book about the history of Bellport & Brookhaven. It is a pleasure to add any information concerning your illustrious ancestor,David Rose. It is from the Rev. George Borthwick's "History of the Southaven Church" that I give you this data. The book is much too wordy to quote it all.

David Rose was born in Branford Conn,Dec.11,1736,son of David and Hannah Barker Rose.He attended Yale College,prepared himself as a doctor,graduated in 1760. Then he studied theology under Rev.Robbins of Branford,and under Dr. Samuel Buell of Westhamton, where he met his first wife,Hannah Mulford. He was licensed to preach May 23,1765. He was minister of the Southaven Church for 33 years,dying in his 63rd year. His headstone is still in the graveyard behind the church. But that church building has been moved to Brookhaven!

His first wife died in Conn.where Rose and many other Brookhaven men had taken their families during the Revolution. For seven years the British played havoc with the farms of Suffolk County,ruining many fine homes,and the Church. We have in our files the committment by many prominent men to rebuild the manse for Rose.

Rose's second wife died soon after their marriage; all his children were born of his third wife, 17 years his junior. She was Sarah,6th daughter of Selah Strong, of Blooming Grove,Orange County N.Y.Their daughter Hannah married a Mr.Glover,of "some other place". After he died,Hannah returned to Fireplace for a short time,then to Middletown, Orange Co.,where she died.Another daughter Elizabeth,married John Rose son of Lieut.Thomas Rose,a Revolutionary War hero. John became a State Senator from New Y rk,and built a handsome house on Beaver Dam Road,in Brookhaven. It is still in good shape,owned by a couple who have expertly renovated it. Other children of "Priest" Rose were Sarah,Nathaniel, and Elisha. A daughter Esther died in her 18th year.

It is not made clear just when Priest Rose was in Orange County. It is not even mentioned, as a matter of fact. I would be grateful if you could send me more of the Rose geneology. We have slowly been collecting material about the early families in this area,and are always glad to receive information.

Sincerely yours,

Stephanie S. Bigelow

ROSE FAMILY.

From Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, the follow account is taken: "Robert Rose of Wethersfield in 1639, came in the Francis from Ipswich, Co. of Suffolk, in 1634, aged 40, with w Margery 40, and ch. John 15, Robert 15, Elizabeth 13, Mary 11, Samuel 9, Sarah 7, Daniel 3 and Dorcas 2. He removed before 1648 to Stratford, where the list of freemen, 1669, bears his name, [unless it be his son Robert, which is more probable, for one Robert died at Branford, leaving good estate in 1664 or 5."]

This would seem to be the same Robert that we find in Southampton in 1644, but not later than 1648. A Robert Rose was among the first settlers of East Hampton, but did not remain long. Now we may suppose Robert, the father resided successively in Wethersfield 1639, Southampton 1644–8, East Hampton a few years, then Branford, where many of the Long Island people removed; and that his son Robert lived and died at Stratford, and his son John and youngest son Thomas, resided in Southampton. My impression is that I have seen in the town Records a writing which mentions John and Thomas as the sons of Robert, but cannot now refer to it. Assuming this to be true, we have—1 Robert has w Margery, and ch. 2 John, and others as before. 2 John b 1634 d 1697, had ch. 3 John, 4 David, 5 James, 6 Hannah, 7 Thomas and 8 Martyn. 3 John had ch. 9 David and 10 James b

SANDFORD FAMILY.

1 Thomas Sandford was a resident of Boston in 1674, but of Southampton, as by the Records in 1676. Some branches of the family have mutilated the name by dropping the Middle d. It would appear that Thomas had besides 2 Ezekiel, another son Zachariah, from the fact that in 1736 a Zachariah is mentioned as having two sons Henry and Stephen there grown, who probably removed, since they soon after disappear from the Records. 1 Thomas b 1631 had s 2 Ezekiel, who d 1716 and had w Hannah and ch. 3 Ezekiel b 1681 d 1755, 4 Thomas b 1684 d 1761, 5 Abigail and 6 Zachariah. 3 Ezekiel had w Dorcas and ch. 7 Ezekiel, 8 Sarah Hedges, 9 Abigail Sayre, 10 Phebe Jessup and 11 David, (who had ch. BLATCHLEY - BLACHLY(1st GENERATION)

ently not associated with Thomas Blatchley, and did not emigrate with him; he was a resident of New Haven where he died 17 May, 1672. Blakeslee married 3 December 1650 at New Haven to Hannah Potter, daughter of John and Elizabeth Potter, and a list of certain of their descendants will be found in The New Haven Genealogical Magazine, vol. I, under Blakeslee. There has been some misidentification of members of the Blakeslee family with those descended of Thomas Blatchley.

The late Nathan G. Pond of Milford in his MSS on the genealogical connections of the settlers of Milford, and of associated families, identified the wife of Thomas Blatchley as Susanna Ball. The proof of this assertion has not been found; and the presumption which has appeared in print that she was the daughter of Alling Ball is quite unfounded. At this writing her maiden name remains quite unproved, but there is a clue to her connections, perhaps, in the will of Samuel Roos or Rose of Newark, New Jersey.

In the Archives of New Jersey, First Series, vol. XXI, at p. 145 is given an abstract of the will of Samuel Rose as it was recorded in Liber C of East Jersey Deeds, p. 180. This is as follows:

> ?! 1698 - May 31. Will of Samuel Roos (Rose) of Newark. Wife Mary, cousins Hannah Brant, Sarah Moris, Abigall Ball, Phebie Day, daughters-in-law (probably step-daughters) Abigail Bunell, Hannah Carter. The wife was executrix with George Harrison as assistant. The witnesses were Robert Young, Jonathan Sergint, Jonathan Sergint junior. Proved Nov. 24, 1701.
> 1701 - Dec. 3. Letters of administration on the estate of Samuel Roos dec'd granted to his widow Mary.

Samuel Rose was the son of Robert and Margery Rose of Wethersfield, Stratford and Branford, Connecticut, and was born about 1625, presumably at Ipswich, Suffolk. The New Haven Genealogical Magazine states at page 1520 that Samuel Rose married Mary Tompkins and resided at Newark, New Jersey; no issue is given, and it is presumed from the will that there were none.

The chief interest this will has for us is that Abigall Ball is called the "cousin" of Samuel Rose. If this is Abigail (Blatchley) Ball, she would have been either the niece or cousin (perhaps somewhat distantly) of Samuel Rose or his wife. We have not been successful in explaining this relationship at this writing, but in order to assist the interested reader, give what is available.

The "cousin" Hannah Brant may have been the wife or daughter of William Brant of Elizabethtown, a cordwainer, who made his will 21 January, 1708/9; it was proved 13 May, 1725 and recorded in Liber A of East Jersey Deeds, p. 343. The children by his wife Hannah were John, William, Samuel, David, Margaret, Hannah, Sarah and Rachel. The executors were the wife and John Cooper of Newark; witnesses were Edward Riggs, Samuel Lamb and Samuel Whitehead.

The "cousin" Phoebe Day is believed to have been the widow of Paul Day, son of George Day of Newark, when on 19 November, 1712 she filed bond as the administratrix of her husband's estate. Nathaniel Ward and John Morris, both of the same place, were fellow bondsmen. This John Morris may have been the husband of the Sarah Morris whom Samuel Rose also calls his cousin; she is otherwise not conclusively found.

The "daughters-in-law", whom we consider the children of Mary (Tompkins) Rose by a previous husband, are provisionally identified as Abigail, wife of Nathaniel Bunnell and Hannah, probably the wife of John, son of Nicholas Carter, the supposed only member of this family to remain in America.

The maiden names of none of these "cousins" except perhaps Abigail Ball have been found, and because of the indefiniteness of the term cousin as applied at the time, we have not been able to explain Samuel Rose's relationship to these families. Rose was an approximate contemporary of Thomas and Susanna Blatchley, as he was born in 1625. If Abigail (Blatchley) Ball were a niece of Samuel Rose, (which is within the meaning of the term cousin as used) it would require that either Rose had married a sister of Thomas Blatchley or of his wife Susanna; or that Susanna Blatchley was conversely a sister of Samuel Rose or his wife Mary Tompkins. This is further complicated by the possibility that both or either of these men may have had more than one wife, although this seems relatively remote.

Robert Rose left ten children, as is known from emigrant lists and his will, but he had no daughter Susanna, and no relationship to Thomas Blatchley is yet apparent. Michael or Micah Tompkins of Milford had children born too late to admit that Susannah Blatchley could have been his daughter, although his eldest daughter Mary, born in 1643, was the wife of Samuel Rose. There is an alternative solution possible in this connection, however that is, that Abigail Ball, cousin of Samuel Rose, may have been a second wife of Edward Ball, and a relative of Michael Tompkins These suggestions prove nothing, but they may be of some help in further research.

Thomas Blatchley has been called a native of Suffolk and also of

Dear Chris:

I am progressing on a draft of my Rose family history. At this point I am up to the Reuben Rose family and am awaiting a reply from Georgia Rose Sheldon of Fort Montgomery. She is the one who supplied Marcus Wright much of his information for his Ancestral Lines. She still insists that she is a grand daughter of Reuben. He was born in 1795. His son, Lewis Matthias, was born in 1871. Georgia was born in 1903 and is now 83 years old. Although this seems extraordinary it is possible. Reuben would have about 76 when her father, Lewis Matthias, was born. Quite a man was Reuben.

When the draft is completed I would like to send it to you for your observation and comments, before I type the final report. I hope this is not an imposition, but I haven't had much experience in compiling family reports. I would like an expert to examine it; I am certain you can make some valuable suggestions. I have re-examined all the data I have 100 times and always seem to find some additional information I overlooked, a date, name, location, etc.

There were Roses in Orange County long before the emergence of Israel. Most likely there were several ~~R~~ different Rose families; perhaps they were all related a long time ago in Long Island, but who knows. I have had correspondence with Jesse Rose and we seem so close to making a connection, but there is a missing link. His Roses were also from Fort Montgomery which makes it more obvious. I have the names of hundreds of other Roses and I feel sure that some of them belong to my line, but I have no evidence or sources. Perhaps in time I will be able to make more connections.

Hope all is well with you and don't forget to contact me on your next trip east and stay at the Daniels "rest home".

Very truly yours,

Harold

Dear Christine,

Many thanks for your letter of December 19, postmarked December 31 and received today. The books arrived safe and sound and are delightful. I am pleased that my drawing of the will of the Rev. Martin Simpson (1591-1665) of London, of a N'hants family, to your attention has been helpful to you. The references in the will to his nephew William Rose (presumably still in England as of 1665) and to John Rose of Southampton, L.I. (relationship, if any, unspecified), are indeed intriguing and mystifying. No, I do not have copies or full transcripts of any Waters wills.

I agree that Conklin Mann in his 1935 article in TAG offers no grounds for his statement that "the eldest Rose child [i.e. of Robert Rose of East Hampton, L.I.] was a girl, who by October 1654 was married to Anthony Waters." It must be based on some record he saw and interpreted, presumably dated October 1654, perhaps in the pages he cites, 14, 25, 66, 116, 121, 239, 458, "in the poorly indexed first volume of the printed East Hampton Town Records." He says he got his Rose family information from there. As you can imagine, such a marriage is of great interest to me, too. Thank you for sending me the Mann article and the extract from your MS on Robert, founder of the Long Island Rose family.

I enclose a copy (which I fear will be hard to read) of pp. 348-351 of the Records of the Jurisdiction of New Haven from 1660. Surely the John Concklin mentioned there was related to Ananias Conklin ("Concklyne") who is the subject of Mann's article. Of interest is the Anthony Waters who served as attorney for the inhabitants of Hashamommock Neck; I wonder if it was in Southampton.

Also of interest to me in the New Haven court records is Richard Smith of Setauket, Long Island. I wonder if he was the Richard Smith (ca. 1615-after 1680) of New London County, Conn.—no relationship specified—who testified in the 1680 court hearing of Edward Smith's attempt to overturn the will of his uncle, John Smith (1608?-1679) of New London, childless brother of my Nehemiah Smith (1606?-1686) of Norwich, New London County. I would also note the reference to Richard and Joshua Raymond, place of residence unspecified. The eldest daughter of my Nehemiah Smith, Elizabeth, was married on 10 December 1659 at New London to one Joshua Raymond, son of Richard.

Any ideas will be most welcome.

Yours sincerely,

Walter

Dear Christine,

My thanks for your letter of the 6th, advising that you will use my announcement about the NEHEMIAH SMITH FAMILY ASSOCIATION in a column later in 1993. That was good news. (I would be most grateful if you could send me xerox when the times comes—lest I somehow miss it.) I also appreciated your enclosing the flyer about your Family Associations - Organization and Management. We need it. Your book on nicknames looks like fun, and I would like it, too. My check for $16.50 is enclosed.

What can you tell me about the following person?

> John Rose (1619-1697) bought a house at Southampton, Long Island, in August 1660, which was in the North Sea section of Southampton. The house adjoined the property of Anthony Waters, an individual of interest to me in connection with exploring Nehemiah Smith's origins, as I explain in the enclosed paper. John Rose sold land in the area in 1696 to his son John. The elder John was an inhabitant of North Sea by 1657. He evidently was not the son of Robert Rose, who crossed in 1634 on the Francis which sailed from Ipswich, co. Suffolk (in 1639 of Stratford, New Haven Colony; moved to Southampton in 1644; to East Hampton, L.I., about 1648; and finally to Westchester County). John and his wife Abigail had seven children, the youngest named Martin.

Also of interest is the fact that the John Rose who was the son of the above Robert Rose, and who was born about 1619, testified in 1674 at New Haven, Conn., that he was over sixty years of age (abstracted for me by a research volunteer from The Descendants of Robert Rose of Branfield and Wethersfield, Conn., which evidently cites vol. 1, New Haven Court Records [MS by Jacobus]). If you are familiar with the event, can you tell me if John Rose was applying for relief from guard duty on the grounds of having reached æ. 60?

Yours sincerely,

Walter Smith

FOR RESEARCHING THE ORIGINS OF NEHEMIAH SMITH

THE CLUES AND HUNCHES DEVELOPED SO FAR

Part I - Pointers from Nehemiah Smith's Life

His region of origin. Testifying in court in 1680 at the suit brought by Nehemiah's nephew Edward Smith to overturn the will of Nehemiah's brother John, two separate witnesses quoted Nehemiah's brother John as having referred to his life "in England." This appears to rule out that Nehemiah and John came from Ireland, Scotland, or Wales. Most of the New England settlers who came in the 1630s, as did Nehemiah—John's year of arrival is uncertain, although certainly by 1649—were from the West Country. Two of the three men who were admitted together with Nehemiah in March 1638 as Freemen of Plymouth were from the West Country: John Derby of Burton-Bradstock, Dorset, and Giles Rickard of West Hatch, Somerset.

Nehemiah's year of birth. In two official acts, the second being the court case just mentioned, the age Nehemiah gave for himself would place his birth in 1605 or 1606. The other instance was Nehemiah's application in 1666 to the New London County Superior Court for relief from town guard duty (against the Indians) on the grounds of age. In that case, he had a strong incentive to suggest he was a decade older than may have been true. In the court case 14 years later, he did not, unless it was to cover his tracks for misrepresenting his age in 1666.

At the beginning of 1640 Nehemiah was married in Plymouth Colony to Ann Bourne, who was born in 1616. It was not uncommon then for a man to marry a woman ten years his junior, although the usual spread in age was much less. It was not common (except in the upper classes) for a man to wait until the age of 34 or 35 to marry. Thus, Nehemiah's 1640 marriage to a woman aged 23 suggests that he was born later than 1605 or 1606. And if he was born that early, one may wonder if he had had a previous wife in England who had died before his 1637 departure for America.

His social stratum. Nehemiah started in America as a shepherd—close to the bottom of the social scale—and graduated to weaver. Interestingly, the occupation of weaver at that time in England was right at the middle of the scale in terms of mean probate wealth. His brother John began in America as a "nailer," then almost at the bottom in England in terms of probate wealth. But John was appointed early on as Connecticut's first Commissioner of Customs and was reappointed. That function would have required some literary facility and certainly a competency in mathematics.

Furthermore, John had owned property in England, which was taken from him in the Civil War, presumably by the Royalists. It may of course have been modest. If so, it grew in size, like the fish of the proverbial fisherman, as John in later years complained to his neighbors in Connecticut over having been "stripped to my shirt" by his property losses in England during the Civil War.

His political and religious sympathies in England. From the foregoing experience of John's, and on the strength alone of Nehemiah's name, he must have come from a Puritan family. By the time of his departure in 1637, Puritanism had spread throughout England; but it appears to have been slightly more concentrated in some areas than in others.

His associate Anthony Waters. As explained below, Nehemiah appears to have been close to a man named Anthony Waters in 1642-1652 and perhaps longer. It is quite possible that Waters personally knew Nehemiah's eldest brother in England, on whom he paid a call in 1650 or 1651 on a return visit there from New England.

Family first names. Nehemiah had 21 grandchildren. In the same generation, his nephew Edward Smith had nine children. A comparison of the names given to these thirty Smith cousins offers no striking pattern. On the male side: there is no likely source known for Edward's choice of "Obadiah" for his second son, which could conceivably have been his father's name. No explanation is evident for the selection by Nehemiah Jr. of the following names for sons of his, one of which may therefore perhaps have been his paternal grandfather's name: Samuel, Daniel, and Joseph.

On the female side: all three of Nehemiah's children who had families named a daughter "Martha." One may wonder if Nehemiah and his wife Ann had a daughter named Martha who died young. But an equally likely namesake is Ann's sister Martha, who was close to Ann and lived nearby. Among the names Edward and his wife Elizabeth chose for daughters for which no explanation has been found are Rebecca, Sarah, and Hannah. Of all the girl's names chosen by Nehemiah's children, only "Experience" lacks an obvious explanation.

His siblings. We know that Nehemiah was one of at least four children. They are discussed in the following section of this paper.

The First Generation

—— SMITH, the father of the emigrant brothers, would have been born in the vicinity of 1580, give or take a decade. He could not have died earlier than 1606; probably not before the early 1620s. Since he named a son Nehemiah, he probably was a Puritan. He had at least the following children, the order of whose birth is uncertain, except that the son whose name is missing was definitely the eldest son:

+ i. —— SMITH (son)
+ ii. JOHN SMITH, born either 1602-1609 or (see Part II) 1611/2
+ iii. NEHEMIAH SMITH, born either 1605-1606 or (see Part II) 1617/8
+ iv. —— SMITH (daughter).

The Second Generation

—— SMITH, the eldest son, was living as of 1650 or 1651, when one Anthony Waters came back on a visit to England from America and delivered to him a letter from his brother John in Boston, Massachusetts. The eldest brother acceded to John's request that he send his eldest son Edward to America to live with John, who was childless. Known child:

i. EDWARD SMITH, born say about 1636, since he was thought to have been æ. circa 15 when he arrived from England at Boston, Massachusetts, in 1651 (or possibly in 1652); died 14 July 1689 at New London, Conn.; married 7 June 1663 at Saybrook, New London County, Conn., to Elizabeth Bliss, daughter of Thomas Bliss and Elizabeth ——; children: Elizabeth, Ann, Rebecca, Sarah, Mary, John, Obadiah, Hannah, and Mehitabel.

JOHN SMITH was born either 1602-1609 or in early 1611/2. He died on 4 Oct. 1679 at New London, Connecticut. He was married in 1640-1650 at or near Boston, Massachusetts, to Joanna ——, who died in 1687 at New London. She was the widow of ——, by whom she had one child, Elizabeth. Elizabeth must have been born by the 1630s, as her daughter, Mehitabel Way, was a teenager by the 1670s.

John came to America by 1650 and probably somewhat earlier. By 1650 (or earlier) he was a resident of Boston. He moved from there to New London in 1653. By trade he was a nailer. According to a table of mean probate wealth for 29 occupations (and social stations) in 17th-century England, a nailer ranked fifth from the bottom (Prof. David Cressy, Coming Over - Migration and Communication between England and New England in the 17th Century [Cambridge University Press, 1987], p. 121). Yet, as already noted, John must have had at least some literary facility: the Colony of Connecticut appointed him in 1659 the first Commissioner of Customs (for the port of New London) and subsequently reappointed him.

In the court case a year after John died, in which his nephew Edward tried to overturn his will, John was quoted by two different persons as referring to his earlier life in "England" (thus, not Ireland, Scotland, or Wales). One individual quoted him as indicating he had property in England taken from him "in the Civil War" and thus "was stripped to my shirt."

No children.

NEHEMIAH SMITH was born either in 1605-1606 or in early 1617/8. He died in spring 1686 at Norwich, New London County, Connecticut. He was married on 21 Jan. 1639/40 at Marshfield, Plymouth County, Massachusetts, to Ann BOURNE (1616-after 1684), daughter of Thomas Bourne (1581?-1664) and his wife Elizabeth —— (1590?-1660) of Marshfield.

Nehemiah evidently came to America in spring or summer 1637 and lived initially in Plymouth Colony. He was admitted a Freeman there in March 1637/8. He moved to New Haven Colony ca. 1642 and Connecticut Colony in 1650, living 1650-1652 in Southold, Long Island (then belonging to Connecticut), 1652-1663 in New London, and thereafter in Norwich. He was an original proprietor in 1659 of Norwich, Connecticut. By trade he was a weaver, which ranked 15th or exactly in the middle on the aforementioned table. In Connecticut he became a substantial landowner and a deputy to the General Assembly. Because he spoke deferentially of his brother John and even took directions from him in two situations, the impression is gained that John was older. Children:

i. ELIZABETH SMITH, born ca. 1641; married (1) Joshua Raymond, son of Richard Raymond and his wife Judith (Williams?), (2) George Dennis, whose parents' names have not been learned; by her first marriage: Joshua, Elizabeth, Ann, Martha, Hannah, Richard, Mary, Experience, and Mehitabel; by her second: Ebenezer

ii. NEHEMIAH SMITH, born ca. 1645; married (1) Lydia Winchester, daughter of Alexander Winchester and his wife ——, (2) Elizabeth Stark, by whom no issue; by Lydia: Lydia, Nehemiah, Samuel, Martha, Daniel, Margaret, and Joseph

iii. MARY SMITH, born ca. 1647; married Samuel Raymond; no issue

iv. MEHITABEL SMITH, born 4 July 1655; married Joshua Abell, son of Robert Abell and his wife Joanna —; had: — (a son who died ae. 5 days), Nehemiah, Ann, and Martha.

—— SMITH, a daughter, must have been born 1600-1620. As of 1651 she may have been childless. Testifying in 1680 about the events of 1651 surrounding his departure from England for America, her nephew Edward Smith said that "upon his [i.e., Edward's uncle John Smith's] desire and motion to my father in his letter, I chose rather to adventure my life upon the ocean than to accept other tenders made to me by my aunt, who desired my abode with her in England, who proffered to make me her heir if I would have lived with her."

earlier) he was a resident of Romsey. He moved from there to New London in 1653. By trade he was a sailer. According to a table of mean probate wealth for 29 occupations (and social statuses) in 17th-century England, a sailer ranked 6th from the bottom (Prof. David Cressy, Coming Over: Migration and Communication between England and New England in the 17th Century [Cambridge University Press, 1987], p. 123). Yet, as already noted, John must have had at least some literacy facility: the Colony of Connecticut appointed him in 1659 the first Commissioner of Customs (for the port of New London) and subsequently reappointed him.

In the court case a year after John died, in which his nephew Edward tried to overturn his will, John was quoted by two different persons as referring to his earlier life in "England" (thus, not Ireland, Scotland, or Wales). One individual quoted him as indicating he had property in England taken from him "in the Civil War" and this "was to appear in my life."

Part II - The Leicestershire Hunch

As explained in the preceding section, Nehemiah had two known brothers and an apparent sister. One of the brothers, whose name we lack, was the eldest son; he was the father of Edward Smith, who came to America and settled in New London, Conn. The other brother was John, who appears to have been older than Nehemiah. A Smith family group has been found in Leicestershire that seems to fit. The early 17th century surviving vital records of Leicestershire are too sketchy to permit a tidy piecing together of the family group without recourse to other records. At this point we are not certain that the eldest son in the group in turn had a son named Edward—but he may have. The main problem with the fit of the group to our Nehemiah is the evidence discussed above that our Nehemiah was born 11-12 years earlier than the Nehemiah of Leicestershire.

The First Generation

WILLIAM SMITH was born say 1582. He died after 1622. He was married say 1607 to ——. They had the following children baptized at St. Botolph's, Sibson, Leicestershire:

+ i. RICHARD SMITH, bapt. 12 April 1608
ii. JOHN SMITH, bapt. 1 March 1611/2
+ iii. WILLIAM SMITH, bapt. 21 Jan. 1615/6
iv. NEHEMIAH SMITH, bapt. 8 Feb. 1617/8 ← BURIED 17 AUG. 1633 at Sibson
v. MARGARET SMITH, bapt. 20 Feb. 1619/20
vi. EDWARD SMITH, bapt. 25 April 1622.

A William Smith and Agnes Monkes were married on 15 Dec. 1605 at Husbands Bosworth, Leics. (see Husbands Bosworth in Part III). A William Smith and Elizabeth Lago were married on 10 Oct. 1604 at Claybrook Magna, Leics. A William Smith and Frances Bonne were married on 1 Oct. 1604 at Appleby Magna, Leics. A William Smith was baptized on 10 June 1582 at Fleckney, Leics. An Agnes Smith, daughter of William Smith, was baptized in 1588 at Market Bosworth, Leics.

Second Generation: Possible Members

RICHARD SMITH and his wife, unnamed, had the following child (but evidently no others) baptized at Ashby de la Zouch, Leicestershire:
i. EDWARD SMITH, bapt. - Oct. 1633.

WILLIAM SMITH and his wife Sarah —— had the following child baptized at Ashby de la Zouch, Leicestershire:
~~i. WILLIAM SMITH, bapt. 17 June 1639.~~

Part III - The Waters / Simpson Clue

As noted earlier, Nehemiah was associated in New England with Anthony Waters in 1642-1652 and possibly longer. Waters may have been living under Nehemiah's roof on Long Island in 1650-1652; if not, he was living close by. When Waters visited England in 1650 or 1651, Nehemiah persuaded him to stop off en route in Boston, Mass., to see Nehemiah's brother John. John persuaded him to carry a letter to his and Nehemiah's eldest brother in England. Some combination of persuasion induced Waters on his return trip to America to bring back with him the eldest brother's son

Edward, a boy, and to deliver him first to John in Boston and then to Nehemiah on Long Island.

Money, rather than some close affiliation, may have been the persuader. But it is hard to believe that Waters did not stem from the same part of England as Nehemiah and John—meaning that it was no serious detour for him to go see Nehemiah and John's eldest brother. And it is easy to imagine that Waters was in fact a relative. A family named Simpson of Northamptonshire, which owned property in the adjoining county of Leicestershire, fits the bill nicely: it was intermarried with both Waters' and Smiths.

Furthermore, a Simpson family relative (and probably descendant), John Rose, had gone to America before 1656, in which year he settled at Southampton, Long Island. A few years earlier (probably right after leaving Southold, L.I., in 1652) Anthony Waters had settled at Southampton. In 1659 Rose bought the property immediately adjoining Waters. They were neighbors there until Waters sold his property in 1663 and apparently moved away. On a return visit to England in 1661, Rose was paid by his apparent uncle the Rev. Martin Simpson to bring a cousin, Hester Simpson, to America.

The First Generation

Anthony Simpson was born say 1565 perhaps at Welford, Northants. He died in early 1635 (probate) either at Welford or in London. He was married to Eleanor* ——, who survived him.

Described as A.S. "of Welford, co. Northampton, gent., and citizen & haberdasher of London," he wrote his will on 15 Aug. 1633, proved 23 April 1635 ("Sadler, 35"; Henry F. Waters, Genealogical Gleanings in England [Baltimore, Maryland, 1981], pp. 884-886—a collection of abstracts). His apparent brother Percival Simpson, citizen and haberdasher of London, wrote his will in Oct. 1616, which was proved in Feb. 1616/7, in which he named Anthony's eight children (ibid., pp. 883-884). Anthony in his will disposed of: Dovefall Close in Welford; Black Boy messuage in Ludlow; other property in Welford; property in the parish of Husbands Bosworth, Leics.; property in Elkington, Northants; and "the farm where I now dwell in Welford." Children (order of birth clearly uncertain):

+ i. Martin Simpson, bapt. 17 Oct. 1591 at Welford (parish records); married Elizabeth ——; no issue

ii. Anthony Simpson, born say 1592; apparently deceased by Feb. 1664/5; evidently had (i) Anthony (deceased by Nov. 1674—will of Phillippa [see below]), (ii) Martin (died 1693—his will, ibid., p. 886), (iii) Hester (in New England) (will of the elder Martin Simpson—see below), (iv) Elizabeth (unmarried 1693—her brother Martin's will), and perhaps other children

iii. Nicholas Simpson, born say 1593; living in 1633 (his father's will); apparently had no children

+ iv. Joyce Simpson, born say 1595; married John Smith

+ v. Isabel Simpson, born say 1597; married Andrew Waters

vi. Phillippa Simpson, born say 1599; died end of 1677 (her will, ibid., p. 886); married apparently after Aug. 1633 (her father's will) to —— Charleton; of the 5 sisters, she is the most likely candidate to have been married lst to —— Rose, by whom she had William Rose, named as a nephew by her brother Martin Simpson in his will in 1664, and no doubt John Rose, born before 1635 (mentioned as an adult in American records in 1656—see below), whose debt Martin disposed of in his will in 1664 without describing John as "nephew" vii. Susanna Simpson, born say 1601; living as of Nov. 1674 (will of her sister Philippa); married —— Collis, by whom she had, before Aug.

Edward, a boy, and to deliver him first to John in Boston and then to Nehemiah on Long Island.

Money, rather than some close affiliation, may have been the persuader. But it is hard to believe that Waters did not stem from the same part of England as Nehemiah and John—assuming that it was no serious detour for him to go see Nehemiah and John's eldest brother. And it is easy to imagine that Waters was in fact a relative. They were neighbors there until Waters sold his property in 1663 and apparently moved away. On a return visit to England in 1661, Rose was paid by his [illegible] uncle the Rev. Martin Simpson to bring a cousin, Hester Simpson, to America.

The First Generation

ANTHONY SIMPSON was born say 1568 perhaps at Welford, Northants. He died in early 1635 (probably) either at Welford or in London. He was married to Eleanor ——— who survived him.

Described as A.S. "of Welford, co. Northampton, gent., and citizen & haberdasher of London," he wrote his will on 13 June 1630, proved 27 April 1635 ("Sadler 39"—Henry F. Waters, Genealogical Gleanings in England [Baltimore, Maryland, 1981], pp. 884-885—a collection of abstracts). His apparent brother Percival Simpson, citizen and haberdasher of London, whose will is [illegible] Oct. 1616, which was proved in Feb. 1616/7, in which he names Anthony's eight children (ibid., pp. 882-884). Anthony in his will disposed of "Dowlas Close in Welford Field, Bay messuage in Ludlow, other property in Welford; property in the parish of [illegible] Bosworth, Leics; property in Elkington, Northants; and 'the farm where I now dwell in Welford.'" Children (order of birth closely uncertain):

i. MARTIN SIMPSON, bapt. 12 Oct. 1591 at Welford (parish records); married Elizabeth ———; no issue

ii. ANTHONY SIMPSON, born say 1592; apparently deceased by Feb. 1646/7, leaving issue: (i) Anthony (deceased by Nov. 1671—will of Priscilla [see below]), (ii) Martin (died 1665—his will, ibid., p. 886), (iii) Hester (in New England) (will of the elder Martin Simpson—see below), (iv) Elizabeth (unmarried 1665—her brother Martin's will), and perhaps other children

iii. PERCIVAL SIMPSON, born say 1593; living in 1631 (his father's will); apparently had no children

iv. ELIZABETH SIMPSON, born say 1595, married John Smith

v. SARAH SIMPSON, born say 1596, married Andrew Waters

vi. PRISCILLA SIMPSON, born say 1598; died end of 1677 (her will, ibid., p. 888); married apparently after Aug. 1633 (her father's will) to ——— [illegible]. Of the 3 sisters, she is the most likely candidate to have been the mother of John Rose, by whom the said William Rose [illegible] mentioned as a nephew by her brother Martin Simpson in his will in 1664, and his brother [illegible] Rose, both before 1638 (mentioned as an infant in American records as 1638—see below), whose debt Martin disposed of in his will in 1664 without describing John as "nephew" vii. ELEANOR SIMPSON, born say 1601, living as of Nov. 1674 (will of her sister Priscilla), married ——— Cole, by whom she had, before Aug.

1633, Anne, John, and perhaps other children

viii. Elizabeth Simpson, born say 1603; married (1) well before Aug. 1633 to Philip Morris and (2) before Feb. 1664 (her brother Martin's will) to —— Kentish ; had several Morris children not yet æ. 12 in 1633.

The Second Generation

Martin Simpson was bapt. 17 Oct. 1591 at Welford. He died in 1665 probably at London (probate). He was married to Elizabeth ——; no issue. He wrote his will 21 Feb. 1664/5, described as the Rev. Martin Simson (sic) of Hackey, Middlesex; proved 17 Aug. 1665 (ibid., pp. 885-886). He disposed of land in Husbands Bosworth, Leics., and real estate in several other places, including Welford. "To my said nephew [Martin, son of his brother Anthony Simpson] all sums of money due from John Rose of Southampton in New England, planter, by virtue of certain covenants and agreements, indented, bearing the date 25 March 1661, made between me the said Martin Simpson [sic] of London, clerk, on the one part, and the said John Rose, on the other part, touching on or concerning the transportation of my niece Hester Simpson to New England, providing for her there, and other things therein expressed." .... "To my nephew William Rose £5."

Joyce Simpson was born say 1595 perhaps at Welford. She died between 1633 and 1665 (the above wills). She was married say 1615 perhaps at Welford to John SMITH. They had two or more children under æ. 12 as of 1633. The baptismal record of 6 Oct. 1616 of their daughter Ann at Welford describes him as "John Smith of London, haberdasher" (parish records). Welford shows no other baptisms of their children. Children:

i. Ann Smith, born probably 1616 perhaps at London but more likely at or near Welford, co. Leicester; bapt. 6 Oct. 1616 at Welford

ii. —— Smith (gender unknown), born after 1621; see above

iii. —— Smith (gender unknown), born after 1621; see above

(there may well have been other children born before 1621, nor do we know that there were only two born after 1621)

Isabel Simpson was born say 1597 perhaps at Welford. She died after 1665. She was married say 1617 at —— to Andrew WATERS, who died before 1633 (the wills above). Their children, order of birth not known, of whom there may have been more (the wills), were:

i. Francis Waters, born say 1618; died after 1693 (will of his cousin Martin Simpson); not yet æ. 15 when his grandfather Anthony Simpson wrote his will (1633); mentioned twice by his uncle Martin Simpson (1664), with responsibility to look after his aunt the widow Phillippa Charleton; mentioned in Phillippa's will 1674 and his 1st cousin Martin Simpson's will 1693

+ ii. Anthony Waters, born say 1620

iii. Dorothy Waters, born say 1622; living in 1664 (her uncle Martin Simpson's will); married before Feb. 1664 to —— Ames.

The Third Generation

Anthony Waters was born say 1620 perhaps at or near Welford, Northants. He may have been the Anthony Waters last of known record in America at Southampton, Long Island, in 1663 (for reasons given below). It is not known if he married.

The English Anthony Waters is last of record in his grandfather Anthony Simpson's will in 1633, then under æ. 15. The American Anthony Waters first appears in 1642 as a resident of Marshfield, Plymouth Colony. (N.B.: Nehemiah Smith moved away from Marshfield about 1642.) He next appears in 1650 at Southold, Long Island, living with—and apparently under the roof of—Nehemiah Smith. When Anthony told Nehemiah in 1650 (or 1651) he was going to visit England, Nehemiah asked him to stop at Boston, Massachusetts, to see Nehemiah's brother John. John in turn asked Anthony to deliver a letter to John and Nehemiah's eldest brother in England (name not specified), requesting the brother to send his eldest son Edward to America to live with John. Anthony brought Edward back from England in 1651 (or possibly 1652). In 1652 Nehemiah (with Edward) moved from Southold to New London, Connecticut; there is no record of further contact between Anthony and the Smiths.

Anthony next appears in 1659 at Southampton, Long Island, N.Y. He may have been living there since leaving Southold about 1652. In 1660 John Rose, who had been living at Southampton since 1656, bought the property immediately adjacent to Anthony at Southampton. This was indisputably the John Rose mentioned in the will of the Rev. Martin Simpson (see above), who must have been a brother of the "nephew William Rose" that Martin also mentioned in his will. Rose and Waters were close neighbors until Waters sold his property in 1663 and apparently moved away. Given the tiny population of Southampton at the time, Waters and Rose would have known each other extremely well. The chances seem excellent that they were first cousins through the Simpson family.

Certain avenues in American records have not been explored. John Rose of Southampton, for example, was described by W. K. Watkins in 1907, editor of a later edition of Henry F. Waters's Genealogical Gleanings in England, as "first found at Southampton in 1656, from whom all of the name there are descended." A check of published histories of Southampton did not reveal discussion a Rose family, but further search for a Rose genealogy carrying back the family's English roots might be enlightening. Similarly, no serious check has been made to see if Anthony Waters had descendants, on whose behalf a study of Waters origins in England might have been conducted. Anthony Waters does not appear in the recent works on 17th century English immigrants (or emigrants, depending on your vantagepoint) to America.

Samson's will in 1633, then under ae. 15. The American Anthony Waters first appears in 1642 as a resident of Marshfield, Plymouth Colony. (N.B.- Nehemiah Smith moved away from Marshfield about 1642.) He next appears in 1650 at Southold, Long Island, living with—and apparently under the roof of—Nehemiah Smith. When Anthony told Nehemiah in 1650 (or 1651) he was going to visit England, Nehemiah asked him to stop at Boston, Massachusetts, to see Nehemiah's brother John. John in turn asked Anthony to deliver a letter to John and Nehemiah's eldest brother in England (name not specified), requesting the brother to send his eldest son Edward to America to live with John. Anthony brought Edward back from England in 1651 (or possibly 1652). In 1652 Nehemiah (with Edward) moved from Southold to New London, Connecticut; there is no record of further contact between Anthony and the Smiths.

Anthony next appears in 1659 at Southampton, Long Island, N.Y. He may have been living there since leaving Southold about 1652. In 1660 John Rose, who had been living at Southampton since 1650, bought the property immediately adjacent to Anthony's at Southampton. This was undoubtedly the John Rose mentioned in the will of the Rev. Martin Sampson (see above), who must have been a brother of the "nephew William Rose" that Martin also mentioned in his will. Rose and Waters were close neighbors until Waters sold his property in 1662 and apparently moved away. Given the tiny population of Southampton at the time, Waters and Rose would have known each other extremely well. The chances seem excellent that they were first cousins through the Sampson family.

Additional Comments:
Based on the date the will was proved (9 December 1819), this is likely the same David Pierson buried in Green River Cemetery in the nearby town of Austerlitz, Columbia County, New York. That stone reads "Col. David Pierson, d. Sept. 24, 1819, aged 77 years" See: Colubia County Historical Society (Kinderhook, NY), Green River Cemetery Inscriptions, Book 1:23. That would put David Pierson's birth year around 1742.

This may be the same David Pierson originally of Sag Harbor, Suffolk Co., Long Island, New York. Although 'Pierson Millenium' (Richard E. Pierson & Jennifer Pierson, Heritage Books: 1997) never mentions Capt. David Pierson (son of Lemuel Pierson and Martha Stratton) as going to Hillsdale, NY later in life, there is evidence to suggest that this might be the same David Pierson of Long Island. In his will, David Pierson mentions a cane given to him by his sister Sarah Barron. A Sarah Pierson married an Andrew Barron on 22 November 1756 in Suffolk County, Long Island (NY Marriages, 1600-1784). If this is the same Sarah Pierson Barron, it would support the premise that David Pierson of Hillsdale, Columbia County, was originally from Long Island.

Also, the family tree of David Pierson's daughter, Jane Pierson Allen, wife of Horace, would suggest that David Pierson is the Capt. David Pierson mentioned in 'Pierson Millenium' on pp. 159-161. According to Vol. I, pp. 268-270 of 'Hudson-Mohawk Genealogical and Family Memoirs,' edited by Cuyler Reynolds (New York: Lewis Historical Publishing Company, 1911), Jane Pierson Allen and her husband Horace Allen (both mentioned in David Pierson's will, above, had children Elizabeth Gelston Allen, Jane Pierson Allen, Henry Augustas Allen, and Caroline Allen. Elizabeth Gelston was the name of the wife of Capt. David Pierson of Sag Harbor, according to 'Pierson Millenium', p. 160. That Jane Pierson Allen would name her daughter after the wife of Capt. David Pierson of Long Island, would suggest that she was the daughter of that couple. Indeed, the author of 'Hudson-Mohawk Genealogical and Family Memoirs', Cuyler Reynolds, states that Jane Pierson Allen's father was the David Pierson originally of Long Island.

The David Pierson who died in Hillsdale, New York, seems to have resided in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts at the time of the 1800 census (but not at the time of the 1790 census). He seems to have moved from Pittsfield, Massachusetts to nearby Hillsdale, Columbia County, New York between 1800 and 1810, where he, and David Pierson, Jr. appear on the 1810 Hillsdale, NY census. Indeed, there is record of a deed of sale between "David Pierson, gentleman of Hillsdale, Columbia Co., NY, to Joseph Hooper yeoman of Pittsfield,[Mass.] dtd 8 Jan. 1808" (1808; Berkshire Co MA Deeds vol 48; p 275; FHL film 872,101). David Pierson would not have been the first Pierson from Long Island to migrate to Berkshire County, Massachusetts and nearby Columbia County, New York ('Pierson Millennium' details Nathan Pierson's move to Richmond, Berkshire County, Massachusetts among other Long Island Piersons).

There is still no firm evidence that this David Pierson is the same Capt. David Pierson of Long Island. Indeed, this David Pierson's dates don't correspond exactly to those of the Long Island David according to 'Pierson Millenium' pp. 159-161. The source of the dates in 'Pierson Millenium' was George Rogers Howell's 1887 book 'The Early History of Southampton, L.I.' and I can't help but wonder if the dates provided by Howell are actually for one of the other David Pierson's living in Southampton in the 18th century ('Pierson Millenium,' p. 160 discusses the three David Piersons living in Southampton at that time).

Any help in sorting out whether the David Pierson who died in Hillsdale, NY was the same as the son of Lemuel Pierson, of Suffolk County, NY, would be greatly appreciated. I can be contacted at gleasonc@hotmail.com

WHITNEY FAMILY

FIRST GENERATION

1 Henry Whitney, the earliest of this family whom we can trace in America, was born in England, probably about the year 1620. No record of him has been found prior to 8 Oct. 1649, when he was associated with Edward Tredwell and Thomas Benedict in buying three fourths of William Salmon's land and Hashamommock, in Southold, Long Island. These four men made the following agreement, which is recorded in the town records of Southold, Vol. I, p. 89. 2

> "Wee whos names are are vnder written inhabiting vppon the neck of land commonly called Hashamommock[1] considering that our Cumfort and quiett setlement would consist et stand in the inioyment of good neigbourhood did make this agreement at our first sitting doune that what man soever should desire to remoue and to endeauor to make sale of his accomodacons should put in such a neighbour as the other Inhabitanc liveinge with him should approve of.

[1] "Examine Chase's Map of Suffolk County, N.Y., and you may see a small baody of water marked just north-west point of Shelter Island and almost connecting Peconic Bay and Long Island Sound. The only separation is a level flat of sand and shingle, a few rods widw, and perhaps twenty long, partially covered with sedgy vegetation. Across this flat, the famous Gilford expedition drew their whale boats, when they made their successful descent upon the British post and This flat is Hashamommuck Beach. The small body of water is now generally called Mill Creek, a tide-mill to grind grain having been built upon it many years ago, and one is still in use near the old site. . . . The creek is a few rods more than two miles east of the First Church of Southold. It is just two miles east of the Southold station of the Long Island Rail Road. Hashamommuck is about a square mile directly east of this creek." -- (Letter quoted in Benedict Genealogy, Charles B. Moore, Esq., of New York, who has carefully studied the history of Hashamommock, thinks that Henry Whitney, while residing there, lived in the same house with Thomas Benedict.

As before stated, the date of his transfer of those lands gives no clue to the time of his removal, but the Town Records of Huntington, L. I., show that he was an inhabitant of that place, 17 Aug. 1658, when he bought of Wyandance, sachem of Pammanake, "three whole necks of meshepeake Land," -- "ffor the vse of the whole Towne of Huntington."

The following is a copy of the deed, endorsed "a deed for 3 Westward necks of Meadow," and "an Indian Deed for 3 necks westward of the six necks."

> Bee it knowne vnto all men by this writing that I, Wyandance, sachem of Pammanake or by the English called Long Iland, doe by these acknowledg to haue sould to Henery Whitne of Hvntington ffor the vse of the whole towne of Hvntington, I say I haue sould to him for them three whole necks of meshepeake Land, I say I for myselfe and my heirs for ever have sould as aboue meconed, and haue sent my agent Cheaconoe to deliver upon Condicions as followeth; ffirst they shall pay or cause to be paid to me or my assigns these ffollowing good punctually, that is first twelfe Coats, ech coate being too

While at Huntington, he build a grist mill, or "corne mmill," for Rev. William Leverich, of that place, which led to some disagreement; Leverich asserting that the mill was not finished in season, nor in the way that the contract required, and Whitney that his pay had been unjustly withheld form him. He seems also to have been a leader in the movement which resulted in the dismissal of Mr. Leverich, as minister of Huntington; and these causes led to several suits between the parties. Not much of the testimony is recorded; but before leaving the town, Mr. Leverich obtained permission of the court to put on record three long depositions signed by himself, his wife, and his son, giving their version of the causes which led to his dismissal. Some persons who have read these depositions, have inferred that Henry Whitney had preached for the people of Huntington, before Mr. Leverich was employed, and some of the testimony seems to harmonize with this supposition. The evidence shows that he was a frank outspoken man -- once fined for speaking his mind too freely before the Court -- but when a charge was true, he would acknowledge it, without waiting for proof from his opponent. His differences with Mr. Leverich were finally settled, as appears by the following receipt, a copy of which was furnished by Mr. James Riker, of Waverly, N. Y., from the original, yet preserved by one of the descendants of Mr. Leverich:

The first allusion to his wife is found in the following extract from the Huntington Court Records, p. 23, from which it seems that he married a widow Ketcham; possibly Sarah,[1] the widow of Edward Ketcham, of Stratford, Conn., who died about 1655.

[1] That she was not his first wife appears from the fact that his son was of full age in 1666.

[2] This was, doubtless, Joseph Whitman.

[3] The first volume of Fairfield Probate records has, at some time, had a considerable number of its leaves saturated with ink, the acid of which has destroyed the paper. The will of "Edward Katchm, of Stratford, lately deceased," was the third one this eighth June 1655 that . . . . the last will and testament of Edward Catchem the court approves thereof. WILLIAM HILL, Secy."

The inventory was written 9 June 1655; and approved by the court 19 June 1655.

[p. 5]

He was defendent in two suits at Huntington, 25 Oct. 1660, both brought by William Ludlum, who had succeeded Mr. Leverich in the ownership of the mill, one of which was "an acsion of trespas for breking the mill and grinding seueral times with out his leue to his greate damage."

> The defendant deny the breking of the mill but confesed he opened the dore, and went and groune his corne, his family being all scik, none abell to beate, he went to inquier for the kei but coulde not her of it for he was gone to the south, and his family with himselue veing like to famish he was constrayned to doe it: yet notwithstanding he gaue the miller his just towle.
> The vardit of the courte in this acsion is that they find the defendant was necessitated to yt he did and the plaintiff sufered no damage.

His last appearance in the records of Huntington was 25 Jan. 1661 (? 1661-2), as witness, with Edward ffrencham, to the will of Henry Scudder, of Huntington.

Soon after this he removed to Jamaica, Long Island, where, as we learn incidentally, he bought a home lot of Richard Harker; which he afterward sold to William Smith and his son Joseph Smith. His name appears several times on the records of Jamaica; 9 Aug. 1662, as committee to buy boards and lime for the minister's house, and to hire a mason, if need require; 12 Dec. 1662, as committee to lay out the south meadows; 20 Dec. 1662, as grantee of an acre of land at the rear of his home lot; 2 March 1663 (stylo novo) as one of twenty-four who signed the deed of gift for a house and home lot, to Rev. Mr. Walker; and again, 5 Feb. (1663-4), as committee to lay out meadows.

> December ye 13th 1664. The town have chosen Henry Whitney, Beniamin Coe, Thomas Smith, Joseph Thurstone, & Samuel Mathews to be Townsmen for ye year ensuing & to order & cary on ye affaires of ye Town of publike concernment during the year, except giving off lands & taking in off habitants.

Another record, without date, of a vote of the town to lay out to others, "yt lott of medow which was formerly Henry Whtineys," closes the history of his residence in Jamaica. He next appears at Norwalk, Conn., in the following record.

> At a towne meeitinge heild the 24th of July, [16]65. * * * * Also at the sayed meeiting -- whereas Henry Whitney[1] hath agreed and incaged with the towne to make, build, and erect a goode and sufficient grounde corne mill, and that at the mouth of norwake River

Ezekiel Rose
Born - date and location unknown
Died - 1768 / Hunterdon Co. New Jersey
Married - Mary Fidler (dau of John and Sarah Fidler, per will of John)

Issue of Ezekiel Rose and Mary Fidler:
Ezekiel Rose married Mary Field
Jonathan Rose married Elizabeth Hixon/Hixson (moved to Kentucky)
CHARLES ROSE MARRIED REBECCA MULLINER (MY LINE)
Charles served in the Revolutionary War from Hunterdon Co. NJ and moved to Monongalia Co. VA by 1796. He died in Monongalia Co. in 1816.
Sarah Rose married John Phillips
Hannah Rose probably married John Woolverton as his second wife Jean/Jane Rose married Jacob Quick, Jr.
Rachel Rose, unmarried at the time of her father's will in 1768
Jerusia Rose, married Jacob Quick, Jr. (after the death of her sister Jean/Jane)

I descend from Charles Rose and Rebecca Mulliner through their daughter, Alsey Rose who married James Conner. Alsey and James moved from VA to Fayette and Greene Co. OH. by 1820.

Just had a note from Christine Rose that the man who agreed to be DNA tested on the Long Island Roses has just sent in his DNA sample............now we have a six week wait to see it he matches the other 14 people who seem to be tied to Long Island.

Hi John,
Think I just sent you an e-mail........with no news. Do not know what happened, so will try again.
I have no idea who the parents were for John Rose married Rebekah Bowen. The same problem exists for my ancestor, Ezekiel Rose married Mary Fidler of Hunterdon Co. NJ. Four Rose men have taken DNA tests for the Ezekiel Rose line and all seem to have Long Island ties.
The exciting news this week is that Christine Rose has found a man in NJ who is a proven descendant of Robert and Dorothy and I have paid for his DNA test which should be taken soon. He was not in a position to pay for his own test, so I told Chris I would do the funding. Now........we must wait the six or so weeks until the test is completed to see if this known descendant matches the 24 or so people who have been previously tested and seem to tie to LI. The Charles Rose being tested was born in Southhampton, LI and his line is through Robert's and Dorothy's son, John (well proven through all lines to this Charles). As Christine said in her e-mail to me on 1 Aug 05.........GLORY BE, THINK WE HAVE FOUND A ROSE TO TEST OF THE LI ROSES". We have both tried so hard to locate a Long Island person and hope this answers the questions of a tie to Long Island. If it does, the next big thing will be to try to tie all of these families to the children of Robert and Dorothy.
Do you have the Robert Rose Research Report written by Christine Rose? If not, you might want to order it from her. It could be very helpful in your research.
Will let you know when I hear anything from my DNA purchase test kit for the man from NJ.

Did you ever get any information on John and Dorothy?
Is there a web site with more info around?

I'm John Alan Rose from this ROSE line:

From the Kentucky Rose's - we don't know who John David Rose's father is, but our (my Dad's) DNA tests say we're from the Long Island Roses according to

ROBERT ROSE / SOUTHAMPTON, SUFFOLK CO. NY / 1644
Researching the families of Robert and Dorothy Rose of Long Island. First located in Southampston town records by 7 Mar 1644. Robert Rose died between 13 May 1651 and 10 Jun 1652 per town records. His widow Dorothy Rose married, date unknown, to Ananias Conkling. Both Dorothy and Ananias are deceased by 29 Jan 1657/58 per the settlement of the estate of Ananias by his son-in-law, George Miller.
Probable children of Robert and Dorothy Rose: Rachel (married Anthony Waters);
Thomas; John (married Abigail, possibly Raynor); Samuel; Mary; and Jonathan (married Jane Nearon Williams, widow of William Williams). Later names found of their descendants: General Abraham Rose (married Mary Pierson); Dr. Rufus Rose (married Mary Sanford); Dr. Samuel Haines Rose (married Mary Topping); Capt. Nathan Rose (married Sarah Rumsey). Some of Robert's and Dorothy's descendants to Orange Co. NY and New Jersey. Especially interested in making contact with current local members of this family still living in Suffolk Co. NY.
I appreciate your help and contact.

having his residence between two large ponds upon Montauk, with the body of his tribe in the vicinity.

The present aspect of their ancient burial places, exhibits evidence of a large population at the time of the arrival of the English in this town; at which period two younger brothers of Wyandanch, were respectively chiefs of the Shinecock and Manhasset Indians.*

The first English settlement in this town, Gardiner's Island excepted, was begun upon the site of the present village of Easthampton, in the spring of 1648, by a few families from Lynn and the adjoining towns of Massachusetts; a previous arrangement having been made with the Governors of Connecticut and New Haven, for procuring by their means, a conveyance from the native proprietors. These gentlemen cheerfully undertook, and happily, accomplished the object without difficulty. The deed was executed by the monarch of Montauk, and three other of the neighboring sachems, thus securing the purchasers, against any future claim from those tribes, and saving their posterity from controversies that might endanger their peace and prosperity. The deed bears date April 29, 1648, and is as follows:

"This present wrighting testyfieth an agreement betwixt the Worshipful Theophilus Eaton, Esq., Governor of the Colony of New Haven, the Worshipful Edward Hopkins, Esq., Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, their associates on the one parte; Poygratasuck, Sachem of Manhasset; Wyandanch, Sachem of Mountacutt; Momometou, Sachem of Chorchake; and Nowedonah, Sachem of Shinecock, and their associates, the other party. suaded from proceeding any further, because it would strengthen the Dutch, whom Winthrop denominates, our doubtful neighbors

The original agreement between Farret (Lord Stirling's deputy,) and Capt. Daniel Howe, Job Sayre, and their associates, is dated April 17, 1640, by which they were fully authorized to make purchases from the Indians of Long Island and settle thereupon; with as full and free liberty, both in church order and civil government, as the plantations in Massachusetts enjoyed. Yet it is reasonable to believe that the agent did not anticipate a purchase, much more a plantation, in any portion of the territory claimed, whether rightfully or not, by the Dutch. This will appear evident, from the protest made by him, before Governor Winthrop at Boston in July, 1641, a copy of which will be found under the article North Hempstead. It will be seen, however, that the outrage (as it was called) practiced by the Dutch, upon the English, who landed at Cow Bay in the spring of 1640, was in 1650 made a ground of complaint by the commissioners of the United Colonies, in their correspondence with Governor Stuyvesant.

After the settlement was broken up there, as related by Winthrop, Howe and his companions came here and bargained with the natives for the land, and the better to make sure of their purchase, immediately advanced a part of the price. The payment of the balance was not arranged till Dec. 13, 1640, when a conveyance was obtained, and the settlement progressed. The first town meeting was held April 6, 1641, from which time the proceedings were regularly entered, the records of which yet exist in a good state of preservation. The acknowledgment made to the Earl of Stirling and his heirs, was fixed by Gov. Winthrop in 1641, according to a previous arrangement with Farret, at four bushels of Indian corn, payable annually on the last day of September, at Southampton.

Soon after the arrival of the first purchasers, they were joined by other families, according to a former agreement made at Lynn; for while there, they entered into a civil compact, and executed articles of confederation for their future government. Of one of those instruments the following is a copy:

> "Know all men whome these presents may concerne, yt whereas it is expressed in our agreement that the power of disposinge of lands and admission of inhabitants into our plantacon, shall at all tymes remaine in the hands of us, the said undertakers, to us and our heyres forever; and our intent and meaning is, that when our plantacon is layd out by those appoynted accordinge to our artikle; and that there shall be a church gathered and constituted accordinge to the mynde of Christ, that then wee doe ffreely lay downe our power both of orderinge and disposinge of the plantacon, and receivinge of inhabitants, or any other thinge, provided that they shall not doe any thing contrary to the true meaninge of the fformer artikles. ffurthermore, whereas it is expressed in a fformer artikle, that the lands of the undertakers should at all tymes remaine ffree, affordinge any help to build meetinge-houses, or makinge a bridge, or mendinge of highways or the like, duringe the tyme of their discontinuance ffrom the plantacon; it is thought meete that it shall take place and stande in fforce but two yeares, unless there be some good reason given for it; and then those shall have land only for the third yeare, provided, that within the third yeare they come back again."

Previous to embarking from Lynn, Captain Howe purchased of Edward Howell, Edward ffarrington, Josiah Stanborough, George Wells, Job Sayre, Edward Needham, Henry Walton, and Thomas Sayre, their parts of the vessel, in which they were to come to Long Island. On which account he agreed to transport as many goods, as the undertakers should desire, at a certain sum per ton, in payment of the price of the vessel, which was sixty-five pounds. And it was further stipulated, that the vessel should be wholly employed in the service of the plantation, and not be sold away without their consent; also that the said vessel should be ready at Lynn, to transport the persons and goods of the company, three times in the year, if required. (The contract bears date the 10th of March, 1640,) and still remains in the clerk's office of this town. The names of the settlers who had arrived during the first twelve months, were as follows:

A second patent was issued by Governor Dongan, bearing date Dec. 6th, 1686, in which Major John Howell, Thomas Halsey, sen., Edward Howell, John Jagger, John Foster, Francis Sayre, Joseph Fordham, Henry Pierson, Samuel Clerke, Job Sayre, William Harker, and Isaac Halsey, were appointed the first trustees; and by which instrument the town was declared a body corporate and politic in deed and name, yielding and paying to his majesty, his heirs and successors, yearly, on the 25th day of March, forty shillings. The court of sessions, and of the oyer and terminer for the county, were held here a greater portion of the time, till the court house at Riverhead was finished in 1729. The building made use of for this purpose, stood nearly adjoining the first meeting-house, upon land now belonging to Capt. James Post, which was probably erected immediately after, if not before, the conquest of New York, in 1664.

Rev. Abraham Pierson, was the first minister of this town. He graduated at the university of Cambridge, England, 1632, and had been a preacher in Yorkshire. He came to Boston in 1639 and joined the church there. He united with those at Lynn, who designed a settlement on Long Island, and arrived here as has been seen in 1640. His wife was a daughter of the Rev. John Wheelwright, her sister was the wife of commissioner Samuel Maveric, and connected by marriage with the celebrated Ann Hutchinson. Mr. Pierson remained in this church till the union with Connecticut, in 1644, the consequence of which was the allowing others to vote than church members, called free burgesses which he disproved and therefore, with a part of his church, he removed into the jurisdiction of New Haven and united with the settlers of Branford, the most of whom, had come there from Weathersfield and probably for the same reason. A church was soon formed and Mr. Pierson was chosen pastor. In 1662 the charter of Connecticut was obtained by Governor Winthrop, which included the colony of New Haven, and free suffrage being allowed to all freeholders, Mr. Pierson and many of his people, again removed and settled in a part of New Jersey, (purchased from the natives in 1666,) which they called Newark, Mr. Pierson thus becoming the first pastor of a third settlement. In consequence of so many leaving Branford with Mr. Pierson, the church there remained vacant till 1687.

Sept. 10, 1668, the people of Newark allowed him the expenses of his removal and digging of a well, with £80 salary, and the like sum yearly, to be paid in goods at current prices, besides a pound of butter for every milch cow in the town, and perpetual exemption from taxes. He was now so far advanced in life as to need ministerial assistance, and his son Abraham, (who graduated at Harvard in 1668,) was employed to aid him. On the 4th March, 1672, his son was regularly settled as his colleague. Mr. Pierson lived six years longer and died Aug. 9, 1678.

He is commemorated, says Trumble, among those early ministers of New England, who like Eliot labored for the conversion of the heathen around them. He constructed a catechism for their use, in their own language, and a considerable sum was allowed him by the commissioners of the United Colonies to aid him in this labor of love. He is represented by Cotton Mather, as an able and fervent preacher, and as a pious and prudent man. The Rev. Alexander McWhorter, one of his successors in the church at Newark, represents him as a man of much learning and piety, of natural abilities above the common level, and eminent for his wisdom, prudence and discretion. His son, Abraham, who was born at Lynn in 1641, was chosen his successor in 1680. In 1692 he removed to Connecticut, settled at Killingworth in 1694, and in 1701 was appointed first Rector of Yale College, then just established, which office he held till his death, May 5, 1707. One of his grand-daughters married the Rev. Jacob Green, father of the Rev. Dr. Ashbel Green of Philadelphia. Abigal, the sister of President Pierson, married John Davenport, Nov. 27, 1663. He was the son of the Rev. John Davenport, first minister of New Haven. Of their children, Abigal married the Rev. James Pierpont, and John became the minister of Stamford.

Rev. Robert Fordham was the second minister of this town. Mr. Farmer thinks he came from England before 1641; and John-

Lost Indian Lands

Shinnecocks and Montauketts fight to regain areas taken in questionable deals

By Steve Wick and Thomas Maier
Staff Writers

Real estate promoters and local officials eager to bring the railroad to the East End of Long Island used questionable and possibly illegal means to break leases with Indians in Southampton and East Hampton towns a century ago and strip away their rights to 14,500 acres of prime real estate.

The breaking of leases with the Shinnecock and Montaukett Indians, in 1859 and the early 1880s, appears today to have been accomplished by deceit, lies and possibly forgery, a Newsday examination of historical and legal records shows. While the Indians themselves raised these issues at the time, their protests were dismissed in the courts.

In the case of the Shinnecocks, an 1859 petition that asked the state Legislature to pass legislation breaking a lease that covered the Shinnecock Hills may have contained forged names, names of dead Indians and minors.

``I remember the day when Capt. Louis Scott, Austin Rose and Capt. Jeter Rose drove on the reservation," a Shinnecock named David Killes testified under oath before a U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing in 1900. Killes said one of the men told his father ``. . . the petition is going to Albany to-morrow and he said to my father, `Are you going to sign it?' He said, `I told you I would never sign it.' He said, `Luther (my uncle), are you going to sign it?' He said, `I will never sign it.' But they forged the names and put them on."

In the case of the Montauketts, an East Hampton man later admitted under oath in court that he had lied when he told the Indians that if they signed away their rights to land at Montauk Point, they still could return during summer months. But according to testimony before the same subcommittee in 1900, they were barred by force from returning, and Montauketts alleged that at least one of their homes was burned to the ground.

The breaking of the leases is not only important to historians but resonates today. The Montauketts have filed a notice of intent with the federal Bureau of Indian Affairs asking for recognition of their tribal rights. If they win recognition, the Montauketts say they will file a court case alleging fraud in the loss of their lands at Montauk Point, which today are mostly maintained as parkland by Suffolk County and New York State.

In Southampton, the Shinnecocks say they are assembling historical documentation in preparation for filing for federal recognition of their tribal status. Today, nearly all of the Shinnecock Hills are incorporated in two world-class golf clubs that sit on land worth millions of dollars.

Both the Shinnecock and Montaukett land deals were motivated by the expansion of the Long Island Rail Road in the mid-1800s. At that time, the railroad ran through the middle of Long Island from Queens to Greenport, but not along the South Shore. Hoping to induce officials to extend tracks farther east, many towns along the South Shore right-of-way floated bonds to help defray costs. Committees of businessmen, farmers, fishermen, elected officials and real estate promoters were formed in each town to lobby the Long Island Rail Road to extend its tracks from Queens to Babylon, Islip, Patchogue and east to Sag Harbor, then the most populous village in Suffolk County.

``It is certainly of vital interest that this road be constructed," the Sag Harbor Express editorialized in 1859. The year before, an official Suffolk County map had shown a proposed rail line leading from Riverhead to Southampton. ``With the inauguration of this road our property will be doubled in value," the newspaper said.

But to reach the village -- or any place on the South Fork, for that matter -- a rail line had to cross the Shinnecock Hills, which was Indian land locked away for centuries under the terms of a lease signed in 1703 with the town trustees. The Shinnecocks used the high and rolling hills -- among the most striking parcels of land on the East End -- to hunt, cut wood and graze livestock.

``It was impossible for the railroad to come to the South Fork without crossing Shinnecock land," said John Strong, a history professor at the Southampton Campus of Long Island University. ``The Shinnecocks could not legally sell a right-of-way because they did not own the land, they leased it. And the lease was good for 1,000 years. For the railroad to come, it had to cross Shinnecock land, so some kind of an arrangement had to be struck with the Shinnecocks or the lease had to be broken."

The Indians lost 3,500 acres of the Hills in the winter of 1859, when a group of investors that included leading citizens of Southampton proposed to break the 1,000-year lease in exchange for giving the Indians title to Shinnecock Neck, a tract of approximately 750 acres where the Indians today maintain a reservation. Saying they had a petition signed by 21 Shinnecocks in support of the proposition, the investors got the state Legislature to pass a bill authorizing the swap.

Only days after this petition arrived in Albany, records show, a second petition signed by another group of Shinnecocks reached the Capitol, alleging that the first petition was a forgery. The Legislature ignored the second petition. As a tribe, the Shinnecocks received no money for the exchange, nor did they approve it, although a federal law passed in 1790 required congressional as well as tribal approval for Indian land deals.

Records filed in the Suffolk County clerk's office in Riverhead show the investors held the land for two years, then sold it to a larger group that included themselves and others with the same last names. They then sold a 66-foot-wide right-of-way to the South Side Railroad Co., which would later merge with the LIRR. In 1869, tracks were laid across the Shinnecock Hills, connecting New York City to Sag Harbor. Land values soared.

By the mid-1880s, the Hills were sold to an enterprise called the Long Island Improvement Co. One of the company's five directors was Austin Corbin, president of the Long Island Rail Road. Newspaper accounts say that Corbin and his investors -- including the president of Brooklyn Gas and Light Co., Arthur Benson -- planned to build a hotel and a large summer colony on the site. Those plans never materialized, but within a few years, Corbin's land company started the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club on filing for federal recognition of their tribal status. Today, nearly all of the Shinnecock Hills are incorporated in two world-class golf clubs that sit on land worth millions of dollars.

Both the Shinnecock and Montaukett land deals were motivated by the expansion of the Long Island Rail Road in the mid-1800s. At that time, the railroad ran through the middle of Long Island from Queens to Greenport, but not along the South Shore. Hoping to induce officials to extend tracks farther east, many towns along the South Shore right-of-way floated bonds to help defray costs. Committees of businessmen, farmers, fishermen, elected officials and real estate promoters were formed in each town to lobby the Long Island Rail Road to extend its tracks from Queens to Babylon, Islip, Patchogue and east to Sag Harbor, then the most populous village in Suffolk County.

"It is certainly of vital interest that this road be constructed," the Sag Harbor Express editorialized in 1859. The year before, an official Suffolk County map had shown a proposed rail line leading from Riverhead to Southampton. "With the inauguration of this road our property will be doubled in value," the newspaper said.

But to reach the village -- or any place on the South Fork, for that matter -- a rail line had to cross the Shinnecock Hills, which was Indian land locked away for centuries under the terms of a lease signed in 1703 with the town trustees. The Shinnecocks used the high and rolling hills -- among the most striking parcels of land on the East End -- to hunt, cut wood and graze livestock.

"It was impossible for the railroad to come to the South Fork without crossing Shinnecock land," said John Strong, a history professor at the Southampton Campus of Long Island University. "The Shinnecocks could not legally sell a right-of-way because they did not own the land, they leased it. And the lease was good for 1,000 years. For the railroad to come, it had to cross Shinnecock land, so some kind of an arrangement had to be struck with the Shinnecocks or the lease had to be broken."

The Indians lost 3,200 acres of the Hills in the winter of 1859, when a group of investors that included leading citizens of Southampton proposed to break the 1,000-year lease in exchange for giving the Indians title to Shinnecock Neck, a tract of approximately 750 acres where the Indians today maintain a reservation. Saying they had a petition signed by 21 Shinnecocks in support of the proposition, the investors got the state Legislature to pass a bill authorizing the swap.

Only days after the petition arrived in Albany, records show, a second petition signed by another group of Shinnecocks reached the Capitol, alleging that the first petition was a forgery. The Legislature ignored the second petition. As a tribe, the Shinnecocks received no money for the exchange, nor did they approve it, although a federal law passed in 1790 required congressional as well as tribal approval for Indian land deals.

Those plans never materialized, but within a few years, Corbin's land company started the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club on the site. Today, Shinnecocks work as grounds keepers at the club.

It was a similiarly grand dream -- involving Corbin and Benson -- that helped push the last group of Montauketts off leased land at Montauk Point, where the Indians were objects of curiosity for newspaper writers and tourists traveling to see the lighthouse.

In 1879, Benson bought approximately 10,000 acres reaching from Napeague to the point for $151,000 from a private group of East Hampton residents. Benson dreamed of an exclusive summer colony along the ocean, connected by railroad to New York City.

But smack in the middle of the point, on a tract of land called Indian Fields, the Montauketts were living under the terms of an East Hampton Town lease that granted to them residency and other rights ``in perpetuity." In order for Benson to have clear title to the point -- and also so that he would not have an impoverished Indian community inside a ring of expensive homes -- he had to persuade the Montauketts to sign away their rights to the land and then move away. As was the case at Shinnecock, there appear to be no records showing that the Montauketts ever were approached as a group and asked to agree to the sale.

Benson hired the town's assessor, Nathaniel Dominy, to induce the Montauketts to move to homes he would provide in the Freetown section of East Hampton. Dominy offered the Montauketts as little as $10 each for signing individual deeds that gave ownership of Indian Fields to Benson. According to court testimony, Dominy also told the Indians they could return to Indian Fields whenever they wanted, a statement he later admitted was a lie.

The transcript of the U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing shows that hardball tactics were used against reluctant Montauketts. One Montaukett testified at the hearing that the houses at Freetown that Benson gave the Indians as an inducement to relocate were no better than pig pens.

After gaining title to the property, Benson recouped part of his investment by selling a huge tract to the railroad -- whose president was Corbin -- for a right-of-way. He also sold other large pieces to Corbin individually. By 1890, according to newspaper records, the land at Montauk Point had soared in value and was worth between $3 million and $4 million. Records and newspaper accounts show that Corbin and Benson became partners in a grand scheme to turn Fort Pond Bay into what Corbin called a ``nationally significant" deepwater port where cross-Atlantic steamships could dock. The dock would be connected to Manhattan by extending Corbin's Long Island Rail Road to Montauk.

If both Indian groups go to court, fraud will not be easy to prove. Official records of the Shinnecock Tribal Trustees, which have been kept by the Southampton Town clerk since the town's earliest history, are missing for the period immediately surrounding the 1859 land swap. Those records could possibly prove what contacts, if any, the original investors had with the tribe itself; they could also possibly substantiate the arguments made in the second petition that the names on the first were forged. There are also questions today as to how private investors in both towns managed to gain control of the land.

And, of course, witnesses to both events are long dead, their legacies kept alive in the memories of their descendants.

``We intend to do what we can to answer these questions," said the Rev. Michael Smith, a Shinnecock who is minister of the Presbyterian Church on the Southampton reservation. ``It's important the truth be told."

Shinnecock Hills

Soon after their arrival in Southampton in 1640, the English began making land deals with the Indians. The Shinnecocks' land base shrank as the English took more and more farmland and woodland. Soon, the only Indian villages in the town were on both sides of the narrow strip of land that separated Peconic Bay from Shinnecock Bay, a spot called Canoe Place. Today, the Shinnecock Canal passes through this narrow waist of land.

In 1703, the town trustees wrote a lease they said would be good for ``one thousand years." It was signed by the trustees, who under the terms of the Dongan Patent -- which governed land matters in New York -- had the authority to negotiate with the Indians. Three Shinnecocks signed it -- Pomguamo, Chice and Mahmanun -- but the lease says it was approved by them ``and their people."

The lease allowed the Indians to live, farm and cut wood on all of the land east of the Canoe Place, bounded by Peconic Bay on the north and Shinnecock Bay on the south. The eastern boundary ran from Shinnecock Creek north to the bay. This was the entirety of the Hills. In exchange for signing the lease, the Shinnecocks were paid 20 pounds in English money.

By 1859, the clamor to bring the railroad to the South Fork had risen to a crescendo. The year before, an official map of Suffolk County called the Chace map was published. For the first time, a county map showed a proposed railroad line from Riverhead to Southampton.

``The railroad was seen by everyone as progress," said Vincent F. Seyfried, the historian for the LIRR. ``It allowed products to go back and forth and connected the towns to New York City. It was the future for these towns."

Apparently beginning in the fall of 1858, the Proprietors of the Trustees of the Common Lands of Southampton -- a private group of investors not affiliated with town government -- began approaching the Shinnecocks with the express purpose of breaking the lease. According to records, the proprietors were among the town's most influential families -- Edwin Rose, David Rose, Austin Rose, David Hedges, Jeremiah Hedges, Enoch Halsey, Isaac Osborn, Erastus Foster, Seldin Foster, Edwin Post, George Post and Jon Fithian.

According to the testimony taken by the U.S. Senate subcommittee in 1900, individual Shinnecocks were approached by some of these men, asking them to sign a petition to the state Legislature that would legalize the breaking of the lease.

One Shinnecock, Eugene Johnson, testified: ``In 1859 they circulated a paper among the Indians to get their signatures, agreeing to divide the reservation from the hills. Very few of the Indians signed it. The major part of them refused to sign it." One of the Shinnecocks who testified, James L. Cuffee -- whose name appears on the petition -- said his name was forged.

Under oath, Cuffee testified: ``Mr. Rose came out ... on the Neck and tried to get all the names signed to it that they could. He came to me at that time. I was trustee on the Neck and I told him no. I would not sign anything of the kind, and he went to several others to my knowledge -- I do not know how many -- but he could not get the majority of them. They would not sign it."

But the petition -- which was entered into evidence at the Senate subcommittee hearings -- reads as if the Shinnecocks themselves wanted to give the Hills to the proprietors because of disputes over

But the petition -- which was entered into evidence at the Senate subcommittee hearings -- reads as if the Shinnecocks themselves wanted to give the Hills to the proprietors because of disputes over livestock grazing. It reads, in part:

``Your petitions further show that of late years various disputes have arisen between the said Indians and the trustees of the proprietors of common lands of the town of Southampton in regard to their respective rights under the several deeds and leases, and that to put an end to these differences they have consented to an arrangement with the said trustees by which they are to surrender their lease to certain portions of these lands, and the trustees are to reconvey to the said tribe the residue."

It contains 21 Shinnecock signatures, 10 of which are a simple X. The name James L. Cuffee appears twice. The name Wickham Cuffee appears also as Wicks Cuffee.

Within days of this petition being sent to Albany, a second petition was written, this one signed by 12 Shinnecocks, including James L. Cuffee. It reads, in part: ``... we depose that said names ... were forgeries ... some of the names purporting to be names of signers were not signed by the parties bearing the name in the petition; that others of the signers, or pretended signers, who had a right to those names signed were dead, and buried for years; that others were never known to the tribe, nor did they ever belong to the tribe; that the others ... were minors ..."

Today, there are no town or tribal records to show who was alive or dead as of that date, or even who was a Shinnecock. The records of the Shinnecock Tribal Trustees are missing for that period. ``There is so much that is lost," said Michael Smith, adding -- as the Shinnecocks in 1900 also testified -- that there are no indications the community itself approved the breaking of the lease.

``If the breaking of the lease was entirely above board, why didn't they ask the tribal government to approve it?" he said. ``If this is a good petition, why are names repeated twice?"

Testimony at the Senate hearing showed that, once the lease was broken and the railroad extended, the value of the Hills soared to more than $3 million. Testimony also showed that Shinnecocks were barred, sometimes by force, from returning. One Shinnecock testified that his elderly Indian aunt ``got banged pretty nearly to death for cutting a stick of basket wood."

Records on file in the Suffolk County clerk's office in Riverhead show that the proprietors sold the Hills in 1861 for $6,726, or approximately $2 an acre -- well below the value of surrounding land in the town -- to a group that included themselves and family members. There are Roses, Fosters and Posts on both lists. Records in Southampton Town, along with newspaper accounts, said the proprietors retained the railroad right-of-way, which they sold after the 1861 sale for $500. In two years, more than $7,000 had changed hands, none of it ending up with the Shinnecocks. By the spring of 1870, rail service to Sag Harbor had been inaugurated.

Accounts in a Southampton newspaper called the Sea-Side Times show that the arrival of the railroad in Southampton Town began a period of enormous change. In 1881, Corbin -- who had developed the summer resort at Manhattan Beach in Brooklyn -- became president of the LIRR. During the summer of 1882, he brought what were described as his real estate partners -- a British investment firm called the American Improvement Co. -- to Shinnecock Hills.

Describing one excursion of Corbin and the investors, the newspaper wrote: ``They stopped on some of the elevations on Shinnecock Hills and prospected the sight of a contemplated summer hotel." The same story said: ``... at Shinnecock Hills, the company proposes to lay out a large park of 500 acres, the arms of which should be lined with cottages -- those fronting the sea in villa style, and those inland surrounded by small farms of from two to five acres in extent. Those improvements will cost $3.5

Montauk Point

They were a small group in the 1880s, perhaps no more than 20 people. They lived in small houses on rocky land overlooking salt water. They fished, hunted, cut wood, tended livestock and chickens, and worked for white families in East Hampton. Tourists on their way to the 18th-Century lighthouse at the tip of Montauk Point passed by their little Indian community. Often the visitors would stop and look them over as if they were sideshow attractions. The only thing missing was a billboard telling tourists to turn left at the dirt road if they wanted to see ``The Last Village of the Montauk Indians."

Corbin and Benson had big dreams for this same land. Their plan, which would produce millions in new revenue for Corbin's railroad, was to construct an international seaport at Montauk's Fort Pond Bay. They envisioned British merchant ships docking to avoid New York's crowded harbor -- reducing their voyage across the Atlantic by 120 miles.

The story begins in 1879, when Benson bought approximately 10,000 acres of Montauk Point from the proprietors for $151,000. He surprised onlookers by plunking down a 10 percent deposit in cash pulled from his pocket.

But although Benson now owned the land, he did not have unrestricted rights to it -- there was the matter of the lease given to the Montauketts in 1703. That lease was for approximately 11,000 acres of Montauk Point, and covered residency, hunting and fishing rights ``in perpetuity." A year before the auction at which Benson bought the property, a local judge had ruled that it was legal for the trustees to sell tracts at Montauk Point, but the tribe's rights to use the same land had to be protected as spelled out in the old lease.

After buying the land, Benson began building summer resort homes, including some designed by Stanford White. Soon, his friends were conducting English-style fox hunting on the high plains. One of his summer guests was Corbin, who promised to build a giant railroad terminus at this new port and to ship passengers and freight on his LIRR trains to New York at 60 mph. He would eventually travel to England and raise $5 million for a syndicate he controlled with investors from London and Boston.

Corbin was not one to shrink from a challenge. By 1881, he had gained control of the money-losing railroad -- that year, it lost $136,000 -- and began to pull it out of receivership and toward profitability. After purchasing other rail systems running through Brooklyn and Queens, Corbin was dubbed by the press as ``the King of Long Island." He bought a luxurious home in Babylon, where he entertained President Chester A. Arthur and his son in 1882.

But Corbin and Benson acted cautiously in informing both the Montauketts and the white townspeople of their plans. In September, 1882, some East Hampton residents expressed alarm about his plans for a railroad through the town. Even as Corbin was suggesting he would extend the line to Montauk, he was already deep in plans to do it.

In October, 1882, the Hempstead Inquirer published an account of a meeting that took place between ``Mr. Benson, the proprietor of Montauk, and the representatives of the Long Island Railroad and others interested in the establishment of a fast line of steamers between Europe and Montauk." But the same account said that Benson had ``declined an offer of $100,000 for the right of way to Fort Pond Bay and land for a depot."

But the same account said that Benson had "declined an offer of $100,000 for the right of way to Fort Pond Bay and land for a depot."

Two months later, the newspaper indicated that Benson had a change of heart. He was now ``willing to sell his land'' to the railroad, but with no indication of when such a future deal would take place.

But land records reviewed by Newsday show that Benson had already signed an agreement, in January, 1882, for a railroad right-of-way with a company called the Montauk Association, which was controlled by Corbin. After an initial payment of $18,235, Benson privately joined in Corbin's Montauk development efforts. Their agreement included a promise by Corbin, as court records would later show, to buy more of Benson's land.

But the Montauketts at Indian Fields were a crucial stumbling block to these grandiose plans. To help secure the rights to this land, Benson enlisted the help of Nathaniel Dominy, the East Hampton Town assessor, whose family had known the Montauketts for a long time. Dominy agreed to act as Benson's agent in trying to persuade the Montauketts to sign away their rights and move to small lots in the Freetown section of East Hampton. Letters written back and forth between the two men show that Dominy was being paid for his services, and that Benson pushed him hard when some Montauketts balked at giving up their rights at Indian Fields and relocating to Freetown.

First, Dominy and Benson focused on Maria Pharaoh -- widow of deceased chief David Pharaoh -- who worked as a midwife in East Hampton. Together, they tried to persuade her to sign a written agreement that Benson had prepared. Dominy promised that Benson would pay her $100 outright and an annual annuity of $240 if she would sign. Dominy also offered to relocate her home from Indian Fields to Freetown. As he would later testify in a court proceeding, Dominy assured Pharaoh that she could return to Indian Fields in the summer months.

Maria signed the deed in the spring of 1885. Also signing was her brother George, and her son Wyandank, who because he was a youngster, received only $10. In the next few years, other Montauketts who had rebuffed Dominy's initial offers slowly followed their example, each for $100 in cash and a small plot in Freetown. There was no returning after that. Testimony at the U.S. Senate subcommittee hearings in 1900 indicated that at least one house at Indian Fields was set ablaze, and newspaper accounts show that Benson leveled the houses there as soon as deeds were signed.

By 1886, Corbin had lined up much of his investment money for his international shipping and rail plan, and began lobbying Congress and Albany for legislation to open the new seaport at Fort Pond Bay. He also wanted to establish a U.S. Customs office on the site. In addition, he pushed hard for federal approval to carry the mail on ships out of Montauk.

In the meantime, Corbin continued to buy up land around Montauk. To show off the viability of his Montauk rail plans, he made a test run from Long Island City to the new train station at Amagansett, covering the 110 miles in 109 minutes.

In 1895 -- by now, Benson had died -- Corbin and his partners bought 4,000 acres of the original 10,000 from Benson's widow and his son, Frank, for $200,000. Just 16 years before, Benson had bought the entire 10,000 acres for $151,000. A court case brought by the Montauketts later revealed that Corbin planned to buy more Benson family land at Montauk. Meanwhile, Corbin's LIRR planned to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars in the railroad and other improvements. At Montauk and Shinnecock, Corbin was investing both as an individual and as the president of the railroad.

At a Montaukett community meeting in that summer of 1895, the Indians decided to hire a lawyer to contest the Benson purchase of their ancestral land, which they said had been done without the tribe's approval.

Two months later, the newspaper indicated that Benson had a change of heart. He was now "willing to sell his land" to the railroad, but with no indication of when such a future deal would take place.

First, Dominy and Benson focused on Maria Pharaoh -- widow of deceased chief David Pharaoh -- who worked as a midwife in East Hampton. Together, they tried to persuade her to sign a written agreement that Benson had prepared. Dominy promised that Benson would pay her $100 outright and an annual annuity of $240 if she would sign. Dominy also offered to relocate her home from Indian Fields to Freetown. As he would later testify in a court proceeding, Dominy assured Pharaoh that she could return to Indian Fields in the summer months.

Maria signed the deed in the spring of 1885. Also signing was her brother, George, and her son Wyandank, who, because he was a youngster, received only $10. In the next few years, other Montauketts who had rebuffed Dominy's initial offers slowly followed their example, each for $100 in cash and a small plot in Freetown. There was no returning after that. Testimony at the U.S. Senate subcommittee hearings in 1900 indicated that at least one house at Indian Fields was set ablaze, and newspaper accounts show that Benson leveled the houses there as soon as deeds were signed.

By 1886, Corbin had lined up much of his investment money for his international shipping and rail plan, and began lobbying Congress and Albany for legislation to open the new seaport at Fort Pond Bay. He also wanted to establish a U.S. Customs office on the site. In addition, he pushed hard for federal approval to carry the mail on ships out of Montauk.

In the meantime, Corbin continued to buy up land around Montauk. To show off the viability of his Montauk rail plans, he made a test run from Long Island City to the new train station at Amagansett, covering the 110 miles in 109 minutes.

In 1895 -- by now, Benson had died -- Corbin and his partners bought 4,000 acres of the original 10,000 from Benson's widow and his son, Frank, for $200,000. Just 16 years before, Benson had bought the entire 10,000 acres for $151,000. A court case brought by the Montauketts later revealed that Corbin planned to buy more Benson family land at Montauk. Meanwhile, Corbin's LIRR planned to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars in the railroad and other improvements. At Montauk and Shinnecock, Corbin was investing both as an individual and as the president of the railroad.

At a Montauketts community meeting in that summer of 1895, the Indians decided to hire a lawyer to contest the Benson purchase of their ancestral land, which they said had been done without the tribe's approval.

In the meantime, Corbin proceeded full speed with his plans for the Fort Pond Bay development. He arranged for a bill to be introduced in the U.S. Senate that would establish a duty-free port at Fort Pond Bay. And, in March, 1896, he began building docks at Fort Pond Bay, with a new steel pier. But that summer, fate intervened.

While vacationing in New Hampshire, Corbin went for a ride with his grandson in a horse-drawn wagon. At one point, the horses bolted when Corbin raised a sun umbrella into the air and the carriage plummeted down an embankment. The coachman was killed and Corbin and his grandson suffered fractures. Corbin died later that day, leaving an estate estimated at between $25 million and $40 million.

Though some early construction would be finished, Corbin's ambitious plans for Montauk essentially died with him. But his rapid build-up of the LIRR across Long Island is still considered the railroad's golden age.

For the Montauketts, their lawsuit contesting the sale of their lands dragged on for years. Gradually, some questionable aspects of the deal came to light.

At the U.S. Senate subcommittee hearing in 1900, several Indians testified, as did Dominy, and a number of leases and other documents were entered into evidence. Dominy spoke at length of his efforts to push the Montauketts off Indian Fields, saying at one point that he paid one ``lame" Indian child named Ephraim Pharaoh just $10. He also said that, at the time, the boy was a cook in the Dominy household.

The testimony from the Montauketts was bitter and emotional. One man, Eugene Johnson, said Montauketts who tried to return to Indian Fields after Benson bought the property were arrested or removed ``by force." Another Montaukett, Nathan Cuffee, said Benson and Dominy promised, in moving the Indians to Freetown, to either relocate their homes or build new ones.

``The understanding or the promise by Mr. Benson to those people was that he was to build them comfortable homes, with so much land to accompany each house," Nathan Cuffee testified. ``And I have been in the houses, every one of them, without exception, and most of the houses, except one, are built of plain pine boards, stood on end, without any chimneys to them, without any plastering; just such a pen as I would build for a pig."

In 1909, the Montaukett lawsuit finally went to trial. Now in his 80s, Nathaniel Dominy took the stand. Referring to Maria Pharoah, he was asked by the tribe's lawyer: ``Did you tell her that after she moved away, and was given this deed, that she could move back?"

``I told her this," Dominy replied. ``I venture to say ... I told every one of them."

Instead of trying to defend the deal with the Montauketts, the lawyers for the Benson estate argued that the Montauketts had intermarried with blacks and thus diluted their ``Indian blood." After a year of deliberation, Judge Abel Blackmar in Riverhead State Supreme Court threw out the Indians' case, saying that the Montauketts no longer existed as a tribe. Inside the packed courtroom, 75 Montauketts sat in stunned silence. Later, the New York Court of Appeals affirmed Blackmar's ruling.

Robert Cooper -- who recently was elected chief of the tribe in a disputed vote -- and his cousin, Robert Pharaoh, say they are determined to see the Montauketts' rights as a tribe recognized by the federal government. If the government grants recognition to the tribe, they say they will launch a legal effort to have some of their lands returned. Today, much of the land at Montauk Point comprises county-owned parkland along with private homes.

``I would call it coercion, a land fraud -- leading people with promises that never happened," says Pharaoh. ``These were people with very little money, who worked as domestics and were victimized from the time they lost their lands until they passed away."

Scholars and legal experts interviewed by Newsday seem to agree with this assessment. ``The law says that you can't negotiate directly with individual Indians and that you must deal directly with the tribe," declares John Strong.

By modern legal standards, experts say, a court could overturn this land deal because of the evidence of false promises to the tribe. ``You'd have a real shot at overturning on the basis of fraud, especially when the buyer was promising they could return but was already interested in the selling the property to the railroad," says Anthony P. Gallo, chairman of the Suffolk County Bar Association Real Property Committee. ``I'd say this was a fraudulent act perpetrated on the Indians."

On a recent afternoon, Robert Pharaoh stood on an overlook of Montauk Highway and gazed toward the small cemetery where his ancestors are buried. Beyond the cemetery, the land sweeps majestically to the sea. The railroad tracks can be seen in the distance, a reminder of what happened a century ago.

``I come here and draw strength from this place," he said. ``My ancestors know what happened isn't right."

Hi Mary, I found the site. The Anthony Waters who died in Sept, 1675 leaving a wife, Rachel, is the son-in-law of Robert & Dorothy according to the Waters info. Rachel isn't listed in the Miller documents that list all the ROSE childre except her but the Waters data states that she is the daughter of Robert & Dorothy. Of interest to me are the Stillwells shown in the data of Long Island and Hunterdon County, NJ. Nicholas Stillwell married Jonathan & the widow, Jane Nearon Williams in 1682. When Ezekiel ROSE died in Hunterdon County, NJ, a Nicholas Stillwell helped to prepared the inventory of his estate along with his brother-in-law Fidler. About 1770, there was a Stillwell who served as a Deacon of the Tonoloway Baptist Church down in present day Fulton County, PA. The pastor of that church was a Joseph Powell who attended Hopewell Academy in NJ and married a Rachel ROSE whom we believe to be the daughter of Robert ROSE & Johanna of Sleepy Creek near Berkeley Springs, VA, now WVA. The Stillwells were with the ROSEs in Washington County, PA, at a later date also so I am of the opinion that there is some close connection between the ROSE & Stilwell families but haven't been able to connect them in marriage yet. Have you found any ROSE-Stillwell marriage? They were together on Long Island, in New Jersey, in the MD, VA, & PA area and in Washington County, PA. Usually, families travelled together in those days so it would seem that there is some tie between the two families. Did you find other ROSEs mentioned in the Long Island History up the 1750? The ROSEs first came to East Hampton. Later, Jonathan was in the Bellport/Brook Haven area and we know that the Robert ROSE who purchased land in NJ in 1735-37 was of Brook Haven on Long Island because the deed tells us that fact. Several ROSEs sold land in the Bellport/Brook Haven area between 1720 and 1735 and it appears several removed to the Hunterdon County, NJ, area. Some probably went to Orange County, NY, and to Burlington County, NJ, also. Chat more later.

The Long Island genealogy site I sent to you earlier today has info concerning the Thomas Brush who died in Hunterdon Co. in 1749. It states that he was a son of Thomas Brush and Sarah Wicks and that he married #1 Susan Ketcham and #2 Mrs. Hannah Martha Mathies. The site also contains a great deal of info concerning the Rose family.

Hi Mary, Edward Coombs, The Truex family, and the STillwells were all intermarried it seems as were so many of that church family. There were several marriages between the Stillwell and the Truex families. The list in the bulletin seems to be those who intermarried and many of them were in Hunterdon County, NJ, before coming to the Fulton County, PA, area. My best guess is that they were all related in some way. Walter

Hi Mary, David Bowen & wife, Hannah, are the parents of Rebeckah Bowen who married my ancestor, John ROSE. Enoch James married one of Rebechah's sisters, Sarah I believe, and they were in Harrison County, Virginia in the 1786 time period where our John shows up in the tax records. Some say that Hannah ROSE was a sister of Rachel but I am NOT certain of this fact. David Bowen was one of the first deacons along with Jeremiah Stillwell at Tonoloway Church. Several of the Powell and Bowen children ended up in the Dayton, Ohio area. Col. William Bishop, the grandson of Joseph & Rachel, stated that Rachel was born in 1742 in Berkeley Manor, Virginia but I suspect that she was born in New Jersey as Robert & Johanna came to the Berkeley Springs area about 1749. The Director of Missions for the Philadelphia Baptist Association stated Rachel was "of Jersey." He would have known the Powells quite well. Chat more later.

There were two ROSE ladies who were members and some claim that they were sisters of Rachel ROSE Powell. One was named Hannah but i could never find out the name of the other. Does your info have her name? Also, does it tell who they married? Thanks

I have done no Stilwell/Stillwell research, but in the manuscript "Fidler Lore" by Hazel M. Kendall of 1958 she states that Elizabeth Fidler, dau of John and Sarah married John Stilwell. The following abstract of the will of John Fidler:
Dated / 8 Oct 1759 / Hunterdon Co. NJ
Loving wife, Sarah
Son, John Son, Timothy Son, Nathan Son, Thomas
Dau, Mary ROSE
Dau, Elizabeth STILWELL
Executors: Son John Fidler and son-in-law EZEKIEL ROSE Witnesses: Andrew Smith, Jr., Richard Reed and John Titus, Jr.
(so a close tie to the Ezekiel Rose family and the Stilwell family. John Stilwell married the sister-in-law of Ezekiel Rose, Elizabeth Fidler)

I have the booklet (48 pages) published in 1987 by the Fulton Co. Historical Society of McConellsburg, PA. about Rev. Joseph Powell and the Tonoloway Church. It is quite informative about the family of Joseph and Rachel Rose Powell and includes a listing of members who joined the Church while Rev. Powell was pastor. Among the many names includes Jeremiah Stillwell who joined in 1766. Wonder if he was a brother of John Stilwell who married Elizabeth Fidler ???
Other names in the booklet can be found in Hunterdon Co., as well as Suffolk Co. NY......not surprising.
Yes, Rachel Rose (dau of Robert and Dorothy) was the wife of one Anthony Waters. In one record on Long Island, which I have not copied as yet, has John Rose giving a deposition and he states "my brother, Anthony Waters". To me pretty good proof that a sister of John (a proven son of Robert and Dorothy) married Anthony Waters.

Hi Mary, I found the site. The Anthony Waters who died in Sept, 1675 leaving a wife, Rachel, is the son-in-law of Robert & Dorothy according to the Waters info. Rachel isn't listed in the Miller documents that list all the ROSE childre except her but the Waters data states that she is the daughter of Robert & Dorothy. Of interest to me are the Stillwells shown in the data of Long Island and Hunterdon County, NJ. Nicholas Stillwell married Jonathan & the widow, Jane Nearon Williams in 1682. When Ezekiel ROSE died in Hunterdon County, NJ, a Nicholas Stillwell helped to prepared the inventory of his estate along with his brother-in-law Fidler. About 1770, there was a Stillwell who served as a Deacon of the Tonoloway Baptist Church down in present day Fulton County, PA. The pastor of that church was a Joseph Powell who attended Hopewell Academy in NJ and married a Rachel ROSE whom we believe to be the daughter of Robert ROSE & Johanna of Sleepy Creek near Berkeley Springs, VA, now WVA. The Stillwells were with the ROSEs in Washington County, PA, at a later date also so I am of the opinion that there is some close connection between the ROSE & Stilwell families but haven't been able to connect them in marriage yet. Have you found any ROSE-Stillwell marriage? They were together on Long Island, in New Jersey, in the MD, VA, & PA area and in Washington County, PA. Usually, families travelled together in those days so it would seem that there is some tie between the two families. Did you find other ROSEs mentioned in the Long Island History up the 1750? The ROSEs first came to East Hampton. Later, Jonathan was in the Bellport/Brook Haven area and we know that the Robert ROSE who purchased land in NJ in 1735-37 was of Brook Haven on Long Island because the deed tells us that fact. Several ROSEs sold land in the Bellport/ Brook Haven area between 1720 and 1735 and it appears several removed to the Hunterdon County, NJ, area. Some probably went to Orange County, NY, and to Burlington County, NJ, also. Chat more later.

The Long Island genealogy site I sent to you earlier today has info concerning the Thomas Brush who died in Hunterdon Co. in 1749. It states that he was a son of Thomas Brush and Sarah Wicks and that he married #1 Susan Ketcham and #2 Mrs. Hannah Martha Mathies. The site also contains a great deal of info concerning the Rose family.

Suffolk County

Long Island was discovered in the summer of 1524 by Giovanni Varrazano, a native of Florence, Italy. Employed by Francis I of France to explore the New World. Verrazano, having sailed his ship, the Daphne across the Atlantic, skirted the east coast of North America from below the Virginia to the west end of Long Island. There he was rowed through the Narrows to New York's upper bay and the mouth of the Hudson River. Then returning to his ship, he skirted Long Island's south shore to the vicinity to Block Island which he named the Island of Luisa. Landing on Montauk in the spring of 1614, Adrian Block became the first white man to tread the soil of future Suffolk County; also was the first to contact its aboriginal inhabitants. It was he who, upon returning to Europe, first sold the idea the Paumanok, as the Indians called the Island, was a very desirable piece of real estate and, like the immediate mainland, was well work any government taking it over. This the Netherlands did, at the same time claming all the coastal territory from Canada, where the French had already gained a foothold, to Virginia which had become British as early as 1607, as well as all the wilderness streching west ward to a distance which was anybody's guess. For more than thirty years after Adrian Block's Local expoloration, Long Island remaind all Indian. In 1639, the first two groups of New Englander's founded on either side of the Island's east end. They were Southold, over looking the Sound, and Southampton, fronting upon the Atlantic Ocean. Quite independent of one another, with the Peconic Bay laying deep between them. These two towns had only one thing in common. Englishmen. The first nine family's of East Hampton were: John Hand, Thomas Talmag, JR., Daniel Howe, Thomas Thomson, John Stretten, SR., Robert Bond,"Robert Rose," Joshua Barns, and John Mulford. They were soon joined by Thomas Osborn, William Fithian, Richard Brooks, William Simonds, Samuel Belknap, Samuel Parson, Joshua Garlick, Fulke Davis, Nathaniel Bishop, William Barnes, Stephen Hand, Thomas Baker, Richard Shaw,"Jeremiah Meacham" and already settled on his Island estate, Lion Gardiner. In 1650, the line of division coincided almost identically with the subsequent Nassau-Suffolk county line, and thus for the first time the Suffolk County area assumed a distint political identity although, except for three townships and Gardiner's Island Manor, it also was still a wilderness unmarked and unclaimed by the whiteman. In 1642 came the settlement of Hempstead, 1652 Shelter Island, and the Hicksville area. The following year Oyster Bay, and Huntington, in 1655 Brookhaven and in 1656 Jamacia, in 1663 Smithtown, 1710 Islip, 1792 Riverhead and 1872 Babylon.

THE REAL FOUNDING FATHERS

These are the known First Families of Southold. The Rev. Epher Whitaker, who gives us the list, admits it is incomplete because "there were many who left no written record, perhaps owing to their superior modesty," but the 140 Founding Fathers he names were definitely here during the first three decades of the town's exitence. This is how he compiled his roster:

..."For nearly thirty years past I have been carefully making a list of the early settlers who left written evidence (in the town Records, in deeds conveying land or other property, in wills, on tombstones, or other documents) that they were full-grown men here within the lifetime of the first pastor. Nearly all named in the list which I have made were not only residents here but also landowners. In the words of the Town Patent they were 'Freeholders and Inhabitants.'"

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Internet Report on David ROSE (1721-1781) who married Hannah Parr

Should any of you like to read a Report on David ROSE who married Hannah Parr, you will find it @ www.orednet. org/~clenzen/ rose.html. This is a very thorough writeup of what is known about this branch of the Long Island ROSE family. You will note that David is with Daniel along the river near Harrisburg and I belive it discusses a William ROSE of East Pennsborough Township also. The Chruch Records also have more on William but it gives you some idea of where they all were in the 1760-80 time period. Where David died in Washington County, MD is less than ten miles from Robert & Johanna ROSE lived in Virginia on the south side of the Potomac and MOST believe that David & Robert are brothers and sons of Robert & Abigail ROSE. I still haven't found an Abigial but evidently Judge ROSE found something somewhere. It is thought that Daniel died about 1776 in Derry Township of Lancaster County, PA, based on some court records of that period. William was last known to be near Roxburry just Northwest of Shippensburg, PA. The stream there runs through Kingston near Harrisburg where the tent was located that the ROSE children of William were baptised. One of his daughters was baptized in the Roxburry area after 1760. Alexander BROWN's children were also baptized by the same pastor during this same time period.

We would suggest you review this report as it will give many of you some helpful hents and possibly, some new information. Our first Long Island Robert ROSE Family match in the DNA Project was between one of David's descendants and myself so we have come a long way since that point in time with more than 30 matches to date from many different families.

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] The Anna Duckworth family

The following information was found for the family of Anna Duckworth who married Samuel ROSE in Burlington County, NJ, on 26 Feb., 1739 and this is recorded in "Marriage Bonds & Records," Page 110, Office of SEcretary of State for the State of New Jersey:

Her father appears to be a William Duckworth whose estate was settled on 7 March, 1727, so he evidently died about 1726. On 15 March, 1727, those who settled his estate paid for two coffins and the digging of two graves for the widow Duckworth. See L88-9-6 of Estate Records.

In 1728, Grace Duckworth, a widow, appointed William Bowgan & William Dean as guardians of her children; Joseph, Anna, & Mary, who were all under the age of 14 at that time. She evidently died during that year. See Minutes of Common Pleas; 1717-1733, Page 330.

Joseph married Ester Ogg (Page 110, Marriage Bonds & Records) on the First of June, 1737 and was in Orange County, VA, by 1738 it seems. In the 1750s he removed from VA to Cumberland County, NC. The Marriage Bonds & Marriage Records are with the Office of the Secretary of State.

Anna married Samuel ROSE on 26 Februrary, 1739 (Also see page 110)

Mary married a Hugh Hartley on 29 December, 1740 (See Page 140)

It is believed that the Duckworths descend from a William Duckworth who came to New Jersey during the 1680s as an Indentured Person. Hopefully this will be of some help to those who are interested in the Samuel ROSE & Anna Duckworth Family

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] The Richard Hildreth Family

The Richard Hildreth family is a very interesting family to study. It seems that Richard, the Immigrant, came to Boston, MASS, about 1635 which is about the time that Robert ROSE of Long Island came.

Many of the family remained in the Chelmsford, MASS, area but one son, Thomas, was an original or early settler of the Southampton area of Long Island along with Robert ROSE. A son, Joseph, married Hannah Jessup who was born in Southhampton in 1656 so the Jessups were also on Long Island very early.

A son of Joseph and Hannah, John, born 1702, removed to Orange County NY, where he married Phebe in 1720 which is quite early. We also know that Simon Rumsey, Jr, & wife, Phebe ROSE, moved to Goshen, Orange County, NY, by the 1730s. Phebe is the granddaughter of John ROSE & Abigail Raynor. There is a Deborah Hildreth, born about 1668, in the area of Southampton, who married an Israel ROSE and some think he could be the son of Thomas ROSE and a Miss White. It is believed that Thomas was the oldest son of Robert & Doroty ROSE who came to Easthampton in the 1640s time period but he could also be of the John & Abigail Raynor ROSE family, too. Another ROSE in Orange County, NY, prior to 1740 is a Jonathan ROSE who witnessed at least two Wills there in the 1735-45 time period and some think he could be the son of Jonathan & Jane ROSE.

John had a son, Joseph Hildreth, who was born at Cornwall, NY, on the Hudson River, in 1721, who later removed to Montgomery and then Wythe County, VA. Descendants of this family ended up in Bourbon County, KY by 1796 as a grandson, John, who married Dorcas Shaw, purchased land in Montgomery County in 1796 with the deed stating he was "of Bourbon County, KY. William ROSE married Mary DeWitt at the Presby, Church in New Windsor, NY, some 5-10 miles up the Hudson River from Cornwell some years after John Hildreth left for Virginia. One of the Wills that was witnessed by a Jonathan ROSE was for a Jervis/Jorvis Remsen of a place called Haverston or Haverstown which could possibly be in present day Rockland County, NY, just South of Orange County.

Some of the Southampton, NY, HIldreth family also removed to Salem County, NJ, in the 1720-35 time period where a John ROSE, born about 1703, moved to. John is thought to be the son of Martyn & Sarah Howell ROSE of Southampton, NY; the same area where the Hildreths were of the early settlers. Some records seem to indicate that the Hildreth who went to Salem County married a Penton and was possibly a brother-in-law of John ROSE whose first wife was named Mary it is thought. Their son, Abraham ROSE, born about 1732, married a Phoebe Hildreth it seems.

Listed below are some early New York Hildreth & ROSE Wills:

* This Sarah is most likely Sarah Howell ROSE, wife of Martyn ROSE and should contain the name of son, John, if this is her.

For many years, the Orange County, NY Wills were managed by the New York City Courts so one should check to make sure that none of those listed are from Orange County before dismissing them is NOT of importance.

There appears to be ONLY one Will of the Jonathan & Jane ROSE family unless some of those listed for New York City are of their line. All those of Southampton should be of the John & Abigail Raynor ROSE line while those of Bellport/Brookhaven would most likely be of the Jonathan line. Bridgehampton is most likely of the John & Abigail line, also.

As you can see, the Hildreths & ROSEs probably crossed pathes on several different occasions from Mass to Long Island to Orange and Salem Counties and even into Kentucky. Both families probably also crossed pathes with the DuBois & Newkirk familes in Orange and in Salem County and westward based on what we now know.

Subject: Re: [ROSE_DNA_K] Fwd: James C Rose - Union County, Indiana & wife, Viola Belle DuBois

It appears that John's second wife was a Newkirk or a Newkirk widow based on the data that I reviewed. This would be consistant with the fact that Ezekiel probably married a cousin, Elizabeth Newkirk, as he would have been reared near the Newkirks after his father died in 1752 if his mother was a Newkirk or a Newkirk widow. I can't PROVE that Elizabeth is a Newkirk but that seems quite likely to me. I also can't PROVE that John's first wife is a Penton but when you review the data and who came from the Southampton area to Pittsgrove, that seems quite likely. Abraham married a Hildreth whose mother appears to be a Penton as there were marriages between the Pentons & Hildreths and he probably married his cousin. Since he was born about 1732, he was MOST LIKELY born in the Pittsgrove area near where the Hildreths lived and a Hildreth is probably his Uncle that married his mother's sister of the Penton family. If you study the Dubois, Hildreth, Newkirk, and Penton families, it may be helpful to learning more about John ROSE & his family because there are several marriages between all these families.

It is NOT MY DESIRE to create confusion but to point to certain areas that could provide some answers to our questions. My conclusions may PROVE to be wrong but in disproving that fact, we may find the CORRECT answer.

A Jacob DuBois seems to be the Immigrant and his wife was a Newkirk so the Newkirks were a part of this group it seems. Jacob's son, Barent, moved the family down to Salem County, NJ, after a son, Jacob, was born on 19 Feb., 1718, in Ulster County. This Jacob also married a Newkirk named Jannetije (Yokina) and they had a daugher named Rachel who appears to have first married another person and then married a William ROSE, son of Abraham ROSE & Phebe Hildreth. It is believed that Abraham was the son of John ROSE & Mary Penton with John marrying an Elizabeth Newkirk after Mary's death. There are also two other ROSE & DuBois marriages as William & Rachel's son, William S. ROSE, married a Rebecca Dubois who was quite likely his cousin. James C. ROSE, a son of John A. ROSE, married Viola Belle DuBois in Indiana as shown so this would also be cousins marrying it would seem.

This emphasizes the importance of looking at "surrounding" families in our research as it appears that the DuBois and Newkirk families traveled in the same group from Germany to New York then down to New Jersey and on into Union County, Indiana. Using this approach is how it appeared to me that the John ROSE of Pittsgrove first married a Penton from Long Island and then an Elizabeth Newkirk who was possibly closely related to grandson, William's, wife. There were marriages between the Pentons and the Hildreths who John's son, Abraham ROSE, married and the Hildreths, Pentons, and John ROSE seemed to have moved to the Pittsgrove area from Long Island in the same time period. People traveled in closely knit groups in that time as they carried all their possessions with them and needed protection!!

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] John ROSE-Abigail Raynor Family

From time to time, I review the data I have on the Long Island ROSE families and try to see if anything new has come in that may be helpful in placing them. I don't have anything on either Samuel or Mary ROSE, children of Dorothy & Robert, after the 1657 records of the Ananias Conkling Estate settlement with George Miller. The oldest son seems to be Thomas and he is thought to have married (1)Miss WHITE, daughter of John & Ann Cooper WHITE, and may have had sons named Thomas, William, & Israel since they are living beside an Ester ROSE in the 1698 Southampton census. He is also thought to have married (2) Ester/Hester Burnett, d/o of Thomas Burnett and had a son, John, who married Jerusha Howell. It would appear that he died before the 1698 census or is the Thomas living near Ester, William, and Israel in that census. His family appears to have been in the Southampton area of Long Island along with his brother, John.

John ROSE who is believed to be the second son of Robert & Dorothy married an Abigail RAYNOR and his family lived in Southampton. My data have the following children for him and Abigail:

John ROSE, Jr., married Phebe Clark and had a daughter Phebe who married a Simon Rumsey, Jr. They lived in Goshen, Orange County, NY, and had a daughter that married Nathan ROSE, Jr., of Brook Haven who descents from Jonathan & Jane ROSE. It is said by the Rumseys that John owned some 4,000 acres of land in the Goshen area of Orange County, NY but seems to have resided in Southampton. This could be incorrect however..

William ROSE, born about 1666 and married a lady named Hannah. Nothing else is known of him at this point in time but he could have also gone to the Orange County, NY area.

James ROSE, born about 1668, and is probably the James living near David & David ROSE, Jr., in the 1698 Southampton Census. Nothing else is known of him beyond that time.

David ROSE, Sr., born about 1674, and lived in Southampton in 1698 census. In his Will (31-8-503/513) , he names his children, brother, Martyn, and also a "kinsman" named David ROSE but I cannot place this David unless it is his son, David.

Martyn ROSE, born about 1675 and married Sarah Howell. This family lived in Bridge Hampton where Martyn died about 1729 & Sarah in 1735. I have them with five sons: Zachees, Stephen, Christopher, John, and Abraham. The Will of Sarah in 1735 states three daughter but they are NOT listed. We know that one is Sarah because of her grandfather' s Will naming her. I show three others being Sybil, Ester (1707), and Elizabeth but one may have died young or, before her Will was made.

Thomas ROSE, born about 1676 and may have died young as his bother James, received his portion of his father's estate as provided for in the father's Will should Thomas died unwed. He may have been the Thomas in that 1698

Southampton census living near Israel, William, and Ester ROSE, however.

Hannah who appears to have been born after 1680 as she is NOT 18 when her father's Will was dated on 4 May, 1696 and proved in 1697. She is living with her mother, Hannah, and sister, Abigail, in the 1698 Southampton census.

Abigail who was born about or after 1680 and is living with her mother and sister, Hannah, Jr., in the 1698 Southampton Census.

There is an Internet Post on the Anthony Waters-Rachel ROSE family. He died in 1675 while serving as Clerk for Queens County, NY, with Rachel being the Administrator of his Estate so you may have an interest in that data. Rachel is shown as being the daughter of Robert & Dorothy ROSE but she is NOT listed in the George Miller Court Documents as a child of Dorothy.

After Robert ROSE, died, Dorothy married a widower, Ananias Conkling, who was a glassblower and lived in Easthampton. About 1654, a daughter named Ester/Hester Conkling was born and about 1656, Dorothy died. Next year, Ananias Conkling died and a George Miller, son-in-law of Ananias, became responsible for the daugher, Hester. There are a lot of court papers covering this settlement and is when Thomas signed over the estate of the Robert ROSE children to George. These papers list all the children except for the daughter, Rachel, who may have been married by that time or, removed from the area. For some reason, Rachel is NOT LISTED as a child of Dorothy. The Papers may be found in Volume I, Pages 121-122 of Easthampton documents and dated 27 November 1657. Ester Conkling married a Samuel Mulford and you can find data of her family posted on the Internet should you be interested.

This is a summary of all the data I have up to the present time on the families of the Robert & Dorothy children EXCEPT FOR the Jonathan ROSE-Jane Nearon family and this will be sent out in another message. Should you find any of the information to be incorrect or, have updates please post them for us. If you can add anything about the Thomas ROSE family, please do so as it will help all are trying to put the puzzle of this family together properly.

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Jonathan & Jane Nearon ROSE Family.

First, let's review the marriage of Jonathan & the widow. Jane Nearon Williams. Jane first married a William Williams on 9 Nov., 1678, at Gravesend, Suffolk, NY with the ceremony performed by Justice Nicholas Stillwell. William died before 10 Dec., 1679, it appears from the records.

On 28 May, 1682, at Brookhaven, Jonathan & Jane were married in a ceremony performed by a Nathaniel Brewster/Bruster. Jonathan is listed as a witness to the puchase of land from the Indians and last appears in the records of 1718 as a Trustee of the Town of Brookhaven. Their children are BELIEVED to be:

Thomas ROSE, born about 1683 and married Rebecca Reese/Reeve. This family had a grandson, Nathan Rose, Jr., who married Sarah Rumsey, daughter of Simon Rumsey, Jr., and Phebe ROSE of the John Rose-Abigail Raynor line. The family appears to have remained in the Brookhaven area through several generations up into the 1900s. This family is probably the best documented of the Jonathan & Jane descendants since they remained in the Brookhaven area for so many years.

Robert ROSE, Sr. born about 1685 and married an Abigail according to Judge ROSE of Indiana who prepared a lineage of this family during the late 1800s. I have NEVER been able to find her any place and don't know where he was able to find her but evidently he found something I haven't discovered yet. It is believed that this Robert ROSE went to Hunterdon County, NJ, where he died about 1743 with a Daniel ROSE administering his estate. There is a Daniel ROSE, son of Robert, who registered an Ear Mark in Brookhaven in the 1720s time period and this could be that Robert & Daniel ROSE.

Daniel ROSE, born about 1688 with a wife named Mary. He died before 1762 in the Brookhaven area so he remained in the area all his life.

Jonathan ROSE, Jr., This one is added because there is a Jonathan ROSE witnessing Wills in Orange County, NY, by 1737 whom I cannot place in any other Long Island ROSE family. In 1741, he witnessed the Will of one Jaris/Joris or Jarvis Remsen of Haverstown in Orange County. There is very little else on him it seems but he could be the father or grandfather of the William ROSE, born 1747, that married Mary DeWitt. He appears to be the ONLY one of Jonathan's family that could have gone to Orange County, NY

Timothy ROSE is believed to be their son because he is a witness in the court records of 1728 where an Ephriam & Samuel ROSE are tried for Petty Larceny. Other witnesses included Nathaniel Brewster & George Everson. The court found Eprhiam NOT guilty and found Samuel guilty but evidently didn't give him any jail time since the event had occurred some "13 years ago when he was still under age." Timothy is believed to have first gone to Hunterdon County, NJ, and then on to Middlesex County, NJ.

Ephriam ROSE is believed to have been the son of Jonathan & Jane based on the Court Records cited above and was found NOT GUILTY of the crime. He shows up in the Little Egg Harbor area of Burlington County, NJ, shortly thereafter and by 1735 or, we believe this is the proper Ephriam as we can't find another Long Island ROSE to put there in that time period.

Samuel ROSE born about 1700 based on his being under 18 in 1715 when he allegedly engaged in petty larceny and was tried and found guilty in 1728 in the Court of Oyer & Termer where an Ephriam ROSE was also tried and found NOT GUILTY. Since a Nathaniel Brewster was a witness, he is believed to be of the Brookhaven area and the son of Jonathan & Jane whom a Nathaniel Brewster/Bruster had married in 1682. Samuel is believed to have removed to Tuckerton, Burlington County, New Jersey when his brother, Ephriam, removed to Little Egg Harbor about to the 1735 time period. Samuel married an Anna Duckworth and they had a daughter who married a Leak so this family seems to be quite well documented.

Ezekiel ROSE, born abut 1708 who lived in Hunterdon County, NJ, and married Mary Fidler. For many years, he was placed in the Tormut ROSE family of Block Island but we now know that is the incorrect placement because he is a Long Island Robert ROSE family member based on the DNA testing results. His family is quite well documented as he came to Hunterdon County, NJ, at a young age and remained there the rest of his life.

The Jonathan & Jane ROSE family is very poorly documented so in placing, one should consider where they lived and whom they associated with in addition to reviewing land transactions and tax records of the area. It seems that many of this family were "frontiersmen" because they seemed to be on the edge of the latest expansions westward first to New Jersey and then on into PA, VA, and West. Some also appear to be "traders" as a large number of horses seem to be listed on their tax records which would indicate that these were pack horses. Many may have other opinions that differ from those expressed here but I have attempted to follow the info in making these placements knowing that some are certain to be incorrect. If any can find a "better" documented placement, please post the info so we can try to put them where they belong. There may also be other sons & daughters that should be listed in this family which I have failed to identify in my data collecting. We encourage everyone to contribute any info that will help to properly place these individuals. Thanks for your input!!

This is very well done, Walter. Thank you for bringing clarity to this rather new generation for me and I'm sure for others. I especially like the way you have organized the specifics about each person in a separate paragraph as well as giving a general overview. Good Work!

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Transfer of Land to Samuel, Ephriam, Timothy, & Ezekiel ROSE

Carol provided information about transfers of land that occurred on 20 June, 1720, at Brookhaven between a Jonathan ROSE & Samuel, Ephriam, Timothy, and Ezekiel ROSE. It would be my conclusion that this would be their part of their father's estate and that he died prior to or, just after this transfer. Based on the listing, this would appear to be the order of birth and all are MOST LIKELY over 21 years of age which means that they were all born prior to 1700. We had thought Ezekiel was born about 1708 but this now seems to be incorrect as one needed to be 21 to hold title to land.

Also, in the records of 22 May, 1721, a Jonathan ROSE lost his right to a registered "Earmark" because he had removed from the area. Maybe someone can find when this was "registered" as it could give us a rather close time of birth for Jonathan ROSE, Jr., who he seems to be. Evidently, he went to Orange County, NY, prior to 1721 and that is the reason for this "loss of Earmark."

As you can see, in sharing data with each other, we can get more done with our research. These two entries alone, are important to identifying the children of Jonathan & Jane ROSE as five of their sons seem to be named here. A Robert ROSE was also there in the 1720s with a son, Daniel, also had an "Earmark" registered. The more evidence we collect, the more convincing it becomes that those listed are the sons of Jonathan & Jane. There could have also been a son, John, but I haven't found anything on one of that name in Brookhaven. Jonathan had brothers named John, Thomas, and Samuel and he has sons named Jonathan, Jr., Thomas, and Samuel it seems so a John would NOT be out of the bounds of possibilities and he may have died young.

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Brookhaven Land transfers in the 1720-40 time period

Now, we know that Samuel, Ephriam, Timothy, and Ezekiel ROSE received land from their father as an Inheritance in 1720 so we should be able to find them selling this land in the 1720-40 time period along with a Robert ROSE who went to Hunterdon County, NJ, should any of you want to follow the trail while it is "hot." We believe that Robert, Timothy, and Ezekiel went to Hunterdon County, NJ, by 1738 and that Robert died there about 1743 with a Daniel ROSE administering his estate. Timothy is thought to have gone on to Middlesex County, NJ, and Ezekiel remained in Hunterdon County the remainder of his life. He is the Ezekiel who married Mary Fidler and lived near Hopewell.

We believe that Samuel and Ephriam went to Burlington County, NJ, after their trial in 1728 and were there by 1735 with Samuel settling in Tuckerton and Ephriam settling in Little Egg Harbor, NJ. Samuel married Anna Duckworth but we know very little about Ephriam beyond this point in time. If you review the deed records of Burlington County, you may find something more on them and the deeds often stated where they were from so don't be suprised if you find one that it states that the buyer was "of Brookhaven or Suffolk County, NY."

Jonathan ROSE, Jr., is thought to have gone to Orange County, NY, by 1721 so you may find some records where he sold land in the 1720 time period prior to removing from Brookhaven. You may also find deeds for land he purchased in Orange County which may tell you where he was prior to coming to that area.

Jonathan & Jane's sons, Thomas & Daniel remained in Brookhaven for several generations after 1720 so those ROSEs of Brookhaven after 1735 should be the descendants of Thomas & Daniel ROSE. You may find that they purchased land from their brothers who were leaving that area!!!

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Estate Inventory of Ezekiel ROSE of Hunterdon County, NJ

Some additional interesting information is as follows:

A Justice Nicholas Stillwell performed the wedding ceremony for Jane Nearon and William Williams at Gravesend, Long Island, in 1678. In 1768, a Nicholas Stillwell & John Fidler conducted the estate inventory of Ezekiel ROSE who is believed to be the youngest son of Jane & Jonathan ROSE of Brookhaven, Long Island. This Nicholas was MOST LIKELY a descendant of the Nicholas who married Jane & William...

The Stillwells were also in the Tonoloway Creek area and menbers of the Tonoloway Baptist Church if memory serves me correctly so they seemed to travel along with the ROSEs and others as these families moved on Westward!!

Thomas Norris was married to Dorcas Howell, Sarah Howell Rose's sister. According to a Rootsweb data base he died in 1802 in Salem, NJ. They had two children that I have been able to learn about, Elizabeth and John.

Thomas Norris was born in LI, NY and "removed to Salem Co, NJ prior to 1741. He died intestate, his estate was probated on 9 Jun 1802" (information from researcher Steve Norris).

I have been interested in the surname Norris recently, relative to Matthias Rose, UEL, which is a very long story and a very nebulous theory, which I do not wish to provide legs at this point.

Israel ROSE is NOT KNOWN to me at this time. He is too young to be the Israel who married Deborah Hildreth it would seem. That Israel is said to have died by 1699 and I can't find anyone in the John ROSE-Abigail Raynor family named Israel that would have been born about/by 1700 that would have witnessed this Will. Some think that Thomas ROSE remained in the area and was the father of the Israel who married Deborah Hildreth but he would have been born about 1668 and died prior to 1700 according to what records I have seen. Subject: Re: [ROSE_DNA_K] Israel ROSE who Witnessed the Sarah Howell ROSE Will of 6 June, 1735

Since families traveled in groups and there is a ROSE-RUMSEY family that went to Goshen in Orange County, NY quite early, it seems quite 'natural" that a Norris could have also gone up there in the 1720s or 1730s time period as they were related. In those days, they traveled with all their possessions and in known groups for "protection. " There is a William ROSE, son of John & Abigail that could have gone to Orange County as it is said his brother, John ROSE, Jr., father of Phebe ROSE who married Simon Rumsey, Jr., owned some 4,000 acres of land around or in the Goshen area and they probably did NOT GO up there SOLO!!

The William ROSE who married Mary DeWitt is said to have been born in Little Britain, NY. Does anyone know where it is/was located? They were married in the Presby. Church in New Windsor which is just outside Newburg so I would guess that New Britain is in that same general area and is NOT too far South of were Matthias ROSE was first known to be if I recall correctly. It seems that Mary DeWitt was born in the county of Ulster which is the county where Matthias lived if I recall correctly. There is also an Israel ROSE who married a Phebe in this dame general area so William, Matthias, & Israel may all be brothers as they all seem to be born in the 1745-65 time period and are in the same general area. It is my best guess that they descend from either Jonathan or William ROSE and may be descendants of both!! We know that there was a Jonathan ROSE there in the 1737 &1741 time period so he certainly would be a condidate for their father. I'm NOT CERTAIN of William being there however. MORE Speculation to deal with!!!!

Subject: Re: [ROSE_DNA_K] (no subject)

The one who located in Southampton from Easthampton was John and possibly Thomas, also. Samuel may be the one whom he states "returned" to Conn. Evidently, he has John and Jonathan mixed up as Jonathan was the FIRST ROSE that I am aware of being in Brook Haven and he was there by 1675 for he witnessed the deed when the land was purchased from the Indians. His family is the ONLY one I know that was there until Rev. David ROSE of CT., came in the 1770s to be Pastor of the Chruch of Christ in South Haven and this David married Hannah, the daughter of John & Ann Mulford according to the data I found. He was of the CT ROSE family.

There are records of a John ROSE coming to Long Island in the 1640s but he evidently moved on soon after arriving or, died. In the Easthampton Records, Robert ROSE is mentioned as ONE of the NINE "original" settlers and it seems that the early Long Island ROSEs were his descendants for all I have found. The following sons are listed in the George Miller papers of 1657:

(I) Thomas may have married a Miss White and the Ester Brunott/Burnett and lived in Southampton. It appears he could be dead by the 1698 census of Southampton unless he is that Thomas living beside Israell & William ROSE. Israell is thought to be his son with Thomas & William being sons of John ROSE.

(2) John ROSE married Abigail Raynor and his family remained in the Southampton area up until the 1900s but some did leave. Col. David ROSE who married Mary White is MOST LIKELY of the John ROSE line if he is of Southampton.

(3) Sameul ROSE is unknown after the November, 1657, George Miller papers where he is mentioned as a son of Robert & Dorothy.

(4) Jonathan is NOT heard of from 1657 until about 1675 when he Witnessed the purchase of land in the Brook Haven area from the Indians and he appears to have died there in the 1720 time period based on the 20 June, 1720 deeds of "Inheritance" to Samuel, Ephriam, Timothy, and Ezekiel ROSE. There is a Jonathan who lost his "Earmark" there on 22 May, 1721, because he had moved away but this appears to be the son of the older Jonathan and the one who is in Orange County, NY, in 1737 & 1741 Witnessing the Wills of others.

The writings of Charles E. ROSE should be compared to other data to see if it matches up and to determine if there is anything new to be learned from his writings. There is a Charles Ephriam ROSE of the CT ROSE family born about 1867 but I doubt that he is the one who authored this materiel as it seems to apply more to the Long Island ROSE family. I don't have Colonel David H. ROSE or Austin Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] Thanks for all your input this past week!!

This has been a very productive week for me and I am hoping you also learned more about our family. Based on the new info, we can now state (based on this evidence) with a high degree of confidence that:

1. The John ROSE of Pittsgrove, Salem County, NJ, is MOST LIKELY the son of Martyn & Sarah Howell ROSE. The Wills, the weaving Looms, and the supporting documents seem to all point in this direction.

2. That the Samuel ROSE of Tuckerton, Burlington County, NJ, is the son of Jonathan & Jane ROSE based on the deed of Jonathan dated 20 June, 1720, of their "Inheritance, " and those court records of 1728 where Samuel was tried for petty larceny. A witness of at that trial was one Nathaniel Brewster/Bruster and it was a Nathaniel Brewster/Bruster who married the widow, Jane Nearon Williams and Jonathan ROSE in 1682 placing him being "of Brookhaven."

3. That the Ephriam ROSE of Little Egg Harbor, Burlington County, NJ, is the son of Jonathan & Jane ROSE based on the above information.

4. That there is also a Timothy ROSE who is the son of Jonathan & Jane and MAY BE the one who went to Hunterdon County, NJ, before moving on to Middlesex County, NJ, based on the data in the deed & court papers. We have very little information about him and his family on file so would seek help in developing when is known of him.

5. That there is a son of Jonathan & Jane whose name is Ezekiel ROSE and he MAY BE the Ezekiel ROSE of Hopewell, Hunterdon County, NJ, whose wife was Mary Fidler. This is based on the deed of 1720 and the fact that a Nicholas Stillwell helped to inventory his estate. If you recall, it was a Nicholas Stillwell who married Jane Nearon & William Williams at Gravesend on Long Island in Nov., 1678. After William died, she married Jonathan ROSE in 1682. This indicates that Ezekiel is quite likely to be from Brookhaven, originally. If anyone has a deed from Hunterdon County, NJ, showing Ezekiel to be of Brook Haven, Suffolk County, or Long Island, NY, please let me know.

6 That there is a son of Jonathan & Jane whose name is Jonathan ROSE as he "lost" his Earmark in Brookhaven on 22 May, 1721, because he had moved away. He is POSSIBLY the Jonathan ROSE who Witnessed Wills in the Orange County, NY, area in 1737 & 1741 and is probably related in some way to William ROSE who married Mary DeWitt; Matthias ROSE; and Israel ROSE who married Phebe in the Orange and Ulster County, NY areas. This is a Work in Progress and we need your help to tie these ends together.

7. That there is PROBABLY a son of Jonathan & Jane named Robert ROSE of Brookhaven who sold land to Samuel, Ephriam, Timothy, and Ezekiel the same day (20 June, 1720) that Jonathan transferred their "Inheritance" to them. He is also thought to be the Robert ROSE who died in Hunterdon County, NJ, about 1743 with a Daniel ROSE be appointed to handle his estate. There is a record of a Daniel ROSE, son of Robert, receiving an "Earmark" in Brookhaven in the 1720s time period. Another Work In Progress where help is needed.

8. That Thomas ROSE of Brookhaven is MOST LIKELY the son of Jonathan with his family remaining in the Brookhaven area after the other sons departed. This family is quite well documented as they remained in the area for many generations.

9. That a Daniel ROSE of Brookhaven is MOST LIKELY the son of Jonathan with his family also remaining in Brookhaven after the other brothers left. His family also has some documentation.

This new data reinforces the "theory" that any ROSE of Brookhaven prior to the 1740 time period is MOST LIKELY from the Jonathan & Jane ROSE line while those of Bridge Hampton area MOST LIKELY from the Martyn & Sarah Howell ROSE line. Southampton would be the other John & Abigail Raynor ROSE descendants with the POSSIBILITY that Thomas ROSE also had a son or sons who were in that area for some period of time.

Again, thanks for all your help and let us hear from you. Working together, we may be able to put the pieces of this PUZZLE together!!

Subject: [ROSE_DNA_K] DNA confusion over Zaccheus s/o Martyn

That Martyn Rose had a son Zaccheus isn't in doubt, as he is mentioned in the wills. That the Zaccheus that married Ann Halsey was this son Zaccheus seems equally certain, based on location and naming patterns, as well as other evidence.

However, I have a note on this Zaccheus that DNA testing showed that this line wasn't Group K, but rather matched Group Y.-Jachonias Rose of Westmoreland, PA.

ROSE Family Association DNA Study site says: Has this ever been straightened out, and does anyone actually doubt that Zaccheus md. Ann Halsey was Zaccheus son of Martin and Sarah Howell?

"A huge surprise. A test from a descendant of what we have thought was Robert 1, John 2, Martyn 3, Zaccheus 4 Moes 5, Simon 6 Rose of Long Island does not match with Group K, but matches with Group Y. More investigation is needed on this lineaege."

Has this ever been straightened out, and does anyone actually doubt that Zaccheus md. Ann Halsey was Zaccheus son of Martin and Sarah Howell?
